Dairy Future Committee Moves On Plans To Unite Industry

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.)—In an effort to bolster the image of the Pennsylvania dairy industry and provide a more unified voice to consumers and government entities, a group of dairy leaders met Tuesday at the PDA building to make plans for a special forum to be held in early June. The meeting was an outgrowth of the Pennsylvania Dairy Industry Future Committee that has met several times since July 1992, in an attempt to bring together the many different segments of the Pennsylvania dairy industry that are involved "from cows to consumers," as Boyd Wolff, state ag secretary, likes to say.

Wolff and Lamartine Hood, dean, Penn State University, co-chair the committee, and the scope of the effort to unify the state dairy voice continues to grow as the committee's direction becomes more focused.

In opening the planning meeting, Sec. Wolff said prices for milk have been stable, but the costs of production have gone up. "We must find a way to keep the dairy industry viable in Pennsylvania," Wolff said.

Concerns raised by the committee include loss of competitive advantage; fewer non-farmer support industries, and the large investments needed, both in farm and processing enterprises.

Wolff said we have the markets and the processing interstructure. And we have the climate, soils, and animals to do the job. But over the long haul, we need better management, marketing, and cooperation to keep the dairy industry viable in Pennsylvania.

Dairy farmers, educators, legislative, food and processing representatives were in attendance at the meeting.

Wayne Schutjer, official representative of Dean Hood, told the group that Pennsylvania's dairy industry is strong because of its diversity. "We have a large variety of farmers from 'Amish to English,'" Schutjer said. "And we have some of the smallest operations and also some of the very largest dairy farms. This tremendous diversity gives us great strength and more stability.

"But our diversity also hampers our cooperation. It's more difficult for us to come together. That's what this process (dairy futures

Chester 4-H Center Benefit Sale Set For April 2

NEW LONDON (Chester Co.) — To lifelong dairy farmers John and Kathy St. John, what's more important isn't necessarily the money generated from an upcoming sale to help pay for the costs for a new Chester County 4-H Center. It's the attempt to bring unity to an industry and a way of life that is fast fading from the countryside in a rapidly urbanized area.

The Romano 4-H Center Dairy Sale, of which the St. Johns are donating three calves, is scheduled Saturday, April 2, at 11 a.m. at the Solanco Fairgrounds in Quarryville.

The St. Johns hope that the sale draws together the farmers in the county for a common cause — promoting and continuing the 4-H program.

"Some of those who have contacted us were members of 4-H in Chester County and have moved to Lancaster and other counties," said John St. John. "They have expressed an interest in donating animals for sale."

To the St. John family, 4-H has helped promote education for the youth, who in turn pass along the education to others about how essential and interconnected farming is to other livelihoods.

Together with wife Kathy and son J.R., 15, and daughters Krystal, 12, and Kasey, 11, the fourth-generation farm milks about 150 registered and grade Holsteins, with about 120 replacement stock. The St. Johns farm about 500 acres (320 acres on the home farm) and grow all their own feed.

The three Holstein calves they are donating to the sale, to help defray costs of the new Romano 4-H Center on Rt. 322 near Honey Brook, range in age from four to seven months old. All three are grade. Farmers are welcome to

New Reader Involvement

In response to readers' questions, a new column debuts this week in Section B, Page 19. Titled "You Ask — You Answer," the column is for those readers who have questions but don't know who to ask for the answers. In the past many readers sent non-cooking requests to Cook's Question Corner, a column also located in B section, Page 8. Cook's Question Corner will continue, but it is only for questions that pertain to cooking.

"You Ask — You Answer" is for non-cooking questions. The concept is the same: When a reader sends in a request question, it will be printed in the paper. Readers who know the answer are asked to respond by mailing the answer, which will then be printed as soon as possible in the paper.

Questions and answers for both columns should be sent to Lancaster Farming %Lou Ann Good, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522.

HAGERSTOWN, Md. — Washington County Holstein breeders hosted the 30th annual Maryland Holstein Association Convention last Saturday at the Hagerstown Ramada Inn.

The event drew approximately 150 people for the day meeting, and about 300 attended the evening banquet. Members came from Maryland, Pennsylvania, Virginia, and North Carolina for the annual meeting.

Kenlin Martin, Smithsburg, was chairman of the convention. Oren Bender, outgoing president of the Holstein Association, thanked the members of the state organization for their ongoing cooperation. In his final address to the association, he stressed the need for continuing the "spirit of cooperation and concern for each other as Maryland Holstein breeders" on into the future.

New officers for the association were presented at the banquet later in the evening. Charles E. Iager, Jr., of Fulton, MD is the new president. He assumes the role follow-

Wednesday, March 16, 1994

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds was generally slow to fair, instances better. Offerings varied from adequate to readily available. Live supplies were mostly moderate; weights were mostly desirable to heavy. Processing schedules continued very heavy. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged at 54 to 66 cents; however, several sellers noted competitive pricing on extra supplies to stimulate buyers interest. Trade sentiment was steady to lower. In the parts complex, breast items were fully adequate and difficult to place at several plants. Leg items and wings were adequate and in fairly good balance.

Tuesday, March 15, 1994

The market tone was about steady and continued cautious. Trading activity was limited to immediate needs and attractively priced offerings. Most buyers were hesitant to make commitments avf closely watched related markets for direction. Raw materials were more than sufficient to khntain desired schedules. Floor stocks were in good balance to satisfy current dealer needs.

Wednesday, March 16, 1994

NATIONAL EGG MARKET-AT A GLANCE: The market tone was fully steady to firm around the nation. Demand was moving into a typical pre-Easter/Passover mode. Supplies were usually moving as expected with most processors generally holding product with confidence. Breaker activity was mixed as most plants were running minimal schedules and attempting to restrict purchases to regular commitments. Light type hen activity was fair with most offerings in balance with needs.

National Grain Market

St. Joseph, Mo.
Wednesday, March 16, 1994

DAILY NATIONAL GRAIN SUMMARY GRAIN AND SOYBEAN PRICES FINISHED MODERATELY HIGHER, WEDNESDAY. WHEAT PRICES WERE BOOSTED BY IMPROVED EXPORT BUSINESS AND CONCERNS OVER DRY CONDITIONS IN THE SOUTHERN PLAINS AREAS. CORN AND SOYBEAN PRICES GAINED SUPPORT FROM SIGNS OF DECREASING SUPPLIES, CONTINUED RAIN DELAYS IN BRAZIL AND LIGHT FARMER SELL- ING. WHEAT 2 TO 5 CENTS HIGHER EXCEPT MINNEAPOLIS 10 CENTS LOWER. CORN 2 TO 3 CENTS HIGHER. SORGHUM 3 TO 7 CENTS HIGHER. SOYBEANS 3 TO 9 CENTS HIGHER. RECENT DRY CONDITIONS IN SOUTHERN PLAINS AREAS CONCERN TRADERS. EXPORT SALES PICKED UP SLIGHTLY WITH AFRICA AND JAPAN THE MAJOR INTERESTS AND INDICATIONS ARE THAT EGYPT MAY BE SEEKING TO BID FOR 100,000 TO 500,000 TONNES U.S. SUB- SIDIZED WHEAT. CORN PRICES TURNED HIGHER AGAIN AS SUPPLIES ARE REPORTED TIGHT. FARMER SELL- ING IS LIGHTER THIS WEEK. SPILLOVER STRENGTH FROM SOYBEAN PRICES ADDED TO PRICE GAINS. SLOW FARMER SELLING AND ON GOING RAIN DELAYS IN BRAZIL'S BEAN HARVEST PUSHED PRICES UPWARD. IDEAS STOCKS ARE TIGHTENING FOR SOYBEANS AND 1994 PLANTING INTENTIONS COULD COME IN LESS THAN EXPECTED, ALSO ADDED SUPPORT TO PRICES.

EXPORT NEWS: USDA ACCEPTED BIDS TO SELL 60,000 TONNES NORTHERN/DARK NORTHERN SPRING WHEAT TO SUB-SAHARAN AFRICA UNDER EEP FOR APRIL/ JUNE SHIPMENT. The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

MARCH 21-27, 1994

THE BORROWED DAYS

The last three days of March have a reputation for being stormy (as in "goes out like a lion") Scottish folklore proposes that these three days were borrowed from April so that the month of March might extend his power. Certainly no one of a superstitious nature would even consider borrowing or lending on these days Asking to borrow something on these days was considered proof that the borrower intended to use the item in witchcraft against the lender

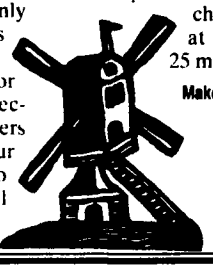
March borrowed from April
Three days, and they were ill
The first was snow and sleet
The next was cold and weet
The third was sic a freeze
The birds' legs stuck to trees.

TIP OF THE WEEK

For spotless glassware add a tablespoon of vinegar to the rinse water.

EARTHWISE

The cost of wind-power-generated electricity has gone from 25 cents per kilowatt hour in 1981 to about 7 cents in 1992 U S Windpower's newest turbines are expected to bring the cost down even further to 5 cents per kwh With new technology, wind-generated energy is not only clean and economical, it's also reliable Our utilities are constantly searching for sources of dependable electricity Here's one that offers no nuclear wastes, no sulfur dioxide emissions, and no dependence on foreign oil Why look further?



CHEESY MASHED POTATOES

4 cups hot, seasoned mashed potatoes
1 cup sour cream
4 ounces sharp cheddar cheese, grated salt and pepper to taste
chopped chives for garnish

Combine all ingredients except chives Spoon into a greased 1½-quart casserole Sprinkle top with chives Bake at 350° F for 25 minutes

Makes 6 servings.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECAST

NORTHEAST: Turning cold and stormy, heavy rain, snow mountains, then freezing rain and snow.

SOUTHEAST: Rainy and cold, clear and cold Florida; clearing, becoming sunny and mild

MIDWEST: Snowstorm, very cold, freezing rain; then milder with rain and snow.

NORTHWEST: Cold and flurries, sunny and warm coast; then some showers and cool, sunny and warm mountains.

SOUTHWEST: Sunny and warm, then cold, some showers east, clearing and warming

OPINION

Grassland Farming Has "Hayday"

Grassland farming had a "hayday" last week when the National Forage and Grassland Council was in Lancaster for their annual convention. And rightfully so. When the forages cover the earth, wind and water erosions are minimized. That's good for the environment.

And at the same time, input costs to livestock producers are reduced. As John Rodgers, outgoing president from Belleville, said in an interview, "When you think about all the government regulations, environmental concerns, and just plain economics — all these things together — the word is out: 'Grass is in.'"

At the convention we heard more of the same. John Baylor, well-known historian for grassland farming, quoted a 125-year-old bit of wisdom as follows: "Grass is the forgiveness of nature, a constant benediction. It yields no fruit in earth or air, yet should its harvest fail for a single year, famine would depopulate the world."

With proper management of rotational grazing, the bottom line of livestock farming is enhanced. And even with the lower input costs, dairymen have found they can maintain high production levels at the same time.

So we have concluded that grassland farming has come roaring back as a method of choice for feeding livestock. But we think maybe a balance between zero grazing and total rotational grazing may be where the optimum system will fall for many producers. In the colder climates where much of the milk and meat is produced, you will still need to stockpile excess forages for winter feeding. But the more you can get the animal to walk to pasture for feeding, the better it is for the animal, and the better it is for the bottom line.

All this new thinking that has come about because of the expensive inputs now prevalent on the farm is based on the research done at the land grant universities. We are all indebted to such research programs as the rotational grazing studies conducted at Penn State.

Now Is The Time

To Salute American Farmers

March 20 is National Agriculture Day.

This year's theme is "American Agriculture — Growing Better Every Day," with a focus on alternative uses for agricultural products.

What many people forget is agriculture produces renewable resources instead of consuming resources. Also, many new products are being developed from agricultural products. These include fuels and biodegradable plastics, diaper tape, and stain removers. In addition, American farmers are producing enough food to feed 128 people.

In Pennsylvania, the hard work and dedication of 52,000 farm families continue to keep agriculture the number one industry of the commonwealth. Farmers provide jobs for 20 percent of the population.

Besides, farmers are good stewards of the land. Their conservation practices are sustaining agriculture while providing open space and recharge areas for our underground water supply.

We salute the American farm family for all it stands for, for providing us with the safest and most abundant food supply and all it does to make America the best place to live in the world.

To Control Flies

We will soon be in the spring fly season.

Now is the time to start a good fly control program. Flies can be controlled, but it will take some effort.

There is no one simple solution. You will need to employ a variety of solutions. These include manure management, biological control, monitoring, and chemical control.

First, you must start with dry manure. Water leaks must be controlled. Next you need to monitor and record fly population numbers on a weekly basis. This may be done with spot cards or fly tape. Also, larvae activity in the manure needs to be monitored. When numbers begin to increase, start using biological and chemical control methods.

To increase effectiveness of chemicals, rotate between the four classes of chemicals. Do not use chemicals in the same family for more than two weeks.

By starting early and staying on top of the fly population, you should be able to minimize neighbor complaints. A new booklet, "Penn State Pest Management Recommendations for Poultry," is available at your Penn State county cooperative extension office.

To Look At Fields

This winter saw record snowfall. In addition to the snow, we also received a lot of ice.

The next few weeks will tell us how much crop damage we had to alfalfa and winter wheat fields. A good stand of wheat will have 15 to 18 plants per foot of row. However, 6 to 8 plants per row may still provide an economical yield.

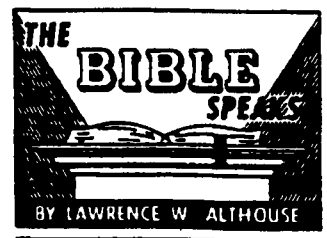
Weed pressure will be greater at the lower plant densities. If you have less than 6 to 8 plants per row, consider planting another crop in this field.

Low areas in the field where water has ponded will experience the most stress. Some of these areas were turning yellow last fall already as a result of the wet weather.

This winter's wet weather will continue to promote denitrification in these low-lying areas. Denitrification occurs when soils are under water for a few days and causes the soil to lose nitrogen to the air.

Some early spring nitrogen will help to get these areas back on track if enough plants have survived the winter.

Feather Prof's Footnote: "No goals? — No accomplishments."



MORE THAN ACQUITTAL
March 20, 1994

Background Scripture:
Romans 5
Devotional Reading:
Colossians 1:9-14, 21-23

I used to think that Paul's Epistle to the Romans was essentially a treatise on justification. The concept of justification is essentially a legal one; as one commentator puts it, it is like "a judge acquitting an accused person in view of fresh factors brought before the court, or a new counsel for the defense" (Cyril E. Blackman in The Interpreter's One-Volume Commentary on the Bible.)

So, whenever you come across that term justify/justification — it occurs 17 times in Romans and 10 times in Paul's other letters — understand that he is saying you are acquitted before God because of Jesus Christ. He is the "new factor" or "new counsel" for your defense. Although you stand guilty before God, because of his death and resurrection, you are acquitted by God.

Justification — whether you use this term or something less legalistic, like forgiveness — is vitally important to us. If sin alienates us from our Maker, we need something to heal this rift and renew the relationship. Dealing with this reality of our broken relationship with God, a reality for all human beings, has been one of the great concerns of the gospel of Jesus Christ.

THE NEXT STEP

I have come to realize that, although justification is vital for all of us, it is not the end of either our greatest need nor the good news that Christ brings to that need. Furthermore, I have come to realize that Paul's message, particularly in Romans, goes beyond the question of justification. Being forgiven by God is not the end of the matter. There is something vital in the gospel that carries us beyond acquittal.

We do not stop with being forgiven. Paul says, "For if while we were enemies we were reconciled to God by the death of his Son, much more, now that we are reconciled, shall we be saved by his life" (5:10). We are reconciled to God because of what Christ has done. But we are also saved, rescued, freed from bondage, delivered, by the continuing reality of Christ's life. Grace, thus, not only rescues us from our past, but gives us power for the present.

THE POWER OF PEACE

Forgiveness is essential to a relationship, but so is what you do with that relationship when forgiveness has healed it. To "have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ" gives us what we need to live in this world. That's why Paul could say, "...we rejoice in our suffering, knowing that suffering produces endurance, and endurance produces character, and character produces hope, and hope does not disappoint us because God's love has been poured into our hearts through the Holy Spirit..." (5:3-5).

The quality of this new life is to be found in what Christ has done for us: "While we were yet helpless at the right time Christ died for the ungodly" (5:6). Who among us would give up our lives for even a righteous man, let alone someone we see as "ungodly"? "But God shows his love for us in that while we were yet sinners Christ died for us" (5:8). If forgiveness gives us a new life even as it was poured out for us. Not just on those in our families. Not just our circle of friends. But all those others who, like us, are dependent upon God's grace.

Yes, there is a lot of evil in our world. We are surrounded by it and our society is filled with it. But the good news of Jesus Christ reminds us that "where sin increased, grace abounded all the more" (5:20b). No matter how much evil you find in your world, you can always find grace in even greater quantities — grace, not only for forgiveness but for the new life that starts when we move beyond acquittal.

Slices through lush stands while gently crimping stems.

New Idea 5200 Series Disc Mower Conditioners swiftly slice through the toughest conditions while gently crimping stems.

And reducing mowing time while reducing leaf loss is critical in maximizing the relative feed value (RFV) of your crop.

Best of all, the low maintenance, shaft-driven self-contained disc modules get you through spots that stop others in their tracks.

Select the best width for your operation: 9'3" or 11'9". Then see one at your White-New Idea dealer or call 1 800 767-3221.

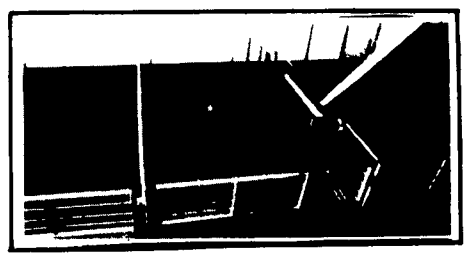
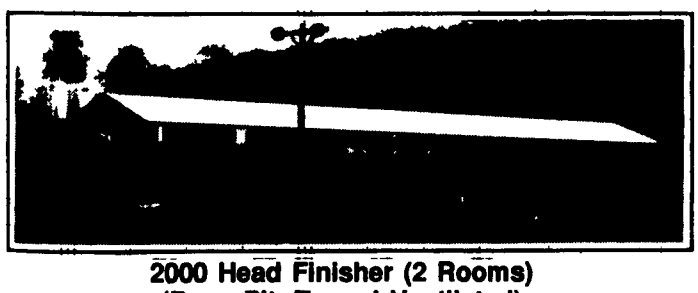
NURSERY PENNING
Nursery penning has been improved by the use of an optional solid stainless steel panel on the front gates which keeps walkways clean. Stainless steel verticals on penning eliminate corrosion where penning attaches to the floor. Stainless steel drinker pipes & mounting brackets also increase durability.





2000 Head Finisher (2 Rooms)
(Deep Pit, Tunnel Ventilated)

FINISHING PENNING
Optional stainless steel verticals and fasteners offer improved durability over other similar types of penning. Loop and flapper latch arrangement eliminates the use of drop pins. Stainless steel fence line feeders provide excellent durability and a minimum of waste.

National Ag Day Sunday

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — American agriculture's achievements will be celebrated all across the country during National Agriculture Week on March 14-20. This annual celebration provides an opportunity for the agriculture industry to reach out and educate its number one customer, the consumer.

This year's theme is "American Agriculture - Growing Better Every Day," with a focus on alternative uses for agricultural products.

The economic and environmental benefits of new agricultural uses are astounding and provide promise for developing rural communities. Now crops can be produced and processed all in the same community and that means jobs.

National Agriculture Day on March 20 offers a unique opportunity to let the millions of Americans who are fed and clothed by American producers know that we are truly growing better every day and that new uses are an important part of that growth.

Abundant traditional crops and a variety of non-traditional crops can be used to their full potential, replacing non-renewable resources with renewable environment friendly ones. Corn, for example, is already being used to make fuel and biodegradable plastics.

The Alternative Agriculture Research and Commercialization Center (AARC) is an independent entity within the USDA that facilitates and accelerates development and commercialization of industrial products manufactured from farm and forestry materials. AARC has made a substantial investment in bringing new uses to market and is eager to bring them to the public's attention.

Milk by-products are now being used to make biodegradable diaper tape, helping to solve growing waste disposal problems.

Wool is being used as an effective agent in absorbing oil from spills which have polluted waters and harmed animals. The wool is then recycled for other uses.

Peanuts and soybeans are now being used to produce biodegradable stain removers.

ing a term as vice-president. Iager and his wife, Judy, milk one-hundred seventy five cows at their Howard County dairy. Jason Myers, past chairman of the budget and finance committee, will serve as the new vice-president. Myers resides in New Windsor with wife Donna. The secretary-treasurer will once again be Anita Hill, of Emmitsburg. It was noted that Hill has been a great asset to the association.

In other annual business, Marlin Hoff, National Director, discussed innovations at the national level in herd classification participation programs. The six classification options will allow farmers more flexibility in getting their cows enrolled in a classification program. The association was also briefed on H.B. 1411 by Myron Wilhide. The bill would "...create a level playing field with all processors regarding the price processors must pay for their milk," according to Wilhide, a dairy farmer from Detour, who is also a member of the Maryland Milk Commission. The bill was supported by the association.

The afternoon program featured guest speaker Mark Varner, Ph.D., University of Maryland extension dairy specialist and associate professor of animal sciences. Dr. Varner spoke on trends in the dutch dairy industry, and also shared information on Dairy-L, an electronic informational exchange net-

$24,200 Tops Maryland Holstein Sale

KAREN BUTLER

KEEDYSVILLE, Md. — The Annual Maryland State Holstein Association Convention culminated with the Convention Sale on March 12. In contrast to last year's sale in Garrett County, where temperatures in the barn were 14 degrees, and the sale had to be postponed due to a major blizzard which left a number of dairy farmers stranded, it was a lovely day. The sale was held at the Western Maryland Research and Education Center, Keedysville. Approximately two-hundred people from Maryland and surrounding states attended.

Remsburg Sale Service, Jefferson, managed the sale. The auctioneer was Denny Remsburg, pedigrees were by Norman Hill, and the Sale Chairman was Greg Wiles, of the Washington County Holstein Association. The Washington County Association hosted the Annual Convention and the sale. The sale was sponsored by the Maryland Holstein Association.

Rothrock Leadman Leopard-ET, dam of Belltone's (1st choice female) that sold for $24,200 in the Maryland Holstein convention sale last Saturday.

Seventy four lots were sold, with an average of $2,378.00. Animals ranged from calves to an Excellent 91 point six year old.

Lot #1, the First Choice Female out of Rothrock Leadman Leopard-ET, sired by Belltone, topped the sale at $24,200.00. The high bidder was Tom Gretz, PA. Contending bidder was Pintail Point Farm, Queenstown. Dam is a VG 88 with a record of 2-5 229 2x 21,110 4.0% 834/ 3.4 711P-Inc. She has three Japanese contracts including one for a Belltone son, and one Canadian contract. Consignors were Ron and Linda Kling, Olen and Ruth Beitzel, and Futuraland Farm, Accident.

Second highest selling lot was #12, for $13,700, which went to Pintail Point Farm, Queenstown. Lot 12 was an ET with registration pending, born August, 1993, sired by Aerostar, with a dam from the Sweetness family with +74 protein. Consignors were Mike and Mary Creek, Hagerstown.

Other highlights of the sale included a choice of Elvins or Lukes from +92P Tidy-Brook Blackstar Suzy-ET (VG 85-2y9m) 2-1 365 2x 21,840 3.5% 875/ 3.3 809p, and the first choice of ET heifers from Zimmandale Cleitus Raye. As of July '93 proofs, Raye was the top protein cow in Maryland at +88P.

Lancaster Holstein Club Tours Franklin County

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

CHAMBERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — A busload of Lancaster County Holstein enthusiasts toured four Franklin County farms Tuesday and were provided with a look at a variety of operational philosophies and setups.

The tour, an annual event sponsored by the Lancaster County Holstein Club, visited Fountain Farm and Tower Vue Holsteins, located south of Carlisle; Tri-Day Farm in Shippensburg; Tidy-Brook Farm in Greencastle; and Stoner Hijos Farm in Mercersburg.

Larry Kennel, DVM, of Mount Joy, was tour guide. Kennel does flushing and embryo transfer work and is familiar with several of the operations visited.

The range of Holstein work demonstrated during the tour provided a contrast between breeding for index against breeding for type, the types of facilities which can be used to achieve, and techniques employed to achieve success.

Though not as fancy as some get, the freestall facility at Tri-Day Farm provides comfort and cleanliness for their herd of registered Holsteins.

Alan Meyers, left, talks about the pedigree, production and marketing opportunities on his Elton daughters, which carry a high index for protein index, while father Mark, stands at the doorway, and tour members look on.

This 3-year-old, 86-point Elton daughter is Tidy-Brook Elton Steph-ET, one of many daughters out of Tidy-Brook Sally Ned Boy at the Tidy-Brook Farm owned by Mark and Alan Meyers. Sally's Elton daughters currently lead the registered Holstein breed in predicted transmitting ability for protein.

Harry Thompson talks about his breeding philosophies with members of the Lancaster County Holstein tour to Franklin County.

Most all farms visited are either well known for show successes or for genetic successes. Except for the Stoner Hijos Farm, all farms were more traditionally sized.

The exception, Stoner Hijos Farm, consists of a new commercial freestall, drive-through facility for 500 cows, a double-16 milking parlor with rapid exit and they farm 1,500 acres. They also maintain a 500 hog operation.

The first farm visited, Fountain Farm and Tower Vue Holsteins, is a 500-acre, two-farm setup run by the Harry Thompson and David Walton families.

The operation featured a 73 tie-stall facility and a double-four milking parlor, built in 1989. Thompson has been using a new quick-thaw method of embryo transfer under the guidance of Dr. William Pettit.

The Thompsons had farmed in a joint operation on 125 acres in New Jersey, but were surrounded by real estate developments, shopping malls and an industrial park.

They sold that last remnant of rurality and with their share purchased the 500 acres in Franklin County. The soil is much different, however. The first year the farmed in Franklin County they had a complete crop failure because of drought. On the old farm, they never had a crop failure.

Further south, Curtis and Ann Day and children operate Tri-Day Farm in Shippensburg, and have been involved with youth programs and educational events, in addition to showing.

Chester 4-H Center Benefit donate either grade or registered animals for the sale.

At the sale, other companies will be contributing halters, feed, semen, and other materials.

Elmer Laffey, a veterinarian from Cochranville, will be on hand to inspect the animals at the Quarryville sale. Donating their time to the auction are Leon Kurtz and Omar Stoltzfus, auctioneers.

According to St. John, the sale is one of many contributions to the fund-raising effort. On a publicity release, the total fund-raising campaign is chaired by Art Hershey and has a goal of raising $750,000, of which $190,000 has already been donated or pledged. The center will cost about $950,000. Recently, the Romano 4-H Center received a $90,000 donation from a large company in the county.

The center, in West Brandywine Township, will be home to all 4-H youth and their families in Chester County. Many 4-H club meetings, shows, sales, roundups, and other activities will be held there. Also, the center will eventually provide a meeting place for large extension meetings and could also be used by community groups.

The intention of having the sale was announced at the meeting of the Chester County Holstein Association last October. John St. John is co-chair of the dairy sale committee along with Mildred Seeds. Those who wish to sign up animals or materials for the sale can contact St. John at (610) 869-8745 or Mildred Seeds at (610) 269-0759.

The 4-H center will provide a mainstay for the 4-H groups. Now, the Chester 4-H Dairy Club roundup is held at the Kimberton Fairgrounds in mid-July, a place that is not as centrally located and as easily accessible as the new 4-H center will be, according to St. John.

Also, the county is increasingly becoming urbanized, and much farmland is being lost to development. With a 4-H center located in the heart of the farmland, perhaps more people will recognize the good life farming can provide, according to the St. Johns.

Recently, the officers of the Chester County 4-H Center settled on the new property. The meeting was with Jim O'Brien, the executor of the estate of Fiore Romano, who donated 15 acres to develop the center that is to be named in his honor.

CoreStates Hamilton Bank's Agri-Finance Department is proud to support 4-H and FFA members and their respective programs.

We believe that helping to preserve the family farm is one of the most effective ways to insure a better future for us all. And that involves working with and supporting our young people.

It's important to give them guidance, instill the proper values, and help them acquire the skills they need to be successful farmers.

Once again, CoreStates Hamilton Bank is pleased to support our future farmers.

Dairy Future Committee Moves On Plans To Unite Industry

committee) is all about. We want to see if farmers to consumers can find a commonality and do some things to come together.

"What is this commonality? Selling more milk.

"Will it help the dairy farmer? That's where we all come together. We need to provide support for those who are supplying the raw products," Schutjer said. "We all have different interests in this process, but we all have a common goal."

Bill Heald, Penn State, said the idea is to improve the competitiveness of the Pennsylvania dairy industry. To do this, several planning sessions were held, and a list of nine major areas of concern were compiled from a greater list of some 79 ideas gathered from the industry. The list of special emphasis is as follows: 1. Markets and market development (new products); 2. Production/technology/profitability (animal nutrition); 3. Environment/regulatory (nutrient management/water quality.

4. inputs/infrastructure (labor, cooperatives, associations); 5. Capital, finance, retirement, records; 6. Quality of life/stress/family/interpersonal relations; 7. Urban interface/off-farm/health costs-people pressures; 8. Research and education (family farm); and 9. Management (information management, breakout of old molds).

Robert Yonkers, Penn State, told the group that efforts in other states to give a strong voice to the dairy industry have been working to increase market share for Pennsylvania's competitors.

In Wisconsin a program is chaired by their governor to give high visibility to the state's dairy industry. The governor requested $700,000 of state money to fund the program.

Minnesota developed a roundtable discussion program that has helped pass legislation that favors the dairy industry.

And the New York dairy industry works with other New England states in the Northeast Dairy Producers Association to hold herd management conferences. They have also committed $25,000 to fund a half position in nutrient management at Cornell University.

Yonkers listed Pennsylvania dairy industry strengths to include growing milk production (Pennsylvania is the third fastest growing state in the nation); a large processing sector; closeness to markets, and close ports to give advantage in export opportunities.

Concerns for the state dairy industry that were listed by Yonkers include a lack of industry homogeneity; a large range in size of farm dairy operations, and variable resources across the state in terms of soils and support structure. The range in the size of processors also varies from a large cheese plant to the smallest of fluid milk processors.

The dairy industry in Pennsylvania competes regionally in the fluid milk market with New York and the New England states. In manufacturing, competition is more nationally focused on Wisconsin, California and Texas. Internationally, Pennsylvania dairy farmers compete with New Zeland and the European Community.

Robert Reich, Northeast Farm Credit, presented the vision and mission statements prepared by the committee. They are:

VISION STATEMENT

The Pennsylvania Dairy Industry Future Committee aims to unite various individuals and organizations in a common effort to benefit the dairy industry. The committee seeks to develop direction and leadership commitment that will imporve the profitability and the public image of the Pennsylvania dairy industry.

MISSION STATEMENT

The Pennsyvania Dairy Industry Future Committee's purpose is to have all segments of the dairy industry work together to define and advance the interests of the statewide dairy industry. The committee seeks to:

- develop leadership, commitment, and common direction in the Pennsylvania dairy industry
- recognize the interdependence of the various segments of the Pennsylvania dairy industry and the need for collective actions to address common issues and concerns; and
- communicate to the industry and the public at large the importance of the Pennsylvania dairy industry to the Commonwealth.

Reich said the committee concluded that Pennsylvania needs a facilitator or a body that can take items of common interest and project a united position.

Glenn Shirk, Lancaster County dairy agent, said the committee formed the seed for this idea. Where the seed germinates and grows is dependent on the stakeholders in the dairy industry. "We went through the development of the vision, mission and objectives for the committee to try to focus and condense some of the issues," Shirk said. "Hopefully with this done, the impetus will be there to get something done.

"The mechanism to do this is the forum to be held in June at Penn State. The spirit of the forum is to help unify the industry, focus on key issues of public concern, and provide a basis for unified action. The committee was very concerned that this is not just another meeting. We want it to produce action.

In the afternoon, small roundtable discussion groups helped develop several areas of most concern to be part of the forum program. Included in these recommendations were a focus on the business climate in the state that may help processers to locate here. In addition, the development of the dairy industry image, both internally and externally, was placed high on the agenda. And support of the Dairy Map program developed at Penn State for management input for dairy farms was given top priority by the planning group as a program in place that can help dairy farmers immediately.

Stan Curtis, Penn State, chaired the meeting.

Pasture Conference Set

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — In recent years, the more intensive utilization of pasture by dairy and livestock producers has gained in popularity. Like any other agricultural practice, sound management decisions are required for successful pasture managers. The basic of all pasture decisions must be built upon sound agronomic principals.

Pasturing 101 is a pasture conference that will provide a better understanding of pasture management. Topics such as plant growth, improving pasture productivity, alternative species, pasture profits, and quality factors will be addressed. Featured speakers include Dr. Jerry Jung, USDA Pasture Research Lab, State College, Pa.; Dr. Marvin Hall, Penn State forage specialist; Duane Pysher, SCS grassland management specialist; and Paul Craig, Dauphin County extension agent.

Pasturing 101 will be held on Tuesday, March 22, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Pennsylvania Farm Show Building. There is a $15 registration fee.

For additional information, contact your local extension office or call (717) 921-8803.

Specialty Market For Bull Calves Proposed

MT. JOY (Lancaster Co.) — In an attempt to increase the value of Holstein bull calves by increasing demand, Pennfield Feeds has announced its further participation in a program with Domain Inc., a Wisconsin company that developed a feeding program that results in about 75 percent of Holstein steers receiving an USDA Choice grade at 12 to 14 months of age.

The goal of the program is to create household-demand for "Tendrlean," a consistently high quality, low back fat, but well-marbled beef, according to program officials, which included local Pennfield Feeds representatives and Jerry Woodard, a Domain Inc. representative from Ohio.

Dairy producers who become involved in the program must observe several practices in order to maintain their eligibility and have their calves "certified" for use as Tendrlean.

Details of the program were presented last week during a program held at Country Table Restaurant in Mt. Joy. More than 200 people attended, including Lancaster County Extension Service Livestock Agent Chester Hughes.

According to Hughes, he first attended a Tendrlean program sponsored by Pennfield last year, when it was first announced.

Pennfield's involvement with the program has changed since then, with more of a commitment by Pennfield to help with marketing of the resultant beef raised as Tendrlean.

"They put together a good program and made a lot of progress in one year's time," Hughes said.

"Not only have they put together a strict management and feeding program, but they are interested in developing and marketing a branded beef product and working with retailers.

"I've been impressed. Not only are they offering a dairy feeding and management program, but they have taken it all the way to the meat industry, producing and marketing a product."

According to Don Mahlandt, Pennfield representative, the reason Pennfield became interested in the program is because of the potential it has to add stability to area dairy farming operations, which primarily use Holsteins for milking.

Local dairy farms have suffered economically for a number of reasons.

Land values have been inflated tremendously in the past several years as people working in higher-income areas, such as Philadelphia and New Jersey have found it more economical to commute long distances for higher pay.

Furthermore, because of the resultant residential development, farming operations have suffered because of the local taxing structures which result in farmers paying more in local taxes than they receive in local public service.

On the other hand, the strongest demand for local public service — water, sewer, road maintenance, police, fire protection, electricity, etc. — comes from residential development, which, according to studies, creates a demand for higher taxes.

Ultimately, lower farmgate milk prices have decreased over the past 20 years, and flucuated widely.

In an attempt to recoup some economic strength, many dairy operations have opted toward expansion, in order to increase the amount of milk sold per person working. However, logistical and environmental restrictions have likewise been increasing.

Mahlandt said anything that can be done to stabilize local dairy farm cash flow, and thus help improve the outlook for local dairy farm success, is seen as a way of also improving the outlook for Pennfield.

The raw resources included in the Tendrlean program are male Holstein calves, whole shelled corn, and a pellet that Domain Inc. actually provides and Pennfield distributes.

Except for the few Holstein bulls that are used for breeding, there is no special use of the refined genetics in those bull calves.

In effect, the genetic potential in Holstein bull calves is largely wasted.

From the left, Ken Zurin, a Salunga dairyman who has been on the Tendrlean program for more than a year, and Jerry Woodard, representative of Domain Inc., the company offering the Tendrlean certified beef program, show cuts of meat from Holstein steers raised on a whole shelled corn and special pellet diet.

With less genetic variability in the Holstein breed, and the Holstein's genetic trait of producing a well-marbled meat at a younger age, it is believed that lean, tender cuts of meat under the brand name have a chance of winning a good share of the retail beef market; perhaps even boosting it.

However, those who take on the program must be ready to fulfill their obligations to management of the calves the raise for the program, because raising beef steers under the Tendrlean program does require a lot more attention to detail and more care than what is currently the norm.

Key among these restrictions is ensuring and certifying that the bull calf was given a minimum of 6 quarts of quality colostrum within six to 12 hours of birth (Research shows that the effect of colostrum in protecting a calf is really only effective within the first eight hours.); that the naval is dipped in iodine; that they are fed an all-grain, no-forage diet of whole shell corn starting at an animal weight of 350 pounds to finishing weight at about 1,100 to 1,200 pounds; tagging with appropriate ear tags; and giving all the vaccinations and health care that are required or indicated through the program.

Producers who don't follow these management practices are to lose their status as eligible producers for the program, according to Woodard.

He said that the actual Tendrlean program was created in 1959, by Dr. Rebhan, who was given the task of trying to create a program that would make use of Wisconsin's dairy bull calves.

What he did was discover that he could finish a steer on an all-whole-shelled corn diet in a year that would have little backfat and good marbeling. At the time, consumers were not as concerned with the amount of fat in a steak.

Today, the same program has the potential to develop a consistent quality product for the market in enough volume that supply could keep up with demand.

Annual Auction Approaches

DAUPHIN (Dauphin Co.) — On April 2, beginning at 9 a.m., hundreds of people will take to the Gratz Fairgrounds in Northern Dauphin County to participate in the Tenth Annual Consignment Auction.

Dauphin County Conservation District is the sponsor of this large event.

To achieve this goal, the main ingredient necessary for the event's success is consignment items. The District is seeking businesses, dealers, organizations and individuals who are interested in consigning or donating good, quality items for the April event.

The proceeds of the auction benefit the Dauphin County Agriculture and Natural Resources Center and special projects such as scholarships and the public speaking contest.

Articles for sale will be accepted from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. March 28 through March 31 and 9 a.m. through 4 p.m. on April 1.

On-the-road vehicles, including trailers, must have titles with them when they are consigned. A notary will be on duty the day of the sale to transfer titles to new owners.

Last year provided more than 2,500 sales for nearly 1,400 registered buyers. For more information or if you want to consign goods, contact Mervin Adams (717) 692-3076 or Mike Hubler, (717) 921-8100, Russel Cassel (717) 566-3284, or James Lesher (717) 365-3419.

Items should be of good quality and in working order. Items may be refused if they do not meet this criteria. Please note that no household goods will be accepted this year (only selected antiques and collectibles will be considered for sale). For verification on these sale items, please make direct contact with sale coordinator Mervin Adams.

Such items must be preselected and may be refused if not previously approved by a sale coordinator. As in the past sales items may include recreational vehicles and automobiles, farming and industrial equipment, hand and power tools, building materials, lawn-care equipment, and nursery stock, antiques, and much more.

Deadline Nears For Crop Loans

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — "Producers who are interested in obtaining a price support loan on 1993 wheat, oats, rye, barley or honey should do so before March 31," said Richard Troutman, chairman of the Berks County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS).

Loans on corn, grain sorghum, and soybeans are available through May 31, 1994.

County loan rates are $2.73/bushel for wheat, $1.25/bushel for barley, $1.92/bushel for corn, $1.02/bushel for oats, $2.96/CWT for grain sorghum, $1.58/bushel for rye, and $5.12/bushel for soybeans.

Many producers use the Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) price support loan program to obtain interim operating capital.

"To be eligible for CCC price support loans, producers' farms must have been enrolled and in compliance with the applicable annual acreage reduction programs," said the ASCS official.

Producers who are interested in obtaining a CCC price support loan should contact the local ASCS office before March 31 or May 31, as applicable.

Holstein Association Offers ID Options

BRATTLEBORO, Vt. — Known for its color marking identification of animals for about 100 years, the Holstein Association has come up with some new ID options.

Traditionally, sketching and photographing animals have long been required for Association ID, but that may be changing.

Using the eartag as the central device, identification can now feed off on-farm management and record-keeping systems.

Holsteins entered for the Registered or Qualified herdbooks plus those in the Identified Holstein Female program may now be identified in the following two ways:

• Tattoos-Names/Numbers-Tags (TNT) — Holstein Association ID Tag in one ear; herd management number tattooed in the other ear.

• TAG ID — One Holstein Association ID Tag in each ear of the animal.

With on-farm management reliance on tag ID, breeders have a "built-in" identification system for both herd owners and the Association to use.

The eartag options open the door for electronic ID. In the electronic method, "Radio Frequency Identification" (RFID) incorporates an electronic transponder encased in a "button-like" eartag. The electronic eartag is currently under development.

Allflex eartags can be ordered from the Holstein Association.

Herd Owner Requirements

A combination of "two identifiers" is required by the system. One is placed within 10 days of birth. The second placed when the calf is six months old.

Each calf will be identified at birth or shortly after by means that provide accuracy and complements on-farm management. Applying metal eartags at birth or shortly thereafter is recommended. The Association has information on metal "button-like" eartags that can be ordered.

A special herd management number is assigned to each calf for a period of 10 years. The number will be placed on the Holstein Association ID eartag.

Identification at six months or under keeps ID fees at their lowest.

With the herd management number in place, the owner lists this number on the ID application or lists the ear tattoo when using the TNT system.

For more information about the new tag ID options, call the Holstein Association toll-free 1-800-952-5200.

Allflex eartags add identification options for Holstein Association programs and services.

Junior Cattlemen To Hold Beef Skillathon

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Junior Cattlemen will hold its first Beef Skillathon Contest on Saturday, April 9, from 4:30 p.m. to 7:00 p.m. in conjunction with the Pennsylvania Beef Expo here at the Farm Show Complex.

New to the Pennsylvania Beef Expo, the Skillathon will allow junior cattlemen to test their beef industry knowledge and learn important skills needed to be a successful cattle person.

By incorporating project skills and industry basics in a series of mini-learning stations, participants can test their abilities in areas such as identification of beef breeds, retail cuts, feed ingredients, quality assurance practices, food safety, EPD evaluations, and management decision making.

The entire contest will take approximately 35 to 45 minutes to complete, with 5 to 10 minutes at each station.

The competition is open to all members of the Pennsylvania Junior Cattlemen's Association, 4-H, and FFA. Divisions include senior (16 to 21), intermediate (12-15), and junior (8-11).

County, club, or school teams consisting of four members in one division are invited to participate. Division winners will receive leather banners and $50 savings bonds. Winning teams will receive plaques.

For more information and registration, contact Tammy Balthaser at (800) 572-2020 by March 31.

Awards Night Honors Kutztown Young Farmers

KUTZTOWN (Berks Co.) — The Kutztown Young Farmers awarded some of their members for their outstanding achievements.

David and Kathy Schantz of Alburtis received the Community Service Award. David and Kathy have three children — Megan 8, Matheu 6, and Nathan 1. They farm in partnership with David's parents, known as Showtop Farms. They have 350 registered Holstein cows and heifers. They raise grain and forage to feed the cattle.

The Schantz family won this award for services conducted in the community and surrounding area. David is president of Kutztown Young Farmers and the past two years he served as vice president. He chaired many committees this past year, including fundraising for the 1993 state convention held in Reading.

At the same time, David is president of Berks-Lehigh Sire Power district. David belongs to many organizations including the Holstein Association, young farmers, DHIA, Atlantic Breeders Cooperative, Agway Inc., and Oley Valley Fair Assn.

Jon and Holly Stutzman won the Outstanding Young Farmer Award Under 30 at Hesston College in Kansas and obtained his degree in agriculture science at Penn State. Jon is employed by Brubaker Agronomics Consulting Service.

Holly graduated from Penn State as a registered nurse. She has worked in the operating room in Allentown Osteopathic Hospital. They both are Sunday School teachers at Oley Mennonite Church, and Jon served as a council member.

Gerhard and Carol Winkler received the Outstanding Youth Farmer Award Over 30. They live outside of Lyons in a 1780 farm house which they restored. They have three children — Jama 26; Daniel, 24; and David 18.

Carol is a sales person who sells contemporary mirror art for a New York firm.

Gerhard and his brother Rudolph farm 500 acres of corn, wheat, soybeans, and hay. They dry and store all grain in large bins, so they can sell when the prices are up. They also have 35 head of beef cattle. Gerhard is treasurer of Kutztown Young Farmers.

The Kutztown Young Farmers gave other awards at this event. A Donald Reinert Scholarship Fund was started when Donald retired as a Voag teacher. The YF gives an annual scholarship to an outstanding senior in FFA who is continuing an education in agriculture. This year the award went to Monica Queman.

There were other members who were recognized in outstanding corn production. David Schantz, in corn silage, 36 tons per acre; Kathy Schantz in corn yield, 229 bushels per acre; and Kermit Schlegel in corn quality. A special recognition was given to Noel Schlegel for the work he put into a corn test plot, comparing yields, variety, and herbicides.

Engle Honored At Convention

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The American Sheep Industry Association presented Clair C. Engle its Camptender Award at its 1994 Convention in Reno last month.

The Camptender Award recognizes Engle, Penn State associate professor of animal science, for his leadership and service to both the Pennsylvania and the national sheep industries. As sheep extension specialist, Engle's educational responsibilities have centered on a variety of production and commodity value-based marketing programs at regional, state, and multistate levels.

Engle works closely with the Pennsylvania Sheep and Wool Growers Association and allied industries in identifying industry needs and conducting applied studies and educational activities that address these needs. He has conducted several annual Shepherd Symposiums and has participated in regional shows and sales, statewide youth programs, field days, and management workshops.

"Over the years, Clair Engle has been someone the national sheep industry could work with. He's always been willing to cooperate in getting things done at the national and state levels," said E. William Hess, past president of American Sheep Producer's Council (now the American Sheep Industry Association). Hess says Engle was responsible for many ASI-sponsored seminars for the Pennsylvania sheep industry that were both well attended and well organized.

"Receiving this award was made possible through the collaborative efforts of many extension educators and sheep producers. It truly is a honor and something I share with those who have similar goals and aspirations for the Pennsylvania as well as the American sheep industries," said Engle.

Gene Brune, president of the American Sheep Industry Association, right, presents the Camptender Award to Clair C. Engle, Penn State associate professor of animal science.

Atlantic Couples To Compete In Cooperator Contest

SOUTHAMPTON (Bucks Co.) — Nine young farmer couples from Atlantic Dairy Cooperative will compete in the 24th annual Pennmarva Young Cooperator Contest March 23-24 at the Willow Valley Resort and Conference Center in Lancaster.

Sponsored annually by the Pennmarva Dairymen's Federation, the contest recognizes outstanding leadership skills and knowledge of cooperatives. A panel of three judges will select an Outstanding Young Cooperator couple and four runners-up.

The nine contestants, kinown as Young Cooperators, were selected to participate in the program based on their dairy proficiency and community leadership. The couples and the Atlantic districts they represent are Richard and Betsy Moris of Newark, Del., District 4; Thomas and Shirley Krall of Lebanon, District 7; John and Julie Mayer of Taneytown, Md., District 10; and Victor and Carolyn Yoder of Belleville, District 13.

Also, John and Peggy Clowney of Gettysburg, District 16; Lawrence III and Debbie Vickers of Kearneysville, W. Va., District 17; Joseph and Beth Laughlin of Lewistown, District 18; John and Sandy Stemrich of Stillwater, District 19; and Douglas and Deborah Myers of Mount Union, District 20.

Atlantic's Young Cooperator program is designed to educate young farmer members about cooperatives and the dairy industry. The yearlong program, which includes attendance at board of director meetings, the annual delegate meeting and educational seminars, develops leadership among cooperative members, ages 21 through 35.

Two other members of the Pennmarva Dairymen's Federation — Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Cooperative and the Mid-Atlantic Division of Dairymen Inc. — also announce their Outstanding Young Cooperators during the two-day contest.

Storage Tank Meeting Rescheduled

REHRERSBURG (Berks Co.) — State Rep. Sheila Miller, R-Berks County, has rescheduled a public meeting for farmers concerning the DER underground storage tank act and its impact on their operations.

Due to adverse weather conditions, the meeting originally scheduled for March 3 had to be cancelled. The new meeting is to be March 31, at 7 p.m. in the Bethel Community Center.

The Storage Tank and Spill Prevention Act was signed into law in 1989 (Act 32). This law, and the regulations which were adopted as a result of this statute (25 Pa. Code), have created much concern and raised many questions. Section 705 of the regulations deals with the powers and duties of the Underground Storage Tank Indemnificaton Fund, and fees that are associated with the fund.

Ron Gallagher, a representative from the Insurance Department Indemnification Fund board will be on hand to give explanations and answer questions regarding the program.

"Many farmers have been in contact with me since the beginning of the year," said Miller. "I am hoping this meeting will be able to answer many questions and help to identify problem areas in the law and regulations which severely affect agriculture. Once this information is gathered, I will be better able to go to Harrisburg and see what, if anything, can be done to correct this financial drain."

Lancaster Holstein Club Tours Franklin County

The Days milk in a tie stall barn and keep the cows in a free-stall barn with floating separaters and wood shavings.

They have eight Excellent and a number of Very Good cows which displayed tall stature, good feet and legs and mammaries.

They feed a TMR via a conveyor system to the feed bunk in the free stall barn. They previously had a problem with displaced abomasums (DA's), but have apparently solved the problem by lining the bottom of the feed bunk with hay before filling with TMR. Since adopting that practice, they haven't had any more incidence of DAs.

The Days breed for production and type, and their children also get to select the sires for their own cattle. The have a BAA of 108.

At the Tidy-Brook Farm in Greencastle, tour participants got the chance to see eight daughters of the highest indexing cow for protein in the Holstein breed.

On the January Active List, four of the top five cows for PTA protein carried the Tidy-Brook prefix.

One was a Cleitus daughter, another a Blackstar, one Southwind, and the rest out of Emprise Bell Elton, a BLAD carrier.

Two of the top cows for protein are Elton daugthers and are on the farm.

The recessive genetic condition which causes the BLAD disease is a concern for them with selling bulls, but Alan said it is still worth it to have the contracts.

So far, he said they have marketed more than 140 embryoes oversees. He said Japanese buyers had recently been to the farm to look over his cattle.

The 85-cow herd is managed for milk production, but owners Mark and Alan Meyers, said the concentrate mostly on merchandising.

Alan explained how he ended up with Tidy-Brook Sally Ned Boy. He said he was actually trying to get some semen from Blackstar and ended up with Ned Boy, although, at the time, Ned Boy didn't have much of a proof and no information was out on his daughters.

On her first lactation she made 26,650 pounds of milk, 892 pounds fat and 878 pounds of protein.

As a 3-year-old, she made 37,350 pounds of milk, 1,214 pounds of fat and 1,214 pounds of protein in 305 days, ranking second in the state for registered Holsteins for protein production.

When the lactation was extended to 365 days, she came in with the third highest amount of protein with 1,349 pounds, from 41,455 pounds of milk, and 1,379 pounds of fat.

All the bulls go to A.I., with contracts with most U.S. studs and two bulls going to Japan, according to the Meyers. Any bulls that don't get sold into A.I. go locally for on-farm use.

Dixie L. Burris, Membership Development,
Call 1-800-DHI-TEST for information.
Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association
DHIA Service Center, Orchard Road, University Park, PA 16802

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The smart choice for today's dairyman who is looking to the future is AM-PM testing through the Pa. Dairy Herd Improvement Association (Pa.DHIA).

AM-PM testing works because dairymen, using this method of testing cow and herd production, save time and money, and they also receive the same management records as the dairymen who use 2X DHI testing.

In addition, the AM-PM testing records are official with some breed associations (if a technician is present to record the data).

For AM-PM plans, two milking times must be recorded — the time of the actual milking that is to be weighed and tested, and the time of milking just previous.

These two times are recorded in order to make proper calculations for estimated sample-day yields and percentages.

The time of milking and the amount of time between milkings influences factors which are used, along with measured milk weights and the percentages of milk components, to make sample-day calculations.

The way the program works, on a practical basis, is that the AM-PM program requires a technician to test one milking per month.

Every other month, the technician switches from testing the morning milking to testing the evening milking (thus the AM-PM name).

When the technician actually comes to test the herd, what is recorded are milk weights, management data, and the previous milking time. The more accurate the information provided the technician, the more accurate the report the dairyman gets and can put to use.

On test day, milk samples also are taken and sent to Pa.DHIA's Central Milk Testing Laboratory for analysis.

Results of the tested milk samples, along with the other information gathered during test day, are processed through the Dairy Records Processing Center.

The milk, fat and protein content values reported are factored to represent 24-hour production.

The main advantage of this type of test is that it saves the dairyman money, and it takes up less of his time.

Those interested in AM-PM testing should ask their technician or region manager.

For more information on this type of testing, call (800) 344-8378.

Other Testing Programs

Included with Pa.DHIA AM-PM testing (Code 31) are three variations — DHIA Milk-only (Code 33); DHIA Milk-Only AM-PM (Code 34); and DHIR AM-PM.

To participate, contact Pa.DHIA at (800) 344-8378.

Herds participating in any of these testing variations have to follow certain test procedures.

Milk weights and samples are to be obtained for all cows on each test day (this is as prescribed in NCDHIP Rule 4), with the exceptions that a milking interval recorder is not required, and for those enrolled in "DHIA Milk-only," no milk samples are taken for component testing.

All herd data is collected by DHIA field technicians. Those using Milk-only are to follow the same guidelines.

As far as any special procedures or data required, bulk tank shipment milk weights must be reported by the producer (as described in the NCDHIP rules, Appendix 2).

Those wishing copies of the NCDHIP Rules can call the state office, order through the gray manual, "Understanding Your DHIA Report," or by ordering through your technician on the next test day.

How Does Your Herd Compare?

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — These data are calculated using information pulled from Pennsylvania DHIA's mainframe computer each week. It is a one-week summary representing approximately one-fourth of the herds on test, as they are tested monthly.

These data are valuable from a business management standpoint and can be used for comparing your operations to the averages from about one-fourth of the herds across the state.

The Longer You Wait To Control Quackgrass, The More It Will Cost You.

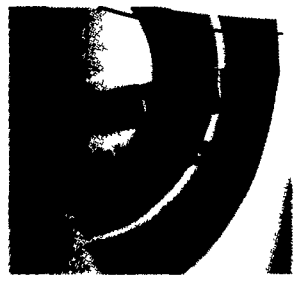
A wise man once said, "He who hesitates is lost." That's why it makes sense to stop quackgrass early with Roundup® herbicide.

WAITING CAN COST YOU MONEY.

Rescue treatments can cost up to twice as much as Roundup. Even then, they don't deliver the same complete, consistent control.

WAITING CAN COST YOU YIELD.

If you wait until your corn is up to control quackgrass, you've already lost yield. In fact, tests show that waiting to control quackgrass can cost you up to 14 bushels per acre. That's because quackgrass is an aggressive competitor for soil moisture and plant nutrients.



DON'T WAIT UNTIL IT'S TOO LATE.

This year, stop quackgrass before it robs you of yield and profit. Ask your dealer for the early, economical control of Roundup herbicide.

Always read and follow label for Roundup herbicide. Roundup® is a registered trademark of Monsanto Company © 1994 Monsanto Company RUP-4 2082

Floral Designs By Carolyn Martin Incorporate Freeze-Dried, Latex, Parchment, Silk, Dried Materials

LOU ANN GOOD

LITITZ (Lancaster Co.) — Walk into Carolyn Weaver's home any day and you will find strawberries, raspberries, brussels sprouts, broccoli, carrots, artichokes, and pomegranates on her kitchen counter.

These picture-pefect vegetables don't wilt, rot or mold. Take a whiff of the aroma of what smells like freshly picked berries, and you will know that these are not artificial reproductions. They are the real thing — freeze-dried, which is an increasingly popular method of preserving vegetables and fruits for display.

Carolyn does not freeze dry the produce, but she does artfully arrange it with dried, latex, parchment, and silk flowers and greenery.

The arrangement on the entrance door to the Weaver home reflects the season.

Carolyn Weaver uses freeze-dried, latex, dried, silk, and parchment materials in her floral arrangements.

Latex is also a fairly new medium used for flowers. The latex flowers are quite realistic in appearance but have a rubbery texture, which makes them extremely durable.

A versatile designer, Carolyn creates country, formal, traditional, Victorian, and oriental-line arrangements.

Although she does arrangements in all sizes, Carolyn prefers large arrangements as they are more eye-catching and dramatic than the miniature and medium-sized ones.

She uses brass, pewter, glass, wicker basket, grapevine, elm, crocks, and ceramic containers.

Carolyn's expertise in flower arrangement began as a teen-ager when she took an evening flower arranging workshop at Stauffers of Kissel Hill. A year later, she applied for a job there and was employed with the understanding that she would stand behind the flower designer for on-the-spot training.

Soon Carolyn was doing Williamsburg arrangements, pressed flowers under glass, and free designs.

After five years, Carolyn quit her job to devote full time to raising the three children that she and her husband, Ron, had. Matthew is now 19, Jennifer, 16, and Andrew, 14.

Kitchen Tour Offers Food, Decorating, Floral Ideas

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — Living space is the cherished possession of Ken and Deb Weaver in their 1833 farmhouse in Rothsville. It allows the family plenty of room for antique heirlooms, for a baseball field and four-wheeling for the kids, for bountiful floral and vegetable gardens, and a place for friends and family to gather.

Now the Weavers are opening their farmhouse for the seventh annual Kitchen Kapers Tulip Tour on April 25. Each of the seven homes open for the tour will be decorated by a florist and a chef from an area restaurant will prepare food specialties for guests to sample.

The homes on the tour are in a variety of styles, but the Weavers' is the only farm house included.

The original deed of the log house is framed in the Weavers' family room, but the house has undergone many changes and additions since its 1833 beginnings. The most recent is the sunroom and master bath that the Weavers added in 1990.

After Deb's grandfather purchased the property, Deb's parents raised the family in it, then built an adjacent home, and turned the farmhouse into an upstairs and downstairs for Deb's grandmother and a great aunt.

Ten years ago, Deb and her husband moved into the farmhouse and changed it back to a one-unit house in which to raise their two children who are now 10 and 14 years old.

The Weavers removed the wall that had been installed to close in the stairway when the house was turned into apartments. They installed a new oak stairway that opens to the foyer, where a handcrafted grandfather clock sets.

The sun room is the perfect spot for Deb to start plants and seedlings to transplant outdoors.

"The clock really belongs to my parents, but it was too tall to fit in their house," Deb said.

The home's furnishings are a reflection of the values upon which the Weavers pattern their lifestyle — family and church. It is from those two sources that most of the heirlooms and collectibles are derived. A treadle sewing machine and a collection of kitchen utensils from a grandmother, a quilt and a dining room table from a great aunt. There are many pieces, such as a hand-crafted cradle, a Zook doll, and original paintings purchased from the Church of the Brethren Relief Auction, an annual fundraiser to help those suffering from natural disaster.

Stories are handed down with many of these pieces. For example, Deb said of her great aunt's table, "The table is large enough to serve 13 guests, but my great aunt insisted that 13 must never sit at the table, for it would be unlucky."

Although there has been no effort to restore the home to its original decor, the Weavers inadvertedly purchased a sideboard with a carved design from a neighborhood sale. When they brought it home, Deb's mother told her, "Grandma had one just like that."

Old glass was used in the windows of the family room that Deb and her husband redecorated. Her basket collection now hangs from the beams. Ken collects Coca-Cola memorabilia and Winross trucks that are displayed. Deb has a preference for cookie cutters.

A ladder hangs horizonally above the kitchen table. From it hangs dried perennials and herbs that Deb grows herself and dries from her many flower gardens. An antique church pew from the Germantown Church is placed in front of a large bay window, where cooking utensils and collectibles are artfully arranged. A quilted feedbag from Millport Roller Mills hangs on a door.

The sunroom is the perfect spot for Deb to begin seeds for her flower gardens. "I have so much invested in trays and seeds that I don't think I save any money but I love doing it," Deb said.

Since Deb's grandfather purchased the 19-acre farm in 1952, it has been subdivided. Two acres plus the ground surrounding the house remain with the Weavers' property.

On the day of the tour, the Weaver home will be decorated by floral arrangements by Ken's cousin's wife, Carolyn Weaver. She combines freeze-dried vegetables with dried, silk, parchment, and latex flowers and greens.

Dried perennials and herbs hang from the old church ladder the Weavers purchased.

On the sideboard is an arrangement by Carolyn Weaver who uses freeze-dried fruits, parchment, and dried materials in it.

The family room is the place for many family heirlooms such as the treadle sewing machine, the wooden ironing board used as a coffee table, the crib quilt made by a great aunt, and baskets and other collectibles.

A chef from Bloomfield Square Restaurant in Lititz will serve refreshments in the kitchen.

The Ephrata Woman's Club holds the tour as a fund raiser for local charities. Tickets can be purchase in advance for $6 by sending a stamped business-size self-addressed envelope to Esther Minnich, 1141 Joann Ave., Ephrata, PA 17522. On the day of the tour tickets will be sold for $7 at the Ephrata Church of the Brethren from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Arts, crafts, and recipes will also be available for purchase at the church but not at individual homes. For more information, call Ms. Minnich at (717) 733-1075.

The following homes will also be open for the tour.

• Frederick and Peggy Schmidt 524 Ridge Ave. Ephrata. A Tudor Chalet built in 1978 has a parquet floor in foyer. The living room has a fireplace with an unusual carved mantel and an antique hand-carved organ. The room to the left is an office-sunroom with custom built cabinetry and a copper planter. The formal dining room extension lends an artist's view of the outside world. The double-paneled blue-gray patina kitchen has a full-length double door pantry. Downstairs is a cathedral ceiling in a completely enclosed glass room with a swimming pool. In the summer, the ceiling opens to let the outdoors in. Jim Hummel's plants, design, Carolyn continued to dabble in it for her own home decor and for those of friends. Continual interest in her arrangements inspired Carolyn to begin to hold open houses in her own home about four times a year.

At her open houses, she has numerous arrangements displayed on the walls, table tops, and floors.

The opportunity to see arrangements in their setting helps people visualize what the arrangement might look like in their own home.

Those who attend the shows may either purchase items on display or request a custom made design. Some bring along wallpaper and draperies samples, containers, and measurements to order coordinating arrangements.

To prepare for these shows requires a lot of time and materials. Several years ago the Weavers built a spacious two-story home with a three-bay garage. The garage is heated so that Carolyn can work and store the supplies in it.

About four years ago, Carolyn started working part time for a wholesale flower business doing repeat designs. Recently, the owner's health problems resulted in the business closing down.

While Carolyn contemplated buying her former employer's business or expanding her own, she is cautious to do so because she does not want to become tied down to running a business.

She said, "I still need to be a mother and housewife. Doing something like this on the side brings a lot of satisfaction. It's a nice break from everyday chores and something I enjoy doing."

Carolyn straightens the bird house tucked in a door arrangement.

Carolyn's arrangements will be featured at the Rothsville home of Ken and Deb Weaver during the Kitchen Kapers Tulip Tour, sponsored by the Ephrata Woman's Club on April 25. (See the kitchen tour article in this section for more details).

This is the first year that Carolyn's work has been included in the tour. Although her own home is not included in the Kitchen Kapers Tour this year, she will hold her own open house at 1230 E. Newport Rd., Lititz, on May 7, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. No appointment is needed on this day to view Carolyn's work.

Carolyn often changes the floral arrangements in her home by inserting materials suitable for the season.

Television: How Much Is Too Much For Children?

NEWARK, Del. — Television, when properly used, can stimulate a child's educational and creative activity. It can suggest new ways of seeing and understanding life, and may help improve vocabularies.

But how much is too much? The average U.S. household has at least one television set turned on for about 7 hours each day. The American Academy of Pediatrics recommends limiting a child's viewing to one or two supervised hours a day.

"Because very young children do not think in the same way adults do and lack the maturity and experience of adults, they shouldn't have unlimited access to the television," says Maria Pippidis, Cooperative Extension home economics agent at the University of Delaware.

Pippidis says children cannot make objective evaluations, cannot form logical conclusions and cannot sort out relevant data about the things they see on television.

If you are concerned about your family's viewing habits, Pippidis suggests keeping a log of how many hours children spend in front of the TV each day.

"Decide how much programming you are willing to let a child watch," she says. "Then read through the television section on Sunday evening and make your selections for the coming week.

"Watch with your children so you can discuss the programs and relate them to your own lives," she adds. "Discussions led by an adult can dramatically improve the value of almost any program."

Use television as a springboard for projects, find places on a map, explore nature or write down your child's dictated story.

Candy-Making Time

It's almost Easter and time to prepare the candy to fill Easter baskets. Candy is getting easier and easier to prepare with the advent of the microwave and coating chocolate, which eliminates much of the mess and time required to make homemade candy.

PEANUT BUTTER FUDGE

4 tablespoons butter
2 teaspoons vanilla
½ pound peanut butter
2 cups brown sugar
1 cup canned milk
2 cups marshmallow cream

Boil butter, brown sugar, and milk for 5 minutes. Add peanut butter and marshmallow cream. Cool 5 minutes. Add vanilla and beat 2 minutes. Pour into buttered pan.

Port Treverton Reader

PEANUT BRITTLE

2 cups sugar
1 cup light corn syrup
1 cup water
2 cups shelled unroasted, unsalted peanuts
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon butter
1 teaspoon baking soda

Combine sugar, corn syrup, and water in a 2-quart bowl. Microwave 30 to 35 minutes on high or until a small amount dropped in very cold water forms a soft ball. Stir in peanuts and salt. Microwave 9-12 minutes on high or until a small amount dropped in very cold water separates into hard brittle threads. Immediately stir in butter and baking soda. Mix well. Spread evenly and thinly on a large buttered cookie sheet. Cool, lifting occasionally with spatula to prevent sticking. Break into pieces when cool. Makes 1½ pounds.

Candy molds enable cooks to turn out Easter candy that appears store-bought.

Washington State is sponsoring the second annual Search for Granny Smith Contest. The winning Granny will represent Washington apples at health fairs and retail promotions from coast to coast during the next 12 months.

If you would like to nominate a favorite Granny, describe her qualifications in 100 words or less, enclose a photo and send to P.O. Box 18, Wenatchee, WA 98807. Entries must be received by April 15.

Regional winners will be selected and flown to Yakima, Washington for the final competition in mid-May.

Here is a recipe from the apple growers of Washington that you are sure to love.

LOWFAT APPLE RHUBARB NAPOLEON

Layering fillo pastry with an egg white mixture, rather than the usual melted butter, and substituting whipped cottage cheese for heavy cream, reduces the fat content of this impressive dessert to a mere 11% of calories. Moreover, every mouthful is as delicious as it is virtuous.

Pastry:
1 extra-large egg white
1 teaspoon vegetable oil
2 tablespoons sugar
2 tablespoons finely ground walnuts
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
6 12x17 sheets fillo (thawed, if frozen)

Filling:
3 cups chopped fresh or frozen rhubarb
1¼ cups sugar
2 cups lowfat whipped cottage cheese (substitute small curd cottage cheese, if necessary)
1 Granny Smith apple
Confectioners' sugar

Prepare pastry: Heat oven to 350 degrees. Spray two cookie sheets with vegetable cooking spray. In blender or food processor combine egg white and oil; blend or process 10 to 15 seconds or until well mixed. In small bowl, combine sugar, walnuts, and cinnamon, stirring to blend.

Place one sheet fillo on clean surface; brush lightly all over with egg white mixture. Sprinkle with 2 teaspoons sugar mixture, then top with a second sheet of fillo; brush on egg white mixture again. Repeat brushing and sprinkling with remaining 4 sheets of fillo, stacking evenly. Cut stacked fillo into 16 3x3½ -inch pieces. Transfer pieces to cookie sheet and bake 10 to 12 minutes or until lightly browned. Set aside to cool.

Meanwhile, prepare filling: In saucepan, combine rhubarb and 1 cup sugar; cook over medium-low heat, stirring occasionally, 20 to 25 minutes or until rhubarb is soft and chunky. Set aside to cool. In blender or food processor, combine cottage cheese and remaining ¼ cup sugar; blend or process until cheese is smooth; set aside.

Just before serving, core apple and cut lengthwise into 24 slices. In microwave-safe dish, cover apple slices with waxed paper; microwave 35 to 45 seconds on high or until softened; cool slices. To assemble each napoleon, place one piece fillo on each serving plate; top with about 2 tablespoons cheese mixture, 1½ tablespoons rhubarb mixture, and 2 slices apple. Layer 2 more pieces of fillo and filling ingredients. Top finally with a piece of fillo, sprinkle with confectioners' sugar and serve.

OPERA FUDGE

2 cups granulated sugar
½ cup milk
½ cup light cream
1 tablespoon light corn syrup
½ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon butter
1 teaspoon vanilla
¼ cup chopped nuts or candied cherries, chopped

Butter sides of heavy 2-quart saucepan. In it combine sugar, milk, cream, corn syrup, and salt. Cook and stir over medium heat until sugar dissolves and mixture comes to boiling point. Cook to soft ball stage (236 degrees). Immediately remove from heat. Cool to lukewarm without stirring, add butter and vanilla. Beat vigorously until mixture becomes thick and starts to lose gloss. Quickly stir in cherries or nuts and pour into buttered shallow pan or platter. Mark while still warm, cut when firm.

VANILLA FUDGE

1½ pounds granulated sugar
½ cup light corn syrup
1¼ cup canned milk

DOUBLE PEANUT BUTTER CLUSTERS

6 ounces semi-sweet chocolate morsels
½ cup creamy peanut butter
1 cup peanuts, roasted with skins

Melt chocolate morsels and peanut butter in top of double boiler over hot (not boiling) water. Stir until blended. Add peanuts, stirring to coat. Drop from a teaspoon onto waxed paper. Chill until set. Yield: 24 clusters.

TURTLES

14-ounce can sweetened condensed milk
1½ pounds coating chocolate, melted
Pecan halves

Pour sweetened condensed milk into double boiler; cover. Cook over boiling water for 1½ hours or until thick and light-colored. Beat until smooth; chill. Pour a small amount of melted chocolate into candy papers; top with pecan half. Spoon a small amount of caramel on pecan. Cover with melted chocolate. Let stand until firm. Yield: 36 to 40 servings.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

As usual, they could be heard before they were seen.

In fact, in the bright, glaring sunlight of early morning, finding the bodies to match the voices took some squinting and shading of the eyes.

Bu, there they were. Canada geese. High, high up in the bright blue heavens, several large flocks winged overhead, their classic V-formation purposefully headed due North. their haunting honking sang through the clear air of what had instantly become an even more beautiful day than it already was.

It truly was all I could do to not jump up and down with glee, right there outside the calf barn. With regular snowfalls still burying early shoots of greening grass, crocus buds still a dream, and not even an early, pre-season dandelion bloom in a sheltered, sunny corner, these hundreds of geese flapping high overhead trumpeted the clarion call of promise.

SPRING!

Has there ever been a year in our recent memories when spring has been more welcome? And no one could be more ready than farmers, chomping at the bit to start hauling manure, tilling ground, tucking seeds and plants into the ground and replenishing winter-depleted supplies of llivestock feeds.

But the large flocks of geese passing overhead on an early March morning were way behind the first geese of the season. A pair had arrived on our pond early on a mid-February Sunday morning, a different pair we believe than the two which raised goslings in the meadow the last several years.

After some initial comings and goings to the meadow, they seem to have adopted our accommodations. Their north-bound relatives flapping overhead stirred them up a bit, but not soo much that they took wing and followed.

"Those aren't locals; those are the real thing," I exhalted to The Farmer, who finished feeding the cows just in time to watch the last wave of geese disappeaing over the north ridge.

"Hope they know what they're doing," he worried. "And that they don't get wherever they're headed and find all the food covered with snow and ice."

Last week was full of wildlife on the move. As they have for two previous springs, a pair of colorful wood ducks splashed down on the little wood duck nest in one corner of that pond. Though the female had in both prior years repeadtedly "shopped" the wooden nest box, it never completely suited her. Redwing blackbirds that instead moved in were less particular. Then we learned that a wood duck nest should be outfitted with a bed of wood chips and a slanted "stairway" of wire for the ducklings' use to climb out after hatching. We've made proper renovations in hopes of their approval this season.

Less welcome was the raccoon that wandered into the yard early one morning, then settled into a corner of the basement porch. A wild raccoon getting that up close and personal is highly suspect of being rabid. To protect our cattle and pets — and us — against that possibility, we reluctantly disposed of it.

On the other hand, I would have opened the door for another returning visitor last week, if there had been the slightest chance that offer might have been accepted. Huddled on one small, open patch of grass, bewildered and bedraggled under the sleet pelting down, was our first robin of the season.

Oh, by the way, in little more than 24 hours after we watched those waves of geese head North, we spied at least half as many headed back South.

Beware those teasing signs of Spring.

And don't pack away the Long Johns just yet.

Prevent Food Poisoning

NAZARETH (Northampton Co.) — A woman who was eight months pregnant with twins went into labor as a result of being one of several holiday party attendees stricken with food poisoning. Luckily, both babies were large enough and developed enough to be healthy. If this would have happened earlier in the pregnancy, or if the babies would have been smaller, the outcome may have been tragic.

Do you serve food to pregnant women? Do you understand food safety practices enough to prevent this from happening at your establishment or at one of your family events?

Will you be helping at your local fire company, church or social organization with food for a dance, a pancake breakfast, ham dinner, or dinner for families after a funeral? Do you handle food where you work? Do you know what temperature food in the crock pot must be kept to prevent food poisoning? What is the temperature that most bacteria grow the fastest? What is the danger zone? Do you have a dial pocket thermometer and do you use it regularly to make sure the food you are serving is out of the Danger Zone? At home, do you sue meat thermometers to ensure adequate cooking temperatures? Do you know how to prevent food poisoning?

The average cost of an outbreak of food borne illness to the organization or business involved is more than $75,000. If there is a death, the costs often bankrupt the establishment or organization. You can also be sued if someone contracts food ppisoning at your home.

Food poisoning can be prevented. Education is the key. If you supervise food service workers, you and your workers need to know how to be safe food handlers. When was the last time you, your supervisory staff, and your workers attended a food safety workshop?

Because of the demand, Northampton County Extension will be offering two types of food safety programs for food handlers in the Lehigh Valley. "Keep It Safe," a basic food safety workshop, will be held again this spring for food handlers for the low cost of $10. There will be three 3-hour workshops held March 14 and 15, in the Lehigh Valley. All participants will receive a dial pocket thermometer, a participation certificate, and a packet of information to share with co-workers. These workshops will be similar to those held in the past two years. If you attended one in the last two years, maybe you can persuade a co-worker to attend this year. If you would like more in-depth training, come to the food sanitation certification course.

The National Restaurant Association's ServSafe Foodservice Sanitation Certification Course will be held April 11 and 18 from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. and April 24 from 8 a.m. to 12 p.m.

Pre-registration is required for both programs! Contact the Northampton County Cooperative Extension office at (610)-746-1970 for registration materials.

No Fail

2½ cups granulated sugar
2 tablespoons butter
1 cup canned milk

Mix together sugar, butter, and milk and boil for 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat and let set 5 minutes. Add:

2½ cups graham cracker crumbs
1 cup peanut butter
1¾ cups confectioners' sugar
12-ounce package chocolate chips

CLARK BARS

½ cup water
1 cup white Karo syrup
1¾ cups granulated sugar

TRUFFLES

5 tablespoons unsalted butter
1 egg yolk
⅓ cup sifted confectioners' sugar
3 squares semi-sweet chocolate, melted and cooled
1 teaspoon vanilla
⅓ cup finely chopped nuts or coconut

Cream butter with egg yolk, gradually add sugar, blending well. Stir in chocolate and vanilla. Chill until firm enough to handle. Shape into 1-inch balls. Roll in nuts. Store in refrigerator. Makes about 30.

ANISE CANDY

2 cups sugar
1 cup light corn syrup
½ cup water
¼ cup red food coloring, optional
1 teaspoon oil of anise

Combine sugar, corn syrup, and water in 2-quart heavy saucepan. Stir well and cook over low heat, stirring until sugar dissolves.

Continue cooking at a fairly low boil, without stirring, to the soft crack stage (280 degrees). If sugar crystals form on sides of pan, wipe them off. Cook slowly during the last few minutes to avoid darkening of candy syrup.

Remove from heat; add food color and oil of anise, stirring no more then necessary to mix.

Pour into an oiled 13x9x2-inch pan. Candy should be in a thin layer. As it starts to cool, mark with knife in bite-size pieces. Keep scoring with knife until candy holds its shape.

Cool completely; remove from pan and wipe any excess oil from block of candy. Break in pieces. Place in airtight container with waxed paper between layers and store in a cool place. Makes about 130 pieces or 1½ pounds.

ANSWER — Ada Mothes, Renick, W.Va., wanted a recipe for Maryland Crab Soup with vegetables, broth, and a tomato base — not milk. Thanks to Josephine Matenus, Dallas, for sending a recipe.

Crab Soup

1 pound beef shin, bone in
3 quarts water
1 large onion, chopped
2 large stalks celery, chopped
1 pound can tomatoes
1 tablespoon salt
¼ teaspoon black pepper
⅛ teaspoon cayenne pepper
10-ounce package frozen mixed vegetables
1 pound crab meat
½ pound claw crab meat

Combine beef shin, water, onion, celery, tomatoes, salt, pepper, and cayenne pepper and simmer, covered, until meat is tender, about 3 hours. Add remaining ingredients and simmer, covered, until vegetables are done. Makes about 5 quarts soup.

ANSWER — Janet Beckdel, Mill Hall, wanted to find ways to use lupine beans, which resemble lima beans with thicker skin. Thanks to Susan Rzucidlo, Landenberg, who writes that lupine beans can be dried and ground into flour and mixed with other flours to make pasta and bread. The beans are very high in protein, calcium, and fiber. They can also be soaked and eaten, pop the beans out their skins and use them in salads like a chick pea.

ANSWER — Lloyd Decker, New Fairfield, Ct., wanted a recipe for Penkelwurst, a northern Germany dish that is usually served with kale, smoked ham, and potatoes. Thanks to Rosemary Van DeWeert, Grenesco, N.Y., for sending a recipe.

Penkelwurst

2 pounds kale
6 to 8 medium-sized potatoes
1 pound metworst or ham slices

Strip, wash, and cut up the kale very finely. Boil kale in a little boiling water with salt, for about 40 minutes. Add peeled and cut potatoes, sausage, and enough water to prevent burning. Boil for about 30 minutes. Remove sausage from pan; mash remainder. Serve with metworst.

New Food Labels List Serving Sizes That Makes Sense

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has established new nutrition labels, called Nutrition Facts, which will be on most packaged foods by May 8.

"Some foods in the supermarket already carry the new label, and you will see more appear as the May deadline for compliance approaches," says Dr. J. Lynne Brown, associate professor of food science in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"The labels should help consumers better understand the contents of packaged foods," says Brown. "For example, how often have you tried to compare the fat content of two types of cookies using the old nutrition label? A serving was listed as so many cookies, but the nutrition label listed ounces. How many cookies made an ounce? The label didn't tell you."

The new regulations require serving sizes to be listed in household units if possible. Household units are cups and parts of cups, tablespoons and teaspoons. "Serving sizes for breakfast cereals, for instance, soon will be listed as cups or parts of cups," says Brown. "The household measure always will be followed by the gram weight, such as, Serving Size 1/2 cup (114g)."

Serving sizes for cookies, large pretzels, muffins, sliced breads, slices of cheese and similar foods will be listed in units such as two cookies, one muffin or one slice of cheese.

Some foods will continue to list serving sizes in ounces. Items that use this option may include pickles, shellfish, whole fish and fish fillets. "However, labels on these foods will give the consumer an idea of how many pieces make a serving," says Brown. "A serving of frozen shrimp might be listed as 3 ounces (84 g/about 5 shrimp). The label on a jar of dill pickles will list the serving size in ounces but also will indicate its equivalence in pickles."

Serving sizes listed on cakes, frozen pizzas, pies and other foods that are served as fractions of a whole also will be easier to understand. "FDA has defined consumer-friendly fractions that the agency hopes all consumers can understand or easily visualize," says Brown. "You will soon see more labels on frozen pies and cakes that list the serving size as 1/6, 1/5 or 1/8 of the whole."

Frozen dinners and main-dish products, such as single-serving microwaveable spaghetti, soon will list serving sizes as the amount in the container. "FDA requires this if the food can be eaten in one sitting," says Brown.

Consumers who buy foods sold by weight-control programs and not through regular supermarkets will not see a change in serving size measurements. "Weight-control programs that sell specially portioned food only through their programs do not have to use serving sizes that conform to the new FDA regulations," says Brown.

Tour Horse Farms On March 26

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

DENVER (Lancaster Co.) — Brook Sweigart-Reider was only two years old when she started riding and showing horses. She grew up on a horse farm, her days filled with traveling to shows and competitions all over the East coast.

She even rode a horse down the aisle when she married Rodney Reider in an outdoor wedding.

Now, she is twenty-something and doing what she loves best — working with horses and children.

Brook is a trainer and instructor. She trains performance horses and gives equitation lessons to beginners to adults.

Brook still has her favorite horse, Vision's Mystic Ray, that she got 19 years ago. Raymond, as he is nicknamed, carried Brook to multiple championships. For three years in a row, Brook was named the state 4-H senior equitation champion when she was a teenager. Now, many of Brook's students ride him and win awards.

Some of the students have their own horses. Some don't own a horse but they want to learn to ride or show horses. If they don't own their own horse, students can use one of the Sweigart's horses. A variety of breeds are housed in the stables. These include Saddlebreds, national show horses, Morgans, Walking horses, and Hackney ponies.

Students are members of a club called Top Hats and Derbys. Some are also members of 4-H horse clubs. Usually the students board their horses at Sweigart Stables in Denver.

She operates her business on her grandfather's farm. At one time, he raised about 50 Shetland ponies. Later he switched to Hackney ponies. Brook's husband and her parents Galen and Marlene assist her with the business and take care of the horses stabled on it.

The Sweigarts are proud that their farm is much more than a place for horses.

"We are a family-oriented barn where whole families come to enjoy it," Marlene said.

The Sweigarts often plan picnics, parties, hayrides, roller skating, and other activities for families to participate.

While the boys and girls ride horses, the parents watch or help out by loading and unloading horses and by providing transportation to the shows.

This past winter, kids missed a lot of school because of snow. On these days many of them found ways to get to Sweigart stables.

"It looked like a regular day camp here," said Marlene. She loves kids and she said her daughter Brook is really good with kids.

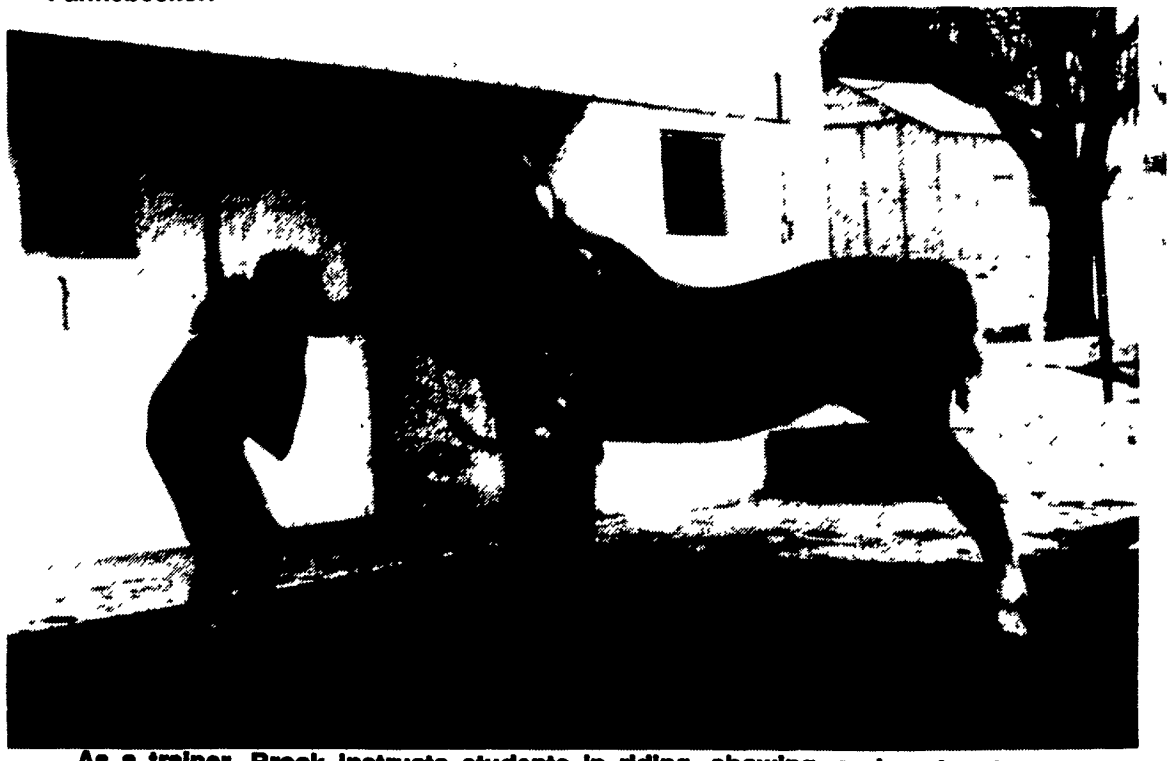
(Turn to Page B12)

Brook Sweigart-Reider believes children should have fun with horses. Here, she holds the halter of Vision's Mystic Ray while the riders take turns sliding off the back of the horse. Sitting on the horse are Katy Dunlap, Corinne Fultz, and Lisa Pannebecker.



As a trainer, Brook instructs students in riding, showing, and performing.

4-H Farm Credit Awards Presented

Keystone Farm Credit continued its tradition of honoring several junior and senior 4-H members in Montgomery County for outstanding achievement in their livestock project work during the past year.

Glen Wismer and Dean Shollenberger of Farm Credit in Silverdale presented trophies to the 4-H members at the Montgomery County extension board annual meeting held recently at Rhone Poulanc-Rohrer in Collegeville.

In the Rabbit/Cavy category, Richard West (junior) of Royersford and Tabitha Landis (senior) of Salford took top honors, while Kevin Horvath of Phoenixville won in the (senior) steer division. Dairy goat honors went to Megan Sly (junior) of Gilbertsville and Paul Plummer (senior— of Chalfont. The dairy cow divisions were won by Sean Hallowell (junior) of Bechtelsville and Amy Plummer of Chalfont (senior). Isaac Garges (senior) and Jacob Garges (junior) of Telford had the distinction of winning in both the swine and sheep categories.

In addition to receiving their own trophy, the members will have their names engraved on a permanent plaque on display case at the 4-H Center. County agent Nancy Kadwill expressed appreciation to Keystone Farm Credit for their support over the years and thanked them for recognizing the positive efforts of today's young people.

The Montgomery County 4-H programs are open to all boys and girls ages 8-19. There are many projects and clubs for non-animal related areas such as model rockets, ceramics, crafts, sewing, gardening, shooting sports, public speaking and a host of other interest areas.

In the animal category, there are projects in horses, horse science (for those youngsters who don't own a horse but want to learn about them), dog care and obedience, sheep, swine, rabbits, cavies, dairy cows and goats, Seeing Eye Puppies, pet care and beef. Ownership of an animal is not always mandatory.

For more information on 4-H, call (610) 489-4315.

4-H Model Horse Club Starts

The Montgomery County 4-H program announces the start of a new 4-H Model Horse Club. The club is open to all youth ages 8-18 (as of January 1, 1994) who enjoy model horses and sharing their interest with others.

All interested youth and their parent/guardian(s) are invited to attend the next meeting, which will be held Thursday, March 24, at 7:30 p.m. at the 4-H Center, located on Route 113, one mile south of Route 73 near Skippack.

According to 4-H Coordinator Nancy Kadwill, working with models can be an enjoyable way for youth to learn about horses without having to own a live horse. Tentative plans for the club include having model shows, a trip to the Breyer factory and the Devon Horse Show, making equipment and tack for the models, completing their project books, and exhibiting at the annual 4-H Fair.

Along with learning about horse management, members will learn about caring for their models and the investment value of a model collection.

Ownership of a horse or model horse is not required.

For more information on the club or about 4-H, call (610) 489-4315.

it to the show or depend on the Sweigarts to take it to the show.

Students take lessons one to three times a week, depending on how much they want to do.

Some kids take lessons and go home. Others stay and help with the work.

The kids like to play games on horse back.

On March 26, you can visit Sweigart Stables and five other show stables in the Lancaster County area.

In the arena, visitors can watch students riding horse during lessons, watch horses being trained, see the different breeds and styles of riding. At Sweigart Stables, a blacksmith will shoe horses while people watch.

Last year more than 500 people visited the stables during the annual tour. This year, more is expected. It's a good time for visitors to determine if they would like to take horse riding lessons or buy a horse.

The tour is self-guided. Visitors may travel from barn to barn between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. Admission is free.

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Sixteen-year-old John M. Noland Jr. is the winner of a registered quarter horse yearling filly in a contest sponsored by the Pennsylvania 4-H Horse Program Development Committee.

He was given the horse during a ceremony at the annual Winning Ways Clinic held recently at Penn State's Ag Arena.

John was one of 140 4-H members, age 13 to 16 years, who entered the contest. Contest rules require the winning 4-H member to enroll the filly in the 4-H Horse Production Project in 1994 and 1995.

The project is designed to teach 4-H members about breeding, production, and management practices with young horses. Although the majority of the horse's training would be his responsibility, John says he will call on his parents, sisters, and 4-H leaders for assistance.

Donated by Jim and Lynn Anderson of Acorn Creek Farm in Evans City, the prize filly is a registered American Quarter Horse named Stee Bars Starlight, by Steebars Sugar out of Miss Play Baby. John says the filly will have her own box stall and run freely in one of the many pastures on the 100-acre Crazy Acres Farm owned by his parents, John and Cynthia Noland of West Sunbury.

A member of the West Sunbury Wranglers Horse and Pony 4-H Club, John has been an active 4-H member for six years. He represents Butler County as 4-H ambassador. "Promoting the 4-H program has given me much self confidence," he said.

This year's Winning Ways Clinic drew a large crowd of horse owners, riders, and enthusiasts, Spectators enjoyed a variety of demonstrations and participated in question/answer sessions with one of the nation's leading equestrians, Ted Sokol.

Sokol's session, which emphasized cutting and team penning, was titled "Teaching You and Your Horse to Work Cattle." He and wife Kathy operate Tomoka Creek Performance Horses in New Smyrna Beach, Fla., where he has trained cutting hhorses for 20 years.

Sokol has had several horses in the Top Ten National Cutting Horse Association standings and has the leading novice horse in his region. He is president of the Florida Cutting Horse Association.

Kathy Brown, trainer and manager of Ka-My Stables in Bellefonte, demonstrated showmanship and the development of the all-around horse and rider. Brown has trained many young riders who went on to win contests statewide.

Penn State's Horse Herd Manager Ward Studebaker offered a popular program that emphasized training and handling the young horse.

Horse And Pony Club To Reorganize

The Saddle Cinches Horse and Pony Club will be starting its 26th year at the reorganization meeting on Monday, March 28, at 7 p.m. at Ruhl's United Methodist Church on the Elizabethtown Road, ½ mile west of Route 72.

Many activities are planned for the year, including fund raisers, community service projects, horse shows, public speaking, and teaching life and leadership skills. Horseless members are welcome. Parents are welcome and always encouraged at club activities. Dues are $5 a year.

For more information, call Jodi Gantz (717) 665-9178; Lori Holton (717) 653-9121; or Mike and Barb Kerker (717) 367-3259.

THE ALL-NEW MoCo's BY JOHN DEERE

NOBODY DOES HAY BETTER

NOBODY CUTS HAY BETTER. A 5-bar reel, new guards, and a 9-foot 9-inch cut give the 820 Sicklebar MoCo (above) a cleaner, 6-inch-wider cut. And an all-new, John Deere-built, rotary cutterbar makes the 920 and 930 MoCo's stronger and easier to maintain. All three use an innovative 3-point suspension for unbeatable flotation.

NOBODY CONDITIONS HAY BETTER. You can't beat the conditioning or simplicity. Choose John Deere urethane roll (sicklebar and rotary models) or V-tine impeller conditioning (rotaries only). All adjustments are made easily...many without tools. So matching field conditions is easy.

Cedar Crest FFA Enters Project Book Contest

On January 30, the Lebanon County FFA Project Book Contest was held at the Cedar Crest High School.

Many books from all over the county were entered.

New Labels For Infant And Toddler Foods

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — By May 8, most packaged foods will have a new nutrition label called Nutrition Facts. Versions of the new label also can be found on foods for infants and toddlers.

"Foods for children 4 years old and younger have a special label," says Dr. J. Lynne Brown, associate professor of food science in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences. "There also is a new label for infant foods."

The toddler label shows the serving size, servings per container (unless it's a single-serving container), total calories, calories from fat and all required nutrient amounts. "However, the Percent Daily Value for the major nutrients, the daily value table and the caloric conversion footnote are not listed as they are on the label for adults and children over age 4," says Brown. "Toddlers have their own nutritional needs, and rules used to create the Percent Daily Values are not applicable."

Percentages listed for the vitamins and minerals on the toddler label are based on the amounts recommended for children less than 4 years old. "Parents of children under 4 should be more concerned about providing enough calories for growth and less concerned about restricting fat, saturated fat, and cholesterol in their child's diet," says Brown.

The label that will appear on foods for infants (children less than 2 years old) lists the serving size and servings per container when applicable, calories and 10 nutrients. "Only these 10 nutrients are allowed on the label," says Brown. "The manufacturer cannot list calories from fat; grams of saturated, polyunsaturated, and monounsaturated fat; or milligrams of cholesterol.

"There are no Percent Daily Values established for infants for the major nutrients, so none can be declared. The percentages for minerals and vitamins are based on values recommended for infants."

Brown recommends keeping these differences in mind as you shop for infant and toddler foods. "You still can compare the amount of the nutrients listed for two similar foods," says Brown. "For instance, you can compare the amount of sodium in two brands of vegetables prepared for infants. You also can compare the daily value of vitamins or minerals provided by a serving of two kinds of foods."

If you're concerned about your toddler's iron intake, compare the daily value of iron, and choose the one with the larger percentage, other contents being equal. Use a similar comparison for vitamins A and C to help you choose the most appropriate fruits and vegetables.

"Add up the Percent Daily Value of a vitamin or mineral from the labels on the foods eaten by your child in a day," says Brown. "If the sum is close to 100 percent, your child has eaten the recommended amount for that day."

Upper Dauphin 4-H Livestock Club

Due to snow, the January and February meetings were both held in February.

The January meeting was held Thursday, Feb. 3 at 7:30 p.m. New officers are Jeremy Dobbin, president; Doug Reinert, vice president; Adam Oman, secretary; and Kristen Brubaker, news reporter.

At the February meeting the club collected sponsors' donations. At the next meeting the club will be learning about livestock judging.

Central Dauphin 4-H Horse And Pony Club Plans Future Meetings

On Monday, March 7, the club met at Mt. Laurel Church of God at 7 p.m. The club held a party at Chuck E. Cheese for all those in the club who helped out with the sub sale fund raiser.

The next sub sale will be this month to help defray the cost of the Washington D.C. trip planned in the fall.

The club discussed the grooming and showmanship clinic on Saturday, March 12, and encouraged all to participate. The club also went over the training show in May and all the changes and rules.

The new business included the next "Movie Night" for Friday, March 25; the Driving and Gymkana Clinics in June; Saddle Log Buddy System; and the judging teams that will be practicing in Elizabethville.

The members also showed an interest in going to the Equi-Fair at the Farm Show Complex on Saturday, March 26, as a group. The club had sharing time with a lot of interesting "snow stories"; three demonstrations: Holly White showing the different parts of a horse, Emily Ivanoff showing the different colors of horses, and Monica Yergo with the different bones of the horses leg and having a silly quiz after. The club enjoyed snacks afterward and a short horse bowl presided over by Marissa Acri.

The next meeting will be on Monday, April 4, at 7 p.m. at the Mt. Laurel Church of God.

National Grassland Visitors Talk About Their Visits With Farm Families

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Garry Lacefield is an extension professor at the University of Kentucky. Forages are his specialty. Every year he looks forward to attending the American Forage and Grassland Council conference. This year was no exception.

The four-day conference held in Lancaster March 6 to 9, was packed with information taught by forage leaders throughout the U.S. and Canada.

But for Lacefield, the highlight of the whole conference did not take place in the scheduled seminars but in the home of Melvin and Joyce Eby of Gordonville.

Lacefield was one of several conferees who took advantage of the offer to arrive a day early and stay in the home of a local farm family.

Lacefield, who travels across the U.S., prefers to stay with people who live in the area.

"You can always learn more that way than otherwise," he said. "I'm going back with fond memories of not just the conference but also what I experienced in their home."

The Ebys milk 56 cows on their 80-acre farm that has been in the family for five generations.

"It's very evident that the Ebys are very knowlegeable about the dairy industry and take a lot of pride in doing a good job," Lacefield said.

Although Lacefield accompanied Mel during the milking duties and took a great interest in examining the alfalfa and hay, it was the Ebys' family life that most impressed Lacefield.

"The spirit of love and sharing for family, land, and fellowman was so refreshing," Lacefield said. "Although I had only known the Ebys for 12 hours, when I left, it was the type of family I just needed to hug."

Lacefield said that he was impressed that the Ebys often open their home to families and even groups. According to Joyce, they sometimes host 20 people overnight.

"We have a 16-room farmhouse with an efficiency apartment — called a granddaddy house — so its ideal for sharing farm life with non-farming families," she said.

State forage extension specialist from the University of Kentucky Garry Lacefield shows off the prize-winning hay from his state. Lacefield said that the highlight of the convention was his stay with Mel and Joyce Eby. "I'm leaving Pennsylvania a better person because of them," he said.

Lacefield enjoyed spending time with the Ebys' 9-year-old son Matt who showed him the Labordor puppies the family raises.

Lacefield said, "I inspected the farm and was impressed but the real inspection was what I saw in the family. Their daughter Melody is in a wheelchair and another child died from a rare enzyme deficiency. The spirit of love and sharing and the gracefulness with which the Ebys carry this burden with their children is so refreshing.

"I'm leaving Pennsylvania — a better person — because of my stay with the Ebys and anything else I learned here is just bones," Lacefield said.

The closeness this professor from Kentucky felt was not just a one-way street. Joyce said of Lacefield's visit, "It's advantageous for farm-related people to get together and we would eagerly do it again if we had the opportunity."

She and her husband enjoyed a book Lacefield had written and presented to them. "From the Heart" is Lacefield's humorous and inspirational account of his five-bypass heart surgery that happened when he was 42 years old.

Lacefield plans to bring his wife to visit with the Ebys later this year.

Neil and Mary Ann Martin of St. Paul, Minn., are another couple who stayed in an area home.

Neil, an extension agronomist, was eager to compare farming operations in the Midwest with those in this area. The couple stayed at the home of Harold and Lois Nissley, Elizabethtown.

The Nissleys crop farm about 100 acres on their 175-acre farm. They sold their cows seven years ago and now put about 28 steers and 60 sheep to pasture.

Although this was the first visit to the county, Martin travels a lot with his job and has visited Harrisburg and other areas.

In his work with forage and grassland in Minnesota, Martin said that he has copied lots of Pennsylvania ideas.

"You have a longer growing season here and the farms appear to be smaller but there is more of them," he said.

While there are many excellent farming operations in Minnesota, Martin said that overall Midwestern farmers seem to be experiencing more serious financial problems because of over capitalized equipment and older facilities.

Nine persons came from Minnesota to attend the conference.

Of the stay in the home, Martin said, "It gives you more of a feel of the attitudes of the people and how they deal with problems.

"One of most outstanding values of this conference is the opportunity not only to talk to scientists and educators but with the professionals — the farmers," Martin said.

Of his visit with the Nissleys, Martin said, he sensed a strong stewardship of the land. Although they want to make money in farming, they don't want to take off the

Fay Strickler

Penn State Extension
Home Economist
For Berks Co.

With all the children looking forward to participating in egg hunts, the Easter bunny needs lots of help to get all the eggs cooked properly and safely.

There are just a few simple rules to follow that will help you to make perfectly prepared hard-cooked eggs without cracking the shell. These eggs will be ideal for dyeing, whether you use a "home brew" or a commercial dye.

The secret begins with the cooking of the eggs. To prevent egg breakage while cooking, use eggs that are four or five days old. Be sure that they are at room temperature before cooking.

Place the eggs in a saucepan, in a singlelayer. Add tap water until the level is one inch above the eggs. Cover and bring to a boil. Immediately turn off the heat and remove pan from the burner to prevent further boiling. Let stand, covered for 15-17 minutes for large eggs. Adjust time up or down three minutes for each size larger or smaller.

Some people prefer to bring the water to a boil first, lower the eggs into the pan, and simmer about 12 minutes until cooked. This method is not recommended because the sudden change in temperature may cause the shells to crack.

Specially designed appliances use steam to hard-cook eggs. These appliances may differ in procedure according to brand, so be sure to follow the manufacturer's directions. Eggs usually take 14-17 minutes to cook this way. When removing eggs from the cooker be very careful. They are extremely hot and it is easy to burn your hands.

Frustration often occurs when egg shells don't pull off the egg without pulling some of the egg white with it. A University of Georgia study suggests a method designed to make peeling easier. The method calls for cooking the eggs as suggested and then plunging them into an ice water bath for a minute. Return eggs to a boiling bath for ten seconds before peeling. The ice water helps to shrink the membrane away from the shell, allowing the egg to be peeled more easily.

Transferring eggs to an ice water bath can also help prevent the green rings from forming around the yolks. Using a vegetable steamer or deep fry basket will make egg transfers easier.

Since fresh eggs can be tougher to peel, remember to use week-old eggs. When ready to peel, it helps to crack the egg shell all over by gently tapping it on a hard surface. Roll between your hands to loosen the shell and begin peeling at the large end. Dipping the egg in a cool water bath may help to ease the shell off.

Some people feel that salt added to the boiling water makes peeling easier, but there is not proof to this theory. If salt is used in cooking, pour water off as soon as the eggs are done. Shells are porous and eggs can absorb the salt.

Keep your decorated hard-cooked eggs fresh for later use by storing them in the refrigerator as often as possible. A few hours out of refrigeration for the morning Easter egg hunt and later, for a centerpiece during Easter dinner won't hurt. But do put your eggs back into the refrigerator with your Easter left-overs.

Hard-cooked eggs can be stored in the refrigerator about one week in their shells. The original egg carton is the best storage container for hard-cooked eggs.

By following these simple rules, your decorated Easter Eggs can be served as a safe nutritious post-Easter meal or snack.

land but return it."

Farmers in Minnesota are caught in urban growth, Martin said, he was impressed that Pennsylvania is doing a good job with nutrient management. He believes Pennsylvania's approach to pollution control is more farmer friendly than in his state.

Like many of conferees attending AFGC, Martin would have preferred to see fields without snow cover.

"But I can tell by the forages there are many excellent farmers in the area," he said. He was impressed by reading the hay market reports and the amount of hay sold over the auctions.

The Martins enjoyed visiting a local Mennonite church with their host family. They were surprised by many similarities in their faith and in their homes.

There was one big difference, Mary Ann noted, "The Nissleys didn't have a television. But we didn't even miss it because we were so busy talking."

New Eco-Textiles

From sheets and towels fashioned from cotton (actually grown in colors) to attractive floor mats made from recycled tire rubber, earth-friendly products are making their way into the home textiles market, reports The Soap and Detergent Association.

Other exciting developments include Fortrel Ecospun, a fiber made from 100% recycled post-consumer plastic, and a water-based Teflon Fabric Protector. The former is used in fiberfill for pillows, mattress pads and upholstered furniture, apparel and crafts. The latter is 100% solvent free. Earthwise is a yarn dyeing process that is professed to be free from heavy metals and formaldehyde. Colors are derived from vegetables, insects, berries and flowers.

Tires are not the only things on the reuse circuit. Manufacturers are producing lap shawls made from recycled wool, chindi rugs made from cotton shirt scraps and bath accessories from recycled glass.

Land Of Milk And Maple Celebrates With Maple Sugar Festival

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

MEYERSDALE (Somerset Co.) — What's better for breakfast on a northeastern winter morning than flapjacks, country sausage, pure maple syrup and steaming coffee? Well, nothing, really, if one's just coming in from the barn after milking the cows at 3 or 4 a.m. in anticipation of a leisurely, hot and hearty breakfast.

That's why the folks in Somerset Conty — "The Land of Milk and Maple" — celebrate the maple sugar industry witih a grand festival each spring. A young woman of charm and intelligence, is named maple queen at scholarship pageant and she presides over the five-day festivities.

The 47th annual Pa. Maple Festival will be held on April 9, 10, 15, 16 and 17. Chocked full of fun and food the festival concentrates on the production of maple products, with a bunch of other good stuff thrown in.

For instance the historical pageant called "The Legend of the Magic Water," which finds a cast of 120 local persons telling about the discovery of maple syrup and history of Meyersdale. It is done through song, dance, and narration.

An educational form of entertainment, Legend has in it the Indian maple celebration, life of the pioneer and the day the first train came to town. Specifically, visitors see and hear an Indian attack, a hoedown, simple hymns to classic operas, can-can girls, and a patriotic grand finale.

The stage in Festival Park reverberates with music and dancing. There are pony and horse pulling contests at the nearby fairgrounds, street, rod and classic auto shows, the 8K race and 2-mile walk, antique car show, queen's ball, oldies dance, big quilt show and grand feature parade.

Also featured, inside the park is Maple Manor, a beautifully restored, historical landmark house whose framework and furnishings are guaranteed to sweep both kids and adults into a former era. See, too, an antique doctor's office, cobbler's shop, country store, and maple camp in the park.

Maple demonstrations are performed in the park, but for those who prefer to witness the real thing, the Somerset Co. maple producers welcome visitors to their nearby maple camps for a great sampling of today's larger industry operations.

Thousands of visitors acquaint themselves with Somerset Co. maple camps each spring, not just during the maple festival, but during the actual maple season that peaks in the month of March.

Producers often attach sales shops to their modern camp sites and offer beautifully prepared maple goodies and gift packs which they will mail, if desired.

Among the popular sugar camps are Wagner's Sugar Camp, West Salisbury, Brenneman's Maple, RD!, Salisbury; Moser Brothers, Meyersdale; Milroy Farms, Salisbury; Hemminger Sugar Camp, Somerset; Walker's Farm Service, Somerset; Floyd Reese, Somerset; Frank S. Bocsy, Stoystown; and Sechler Sugar Shack, Confluence.

Most producer's that are listed in the producer's brochure welcome visitors anytime, but ask that reservations be made before bringing a tour group. Some are closed on Sundays. And many other smaller operations exist whose camps, including those of the Amish, are found off the beaten paths in southern Somerset Co.

Tapping maple trees, collecting the sap and boiling it down into pure maple syrup is hard, but worthwhile work. While today's maple producers have devised better methods than the first Indian producers of maple syrup — reportedly in the mid-1600s, — their work can go around the clock when the runs are good. That is, the sap is draining out of the trees into metal keelers or plastic tubing, literally by the thousands of gallons. The natural wonder is caused by overnight freezing temperatures and next-day warming trends.

Depending on its sugar content the sap needed to achieve a gallon of pure maple syrup is approximately 50 gallons. That amount can vary 5 to 10 gallons either way, so a person needs some education and experience to get it right.

Selecting a queen for the sweet festival is a major annual affair demanding effort by the hopefuls. The winner receives a $1,500 scholarship from the Pa. Maple Festival and One for $500 from the Somerset Co. Maple Producers Asso. Her first and second maids of honor also receive scholarshiops. And of course, all the girls receive gifts galore.

Somerset County high school senior girls are eligible to audition for participation. The field is then narrowed to some 14 or 15 young women prior to the pageant. They are critically judged in evening gown, talent, and on-stage interview competitions.

The 1994 maple queen, selected on March 5, is Kathleen Thomas, 18, a Meyersdale Area High School senior bound for college next fall at the University of Pittsburgh at Johnstown. Her function is one of a gracious hostess circulating at festival activities, welcoming and helping visitors and telling everyone about the Somerset Co. maple industry.

Dott Merryman, Confluence, the 1993 maple queen, performed the coronation of Kathleen. Dott was chosen during high school to sing the national anthem over the public address system at a Pittsburgh Pirate home ballgame. Dott's winning talent number held a captive audience when she sang a cappella, "Via Dolorosa."

Queen Kathleen, a festival volunteer since childhood, was heard to comment that her favorite part of the festival is the food. That's true for hundreds of regular attenders.

Spotza probably takes the foods' popularity prize. The Indians, while not calling it spotza, apparently were the first to make it, when they poured boiling maple syrup over the snow, then ate the result.

Today, when the boiling syrup is the right temperature it's poured over cracked ice or into iced water, then eaten immediately. Wagner Camp's Dorothy Jeffrey says "Drop just enough syrup ot put in your mouth when it forms a softball."

She says many folks call spotza "taffy." to her, they are different. An important factor for taffy making, she said, is the altitude where you live, which determines the degree of density.

"Have your pans greased and ready," she says, "they can be aluminum pie pans. Put them on a cold floor or in cold water. Once you start pouring, never stop," she says. "Never pull back, just keep pouring, and don't try tilting the pans because it turns sugary if you move it."

A large heavy aluminum kettle is good to use, she says. When the temperature on the candy thermometer reaches the proper temperature for the altitude (Usually no higher than 254 degrees) that's when you start pouring, according to this ace of maple goodies.

During cooking Dorothy says, "Don't leave the pan. Add a little fat to the bubbling syrup to break up the air bubbles as it boils. The fat can be cream or butter," she said, adding, "Most importantly, do this drop by drop."

A maple king is also selected from the maple producers entering maple products for judging. Three classes of syrup, three classes of sugar cakes, sugar crumb, gift packs and several other classes. Ed Emerick of RD1, Hyndman, is the current maple king until anohter is chosen in April.

The grand feature parade os some 175 units, featuring Queen Maple, her maids of honor and court of princesses will be held on April 16 at 5 p.m. The Street, Rod and Classic Auto Show is on Sunday, Arpil 10, while the Antique Car Show is on Sunday, April 17. 8K-5 mile run and 2-mile walk is Sunday, April 10.

Legend of the Magic Water is scheduled for the afternoons of April 9, 15, and 16 at the local high school.

Lions Clubs in both Salisbury and Meyersdale serve pancake meals with country sausage and pure maple syrup the Saturday and Sunday of both festival weekends. They begin with breakfast and serve all day. In Salisburgy, buckwheat cakes are also offered.

A good place to sample the local artistic talents when visisting the area, is the gallery of the Tub Mill Arts Association, located at 117 W. Ord St., Salisbury. The arts and crafts show it holds during the festival is impressive.

Meyersdale, where the festival is held, and Salisbury where the major sugar camps are located, are both on Route 219, a majro north-south highway, but still a two-lane road.

From Exit 22, Interstate 68 in Maryland, Salisbury is four miles and Meyersdale, about 11 miles north. From the Pa. Turnpike at Somerset, Meyersdale lies some 20 miles and Salisbury, abour 27 miles south using Route 219.

For detailed festival information call (814) 634-0213.

For information regarding sugar campsites call the Milroy Farms at (814) 662-4125 or Wagner's Camp, (814) 662-2904.

And, now for some recipes.

Maple Queen Dott Merryman is crowning her successor, Kathleen Thomas who will reign over the 47th annual Pa. Maple Festival in Meyersdale on April 9, 10, 16, 16, 17.

There's a bit of romance to the old Indian art of making maple syrup each March when sap is collected from maple trees. These beauties fanning upward along the Tub Mill Run creek in West Salisbury, Somerset Co., are dripping sap into their metal keelers. Often plastic tubing is used so sap from many trees runs into a larger collecting tank.

Food Label Identifies Cholesterol Intake

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Whether you're watching your blood cholesterol for general health reasons or because your doctor has advised you to, the new Nutrition Facts panel due on most packaged foods by May 8 can help you.

"To control your blood cholesterol, you need to control the amount of saturated fat as well as the amount of cholesterol you consume," says Dr. J. Lynne Brown, associate professor of food science in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences. "The Nutrition Facts panel lists the amount of saturated fat and the amount of cholesterol in a serving.

"This listing allows you to compare the amounts of these nutrients in different foods. Suppose you are comparing two different kinds of cookies. A serving of one type lists 5 grams of saturated fat and a serving of another type list 2 grams of saturated fat. To help control your blood cholesterol, you would be wise to choose the cookie with only 2 grams."

The Nutrition Facts label also lists another handy tool for blood cholesterol watchers. It's called the Percent Daily Value. "This shows the amount of a nutrient that a serving of that food contributes to the amount recommended for a healthful diet," says Brown.

"Think of it us a point system. You are allowd 100 points, or 100 percent in a day, of cholesterol. The foods you eat in a day should provide not much more than a 100 Percent Daily Value of cholesterol.

Compare the daily values of different foods to find one suitable for you. "Suppose you're looking at two types of frozen cheesecake," says Brown. "A serving of one type of cheesecake provides 50 percent of the daily value for cholesterol; a serving of the other provides 30 percent. If you choose the one with 30 percent, you still have 70 points, or 70 percent, of the amount of cholesterol recommended that can come from other foods that day.

"However, if you choose the one with 50 percent, then you have to be careful to choose other low-cholesterol foods on the day you eat the cheesecake since you have only 50 percent left."

The new food label regulations provide two other tools that can help those concerned about blood cholesterol — health claims and nutrient content claims. "The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) allows foods to carry health claims about nutrients and heart disease," says Brown. "Most of the time, these claims will appear on the front of the package.

"A label might state, 'While many factors affect heart disease, diets low in saturated fat and cholesterol may reduce the risk of heart disease.' If the manufacturer cannot fit the claim on the front of the package, you may see a statement like this: 'See side panel for information about the relationship of saturated fat, cholesterol and heart disease."

A health-claim statement is useful for spotting foods that are low in saturated fat and cholesterol. "Any food carrying a health claim can have no more than 4 grams of saturated fat and 60 milligrams of cholesterol per serving," says Brown.

"In addition, the food can have no more than 13 grams of total fat and 480 milligrams of sodium per serving. Those carrying claims about saturated fat, cholesterol, and heart disease must have even smaller amounts of fat, saturated fat and cholesterol."

People watching their blood cholesterol can look for several other nutrient content claims. "Saturated fat free" means the food has less than 0.5 grams of saturated fat. "Low in saturated fat" means the food has no more than 1 gram of saturated fat.

"Cholesterol free" means less than 2 milligrams of cholesterol and no more than 2 grams of saturated fat. "Low cholesterol" means less than 20 milligrams of cholesterol and no more than 2 grams of saturated fat.

"Study these claims and then take a close look at the Nutrition Facts panel," says Brown. "A food carrying these labels still can be high in total fat and calories, because there are other types of fat besides saturated fat. Always check the numbers."

A Revolutionary Approach To Pressure Washing
Cut your cleaning time in half with the famous Dirt Killer Nozzles

The DK Cleaning Nozzle
The Dirt Killer is the ideal cleaning nozzle. With its unique, high-speed, spinning head it gives a less powerful machine the impact of larger, more powerful industrial pressure washers. The DK, unlike some rotary nozzles, leaves no unsightly pressure washing lines on the surface it is cleaning and it is safe for use in sensitive industrial areas. Some uses include brick restoration, paint and graffiti removal and deck cleaning.
When you don't need a water blasting nozzle, but want high performance cleaning, turn to the DK from Dirt Killer

Gallstone Risk In Women

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Did you know that prolonged overnight fasting, dieting, and low fiber intake may raise the risk of gallstones in women. This finding comes from research scientists at the National Institute of Diabetes and Digestive and Kidney Diseases, part of the National Institutes of Health in Bethesda, MD.

Studied were 4,730 women aged 25 to 74 years. The investigators focused on women because they have a higher risk of developing gallstone disease than men.

The researchers found that the most important factor contributing to gallstone disease was the number of hours between the last meal or snack at night and the first meal or snack the next day. The risk of developing gallstones was greatest among women whose overnight fast lasted 14 hours or longer and probably skipped breakfast. The risk was lowest for women who fasted fewer than eight hours.

This study reinforces the dietary guidelines for Americans which recommends eating a variety of foods in a daily food plan (starting with a good breakfast), and increasing fiber in the diet.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Last week we had a breath of spring at the Flower Show in the Philadelphia Civic Center. If you didn't get to see it, there were thousands who did get to see it as the building was crowded.

The theme was "Islands In The Sun" which featured lots of blue water, pink sand, and wooden sidewalks. There were many, many beautiful orchids, bird of paradise, and hibiscus flowers. Part of the exhibit was a Bermuda cottage with a cedar door.

I found the bonsai display to be very interesting. These miniature trees may be juniper, maple, pine or other varieties. One was a flowering witch hazel tree in full blooma and only inches high. The last time that I saw this tree covered witih yellow blossoms was a December afternoon when I was in the mountains deer hunting.

On the way to Philadelphia, I saw a pickup truck fully loaded with pussy willows. After arriving at the flower show, I realized why they were being transported to the city. You see, many plants and fresh cut flowers were for sale and one item that seemed to sell well was the long stems of pussy willows.

A blue and a purple African violet now sit on my kitchen windowsill. And, I've started some narcissus bulbs. My husband bought a book on pruning trees and shrubs. The only thing is that he had already started to prune our old apple tree. I am hoping he doesn't overdo the job.

We came home to yet another snowfall. I'm sure that farmers are tired of opening their lanes for the big milk tank trucks. But, as I find lots of things to do right in my own home, I can say "let it snow." There are a number of old photo negatives, that my great uncle took many years ago, and I'd like to look them over and maybe have some printed. There is always something to do — maybe I'll bake another cake.

Earned Income Credit Often Goes Unclaimed

NEWARK, Del. — If you or your spouse worked part- or full-time during 1993, and your family's income was less than $23,050, the government wants to write you a check!

"Many working families are eligible," says Maria Pippidia, Cooperative Extension home economics agent at the University of Delaware. "If two people earn only minimum wage — $4.65 an hour — their income is well below the cutoff."

Pippidis says earned income credit (EIC) is a federal tax program that often goes unclaimed by eligible families. It is a financial benefit designed to help those who are working continue to be in the work force. If they are eligible, applicants will either owe less in taxes or get a check from the government.

"The Earned Income Credit program actually benefits more than the recipients," Pippidis says "By increasing the income of working families, EIC can reduce the demand for some public services that are provided by state and local governments.

"The EIC helps low-wage workers make ends meet. Research shows that more than 90 percent of EIC applicants said the EIC helped them pay bills," says Pippidis. "It also is a work incentive by helping to ensure that the benefits of work surpass the benefits of public assistance."

Even those who live in public housing or get help from the government to pay rent may still be eligible. The EIC does not cause your subsidized rent to go up. And getting the EIC will not lower the benefits of Food Stamps, Aid to Families with Dependent Children, Social Security Insurance or Medicaid.

To collect EIC, the applicant must have earned less than $23,500 and must have a qualifying child. The income must be earned through salary, wages, or self-employment. Income that is not earned, such as public assistance, social security benefits, workers compensation or alimony, does not count.

A qualifying child can be a son, daughter, adopted child, grandchild or stepchild who lived with the family at least six months of the year. A foster child, niece, nephew, or neighbor's child must have lived with the applicant for 12 months in 1993. In addition, the child must be under 19 years old, or under 24 and a full-time student. Or the child can be any age and disabled.

To apply for EIC, you must file a federal income tax return, form 1040A or 1040. You also must fill out a tax form called Schedule EIC and attach this form to your income tax return. Do not use Form 1040EZ. Each year, about 200,000 eligible families do not get the EIC because they file the 1040EZ. To get help filling out your tax forms from Volunteer Income Tax Assistance and to find the VITA clinic closest to you, call an IRS operator at 1-800-829-1040. Be patient, the line is often busy.

EIC can also be received by paycheck. By filing a W-5 form with their employer, eligible applicants can receive part of their 1994 payment now and the rest in a lump payment next year.

Why Are Massey Ferguson Tractors The World's Best Selling?

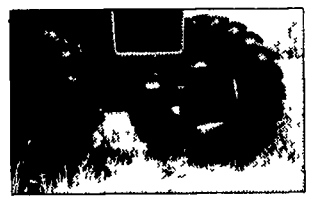
When building a 2WD tractor, there s little reason to conserve weight In fact you may well end up adding weight for traction

With 4WD tractors, you really don t need or even want so much weight It just makes the tractor less maneuverable hurts performance lowers efficiency and increases soil compaction

MF 300 Series 4WD tractors are engineered with just the right weight balance and strength for optimum 4WD performance This means easy handling with all the performance of bigger more expensive tractors

Smart engineering is just one of the many reasons why, over the last 28 years more people have selected Massey Ferguson tractors than any other brand Check out all the reasons today at your MF dealer

Designed from the beginning for 4WD performance.



Wheels don t lean on full lock reducing soil damage and tire wear

Standard hydrostatic steering for fast, easy turns and precise handling.

Low-rate MF financing for qualified buyers makes ownership easy.

Hydralock front-wheel differential engages automatically with rear differential lock.

WARNING!

DON'T THROW AWAY UP TO 45% OF YOUR HAY.

Losses occur when crops are stored--regardless of the storage method. Those losses are real--colorless, odorless and invisible--you can't see them, but they're there.

The air trapped within stored feed begins the fermentation process--and fermentation continues until all the air is consumed. The less air within the stored feed, the less loss.

Because bunker silos are not easily packed, losses in bunker silos range from 27% to 45%. If the feed is valued at $30 per ton, every 1000 tons stored in a bunker would suffer losses from $8,100 to $13,500. Tower silo losses range from 3% to 8%, or $900 to $2400 for every 1000 tons.

Those losses occur for every 1000 tons--every time feed is stored, year after year. Before investing in any storage method, consider the total costs--including fermentation loss.

Compare the various methods of feed storage Contact the Crop Storage Institute for your free copy of "Methods of Crop Storage" and "Know the Facts."

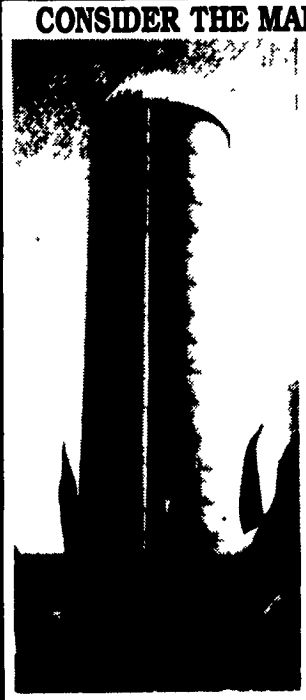
CONSIDER THE MANY ADVANTAGES OF CONCRETE



This has been quite the winter, hasn't it? I think most of us are really looking forward to spring. In the meantime, we have to get through this ice, snow, and soon MUD! There's a lot of ground not frozen because of the snow cover, and if you must go over that ground to get to your stored feed, that will cause quite a struggle.

And, if the long range forecasters are right, another 6 years of severe winter weather means you will want to be better prepared to store and handle your valuable feeds.

"On most dairy farms, QUALITY FORAGE is the single most important factor affecting profit."

Our business has to do with "Protecting Your Forage Quality." Nobody protects forage quality like we do... Nobody!

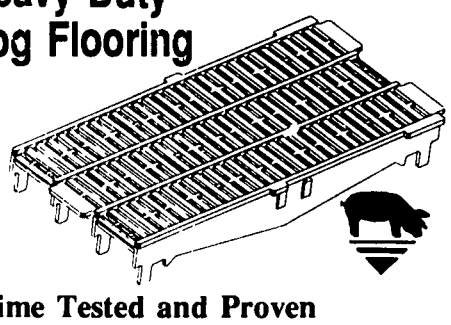
Polygrate™
Heavy Duty Hog Flooring



Time Tested and Proven
This style of POLYGRATE was first introduced in 1981. Over the years Faroex has continued to refine this product. POLYGRATE is one of only a few "World Class" floors that has stood this test of time.

Outstanding Traction
POLYGRATE'S unique "high-low" finger design provides outstanding traction for pigs of all sizes, while enhancing safety and comfort.

- POLYGRATE'S rounded corners minimize injuries. The edges are bevelled providing a smoother, safer surface that promotes comfort, too.

What Does This All Add Up To?
- More piglets survive until weaning
- Less splay/spraddle leg problems
- Heavier piglets at weaning
- Better conditioned sows at weaning

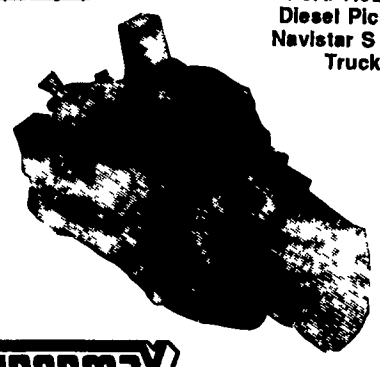
TURBOCHARGER SYSTEM

"Banks"

Ford 7.3L/6.9L Diesel Pickup & Navistar S Series Trucks



Hypermax ENGINEERING, INC.

The HYPERMAX PULSE TURBOCHARGER SYSTEM utilizes the high pressure exhaust pulses to achieve faster "off idle" engine acceleration and vastly improves throttle response. This response feature is accomplished without the use of a wastegate, which detracts from performance anywhere but at low engine speeds, due to its inherent high exhaust back pressure.

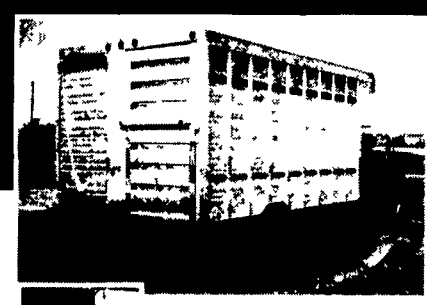
Agriculture Moves on EBY Bodies



M.H. Eby custom-builds aluminum truck bodies for the agri-transportation market. Nobody offers more sizes and options in:

- LIVESTOCK BODIES - Lengths to 32', choice of heights and widths.
- GRAIN BODIES - Lengths to 24'; landscape and general purpose dumps to 12'.
- FLATBED BODIES - Lengths to 32', choice of 5 widths.

For greater payload capacity, Eby's aluminum design is equal in strength to steel and up to 40% lighter. Our corrosion-resistant components never need painting. That means minimum maintenance, improved appearance and higher resale value.

Eby products have superior standard features. And we offer custom options for virtually any application. Agriculture is your business- building bodies to haul it is ours.

Let EBY custom build one for you.

1994 Pennsylvania Machinery Custom Rates

Agricultural Statistician

The custom rates shown are averages from voluntary reports by custom operators throughout Pennsylvania. Most of the rates are stated per acre, cwt., ton, bale, or bushel rather than per hour to reduce the variation due to machinery size. Individual rates vary due to differences in working conditions, services performed, or even the operator's eagerness to do custom work. Therefore, the average rates shown should not be considered absolute indications of fair charges.

Acreage rates are shown separately for two regions of the state, labeled "Mountain" and "Valley." The differences in rates between regions reflect differences in terrain, soils, and alternative opportunities for the labor and equipment used. Figures labeled "The State" represent the straight average of all reports used regardless of geographic location.

Custom rates are slightly higher this year. Of the 68 rates reported, 50 percent have increased, 43 percent have decreased, and the remaining 7 percent are the same as last year. The overall average is up 2 percent from the previous year. This percentage increase was computed by adding the rates for all jobs, regardless of basis of charge, and dividing by last year's comparable total.

Alfalfa Question:
Do you have to sacrifice yield and quality to get winterhardiness?

The Answer:
No.

CimarronVR and Belmont varieties stand-up to cold weather and harsh winter conditions — without sacrificing yield or quality!

These varieties can be harvested earlier in the spring and later in the fall to give higher yields, and a more even distribution of yield over the season. And because they are vigorous, they can be cut more frequently to give softer, leafier hay.

Why settle for late-starting, slow-growing, short-season alfalfa. Choose CimarronVR or Belmont – premium alfalfa varieties that not only provide excellent winterhardiness, yield and quality – but also combined resistance to all the major diseases, insects, and nematodes that attack alfalfa. Proven performance.

Local Timber Harvesters Break New Ground

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — On Friday, April 8, and Friday, April 15, the Timber Harvesting Council (THC) of Pennsylvania Resources will conduct a series of workshops on forest ecology and silviculture for local timber harvesters at the Donegal Community Center in Donegal.

The two-day workshop is the capstone course in the voluntary Pennsylvania Logger Certification Program sponsored by the THC. The council is a consortium of interests including Penn State Cooperative Extension, representatives of the forest products industry, the DER Bureau of Forestry, and NORTIM Corp., Pittsburgh logging risk-management company.

In the spring of 1992, THC efforts gained support and momentum with a grant from the USDA Extension Service in Washington to conduct a pilot program in ecology and silviculture for loggers as part of the national LEAP (Logger Education to Advance Professionalism) project.

"Loggers play a critical role in Pennsylvania's forests and an understanding of silviculture, which is the art and science of managing a forest ecosystem, will help promote sound forestry practices," said Jim Finley, assistant professor of forest resources at Penn State and workshop instructor. "The objective of the training effort is to sensitize loggers to environmental issues, improve lines of communication with natural resource managers, and bolster the professional image of timber harvesters."

The two-part course is a requirement for logging contractors and counts toward certification for timber harvesters. Pennsylvania has one of the country's most comprehensive logger education programs and is fast becoming a model for the rest of the nation.

In addition to ecology and silviculture, it includes 70 hours of training in safety, production, erosion and sedimentation control, business management and wetlands protection. In exchange for eight-hours each of field training and classroom instruction, timber harvesters receive 1.6 logger training units (LTUs).

"Loggers who are certified by the THC will have a competitive advantage," said Yuriy Bihun, forest stewardship program associate, who has worked with the THC education committee to design the workshops.

"An added incentive is that THC certification leads to 10 percent reduction in workers' compensation rates for timber harvesters that complete the program."

The grant from USDA allowed the THC to design an effective program that addresses the needs of not only the loggers, but of the entire forest community. To date, the ecology and silviculture workshops have been attended by 75 logging contractors and the program is poised for distribution to Pennsylvania's estimated 3,500 timber harvesters.

Cameron County logger Jim Deetscreek sums up his feelings about the program this way: "I care about the woods and I want to be the best logger in Pennsylvania — the THC sponsored certification is one way to get there."

Jim said "Loggers can make a difference, and if we don't get involved, someone else will be making the decisions about where and how we work."

For more information on the upcoming workshops, contact Timber Harvesting Council, c/o Westmoreland Conservation District, 932 St. Claire Way Rt. 30 East, Greensburg, PA 15601, (412) 837-5271.

Disaster Insurance Seminar Set

BETHLEHEM (Lehigh Co.) — A disaster insurance seminar entitled "The Sky (Roof) is Falling Down" will be held March 23 from 7:30 p.m.-10 p.m. here at the UGI Building, next to the Allentown-Bethlehem Airport on City Line Drive.

Does your insurance for natural and other disasters protect your investment in real estate and personal property? Will your buildings stand up through the next snow storm, gale winds, earthquake, or thunderstorm?

This winter's snow put many barns down and many more buildings were stressed or would have gone down if a strong wind had accompanied the storms. An earthquake such as the one recently in Berks County could hit here. Most owners found out their losses were not covered by insurance.

What can you do to prevent this from happening to you or to you again?

The seminar, offered at no cost, will feature Duane Stevenson, Penn State farm management agent and Tim R. Royer, structural engineer with Timber Tech Engineering, Womelsdorf. Royer has more than 10 years practical experience in design and analysis of commercial, agricultural, and residential buildings.

Stevenson will discuss insurance. He will cover the options, how to determine what you need, how to weigh the risks as you decide what ins' ,rchase and which to pass, and finally how to get what you need.

Royer will discuss what conditions occurred this year to cause the snow load failures we experienced. He will also discuss the most common failures he has seen over the years, how to do a walk around of your property to evaluate the strength of each building you have, methods to correct design and construction problems, and answer your individual questions. He will use slides to demonstrate his points with examples of real-life failures. He will provide guidelines on how to do a building-by-building audit.

Please call the county extension office and make a reservation by March 21 if you plan to attend.

Dairy Management System Reduces Production Costs

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The new ALPRO Dairy Management System from Alfa Laval Agri helps manage the most important demands of the professional dairy farmer.

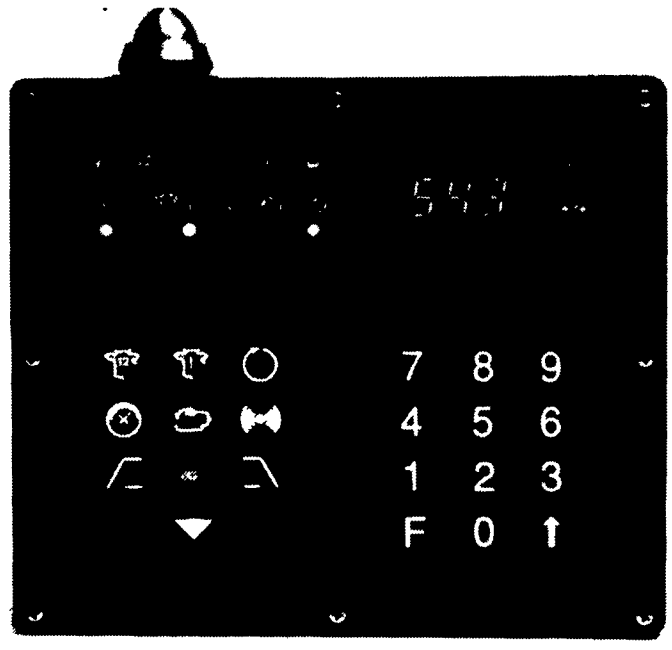
The system accurately calculates and measures rations needed for each cow and keeps track of feeding and milking schedules. The ALPRO system provides dairymen with the most relevant and complete data so they can make the best management decisions.

The valuable information provided by ALPRO helps dairy farmers reduce production costs, increase yield levels, and keep cows in good health, ultimately increasing the profitability of any dairy.

The ALPRO Milking System features a milking point controller (MPC), which is the heart of the system, and the milk meter. The MPC controls the milking — individual pulsation, Duovac, and automatic cluster removal.

The ALPRO Feeding System allows dairy farmers to maximize each cow's production potential through individualized feeding. Individual feed rations adapted to each cow's need and stage in lactation is the best insurance for keeping cows in good health and in high fertility.

The ALPRO Management System provides the dairy farmer with the most relevant herd reports for the ultimate in dairy management. It is flexible, allowing dairy farmers to calculate feeding rations from milk yield data simply or with the help of an advanced feed calculation program.



The ALPRO System features the unique Milking Point Controller (MPC) which acts as a main terminal to the system. The MPC controls the milking — individual pulsation, Duovac, and automatic cluster removal.

Babson Releases Low Iodine Teat Dip

NAPERVILLE, Ill. — To aid producers battling mastitis, the most costly disease affecting the dairy industry, Babson Bros. Co. introduces Theraderm 2500™, a pre- and post-milking teat dip designed to reduce mastitis-causing organisms while conditioning teats.

Theraderm 2500 is a 0.25 percent iodine solution formulated to deliver the killing power of a higher iodine level without the potential side effects. Theraderm 2500 was proven to be an effective mastitis-prevention tool through university research conducted in accordance with National Mastitis Council (NMC) testing protocols. In an experimental exposure study, Theraderm 2500 reduced the number of new Staphylococcus aureus infections by 88 percent and Streptococcus agalactiae infections by nearly 82 percent.

Theraderm 2500 combines application flexibility with the ability to help reduce somatic cell counts. Because if its low viscosity, it can be used as a dip or spray and dries quickly to simplify pre-milking applications. When used pre-milking, surfactants provide excellent, gentle cleansing, and the lower iodine level helps minimize milk residue concerns.

Theraderm 2500 offers the fast-acting broad-spectrum control of some higher iodine products, yet it reduces the threat of chapping and irritation that can cut milk yields. A triple emollient system exclusive to Surge® blends three moisturizing and softening agents for improved skin conditioning. In addition, the pH is very close to the average pH for a cow's udder, meaning minimum irritation even when used pre- and post-milking.

"The extra emollients in Theraderm 2500 promote superior teat condition so the cow's natural mastitis-fighting systems can function," said Brian Wilkins, marketing and business development manager, Babson Bros. Co. Chemical Division. "The triple emollient system makes Theraderm 2500 ideal for producers who pre- and post-dip three times per day. it's also great for those producers operating under environmental conditions that can potentially damage teat skin or increase the incidence of infection."

Because no regulatory agency approval is required to sell teat dips, Babson Bros. Co. encourages producers to request information on their teat dip manufacturer's testing procedures.

For more information on Theraderm 2500, contact your local Surge dealer or write to Babson Bros. Co., 1354 Enterprise Drive, Romeoville, IL 60441.

EYE DISORDERS OF DOMESTIC POULTRY

Patty Dunn, DVM
Animal Diagnostic Laboratory
Dept. Of Veterinary Science

Flock owners, service people, and other poultry health professionals often overlook the visual health of birds in their care because eye disorders are generally not a widespread problem in most chicken and turkey flocks.

However, because all birds rely heavily on their sense of sight to carry on their daily activities, increased incidence of ocular abnormalities in a flock can result in a significant flock performance problem.

A visually impaired bird is at a major disadvantage in competing for feed, water, and social position in a population of birds in cages, on the floor, or on range. When birds with impaired sight are moved to a new housing situation, many will die because of dehydration and starvation.

To follow are some of the common disorders, diseases, and disease agents affecting the eye and associated structures that impact negatively on bird health and flock performance.

Ammonia Toxicity

Ammonia gas (NH_3) is the most common eye irritant that domestic birds encounter. Ammonia gas is inevitably produced in the poultry house when the nitrogenous waste product of birds, uric acid, combines with water in the environment.

High NH3 levels are commonly due to poor management of ventilation. The goal of proper ventilation is to limit available water in the environment and vent any noxious gas away from the birds. The ventilation system must control water (moisture) in order to control ammonia.

Ammonia gas is extremely irritating to the membranes that line the eyelids, eye, sinuses, and trachea. Ammonia dissolves in the liquid on mucous membranes and eyes to produce ammonium hydroxide. This compound is an irritating alkali that causes inflammation of the delicate membrane that lines the eyelid and covers part of the eyeball known as the conjunctiva.

Conjunctivitis, with characteristic reddening and swelling of the eyelids, results. Affected birds appear photophobic and painful around the eyes. If high ammonia levels (above 100 ppm) persist, the covering of the cornea, the outermost part of the front of the eyeball, can become disrupted or ulcerated and blindness can occur.

Marek's Disease

Marek's disease, a neoplastic viral disease of chickens, is best recognized as causing leg weakness, paralysis, or tumor formation and death. However, there appears to be an increased incidence of a form of Marek's disease that first manifests itself as blindness.

In this situation, 15- to 20-week-old pullets are commonly noticed to be visually impaired. Sometimes irregularities of the normally sharp and regular border between the iris and pupil can be seen. A gray discoloration of the colored portion of the eye may be present. Often no grossly visible eye abnormalities are present.

Proper diagnosis of ocular Marek's disease requires microscopic examination of tissues by a veterinary pathologist. There will be characteristic infiltration of neoplastic and inflammatory cells into various structures of the eye, including the retina.

A recent study has shown that conventional Marek's disease vaccines may not adequately protect chickens form the particular virus that causes this form of disease.

Bacterial Infections

Systemic bacterial disease in young chicks and poults can lead to bacterial invasion of the eye with inflammation damaging all structures within the eye itself. Salmonella bacteria, particularly Salmonella Typhimurium and Salmonella Arizona are known to cause severe opthalmitis and blindness. Often these young birds acquire the infection from the hen or through a navel/yolk sac infection.

Fungal Infections

Aspergillus mold, although usually thought of as a respiratory tract pathogen, can invade the brain as well as all structures of the eye.

A yellow caseous plaque may be seen under the eyelid or within the eye. The presence of the mold invokes an intense inflammatory response, and damage to the eye can be severe.

Pox

Avian pox, a disease of many types of birds caused by various pox viruses, often affects the skin of the head and face where it causes raised nodules and scabs. If these lesions are around the eyes and on the eyelids, resulting swelling can impair eyesight.

Turkeys and Bobwhite quail in particular can be severely affected. The eye itself remains unaffected, and once the lesions have resolved, eyesight should be normal.

Respiratory Disease

Upper respiratory pathogens (viral, bacterial, and protozoal) often cause conjunctivitis that should resolve when the disease runs its course. Examples are laryngotracheitis virus, Newcastle disease virus, infectious bronchitis virus, Bordetella, Haemophilus, Chlamydia, Mycoplasma, and Cryptosporidium.

These pathogens do not damage the eye itself, but may cause discomfort leading to rubbing and scratching of the eyelids, but rarely result in permanent eye injury.

Many of these disease agents can also produce a sinusitis, causing the sinus directly under the lower eyelid to swell greatly. Newcastle disease virus can cause a transient conjunctivitis in people, so care should be taken when handling and applying live Newcastle disease vaccines.

Nervous System Disease

Avian encephalomyelitis (AE) virus, which primarily affects the central nervous system, can cause cataracts and general eye enlargement.

The lens becomes fragmented and can no longer function efficiently in focusing images. Vaccination of breeder replacements for AE is highly effective in preventing the condition.

Other infectious agents that infect the brain can impair vision at the processing level, while the eye itself, as an image receptor and transmitter, remains functional.

Nutritional Deficiencies

Certain vitamin deficiencies, notably vitamin A and vitamin E, can be involved in visual impairment.

These deficiencies are extremely rare in poultry on commercial feeds. Vitamin A is necessary for the production of visual pigment of the retina as well as for the maintenance of the lining of the tear ducts.

Vitamin E, passed from the breeder hen to the fertile egg, is necessary for maintenance of the lens protein in the developing embryo.

Developmental Disorders

Congenital abnormalities in the formation and placement of the eye and eye socket should be of low incidence in commercial poultry.

Chicks or poults with one or both eyes missing or eyes of reduced size or forward displacement of eyes may be seen. The cause may be hereditary or may be due to improper incubation or pre-incubation conditions. Affected chicks are usually noticed at the hatchery during chick processing and culled.

Exposure of growing poultry to certain types of continuous artificial lighting has resulted in eyeball enlargement ("bug eyes," "pop-eyes") with accompanying degenerative changes and blindness.

Cataracts

Most cataracts in birds are sporadic in occurrence and are of unknown causes.

Flock problems involving cataract formation have been linked to vitamin E deficiency, avian encephalomyelitis infection, and continuous artificial light.

Eye-Notch Syndrome

Eye-notch syndrome is a condition in caged layers characterized by lesions of the lower eyelids. Lesions range from small scabs to large fissures with skin flaps or tags.

A rough, fringed appearance of the lid may develop. The cause and significance of the syndrome is unknown, but certain strains of birds seem to have higher incidence than others, suggesting a genetic component. Significant visual impairment is not often involved.

Trauma/ Cannibalism

Bright, shiny eyes can be an attractive target for picking by flock mates.

Fortunately, most birds are very adept at protecting their heads from this assault, and eye injury due to picking rarely becomes a flock problem, particularly if beak trimming is practiced.

Adequate vision is extremely important for all types of poultry to grow, thrive, and remain productive. Prompt attention to potential problems involving the eye, and proper diagnosis of eye/vision disorders, can prevent minor problems from becoming major disasters.

Livestock Notes

Managing Pastures For Optimum Production

Pasture season is just around the corner. Sheep producers need to have productive pastures to provide a cheap source of feed for six to eight months of the year.

Well-managed pastures can greatly reduce feed bills. Poorly managed pastures can lead to nutritional deficiencies, poor reproduction,'and fields that look like deserts.

The first step in managing your pastures is to get a soil test every two or three years. We have no way of knowing what your pasture needs in the way of lime and fertilizer unless the soil is tested.

All Penn State Extension offices sell soil test kits. The cost is only $6, and it's the best six bucks you'll ever spend.

Follow the directions on taking your sample and sending it off to the lab. You will receive a report that indicates how much lime and fertilizer your pastures require. You might also check with your fertilizer dealer, as some will test your fields for you.

Most soils require limestone every few years. Lime changes the soil pH by reducing acidity. For pastures, we like to see a pH between 6.0 and 7.0. This provides an environment in the soil where the proper chemical reactions can take place to allow the plants to absorb the nitrogen, phosphorus, potassium and other nutrients required for growth. When the pH gets too low, the nutrients tend to be bound to the soil particles and are not available.

Pastures need to be fertilized every year. Preferably, they should be fertilized twice a year, once in the spring and once in the fall. Pastures need nutrients to grow and compete with weeds. If you don't supply those nutrients, your pasture grasses and legumes will eventually be crowded out by weeds and other undesirable species.

If your pastures are mainly grasses, you will need to supply nitrogen as well as potassium and phosphorus. If you have a good grass, legume mix (clovers), you may be able to get away without supplying any nitrogen. Some soils may have a large amount of phosphorus and potassium in them and need little supplementation. The only way to know is to take a soil test.

Lime and fertilizer are only part of managing your pastures. Another consideration is stocking rate. The stocking rate is simply the number of animals your pastures can support without being over grazed. Stocking rate is expressed in animal units. One animal unit is one cow or one horse or 5 sheep.

If you have old pastures that have never been renovated and you don't lime and fertilize, you may have to plan on 3-4 acres per animal unit. If, on the other hand, you have renovated pastures that are highly managed, and you use a good pasture rotation system, that same animal unit may need only 1/2-1 acre. The level of management greatly affects the number of sheep you can put on pastures.

Don't forget about weed control. When you rotate sheep out of a pasture, go in and mow that pasture to clip the weeds and allow the grasses to compete. You may also find it necessary to spray herbicides at times to control weeds. There are some excellent pasture herbicides on the market. While you may not be equipped to spray the herbicide yourself, there are commercial companies who will do it for you. Contact your county agent or feed or fertilizer dealer for the names of those companies.

Pasture is a crop, just like corn, soybeans or wheat, and it needs to be managed as such. The success of your pasture management will have a very large impact on the overall success of your sheep operation.

Ten Medication Use Tips

It seems like every time you pick up the newspaper or turn on the television, you find a story about contamination in our food chain. While lamb is not a major player in the nation's meat consumption, it still behooves us to make sure that our meat is safe.

Every once in a while you may find it necessary to medicate your sheep. It may be as simple as treating for internal parasites, or as complex as trying to clear up pneumonia or mastitis with antibiotics. Whenever you use medications, follow these simple rules.

1. Read the label carefully — labeling directions change frequently.

2. Use drugs only in animal species listed on the label-drugs used in other species may cause adverse reactions or illegal residues, and possible animal deaths. Only your veterinarian can prescribe "extra label" uses.

3. Use the proper dose for the species and size of animal to be treated - overdosing can cause illegal residues.

4. Calculate pre slaughter drug withdrawal times accurately — withdrawal time begins with the last drug administration.

5. Use the correct route of administration — giving drugs incorrectly can lead to drug ineffectiveness, adverse reactions, illegal residues, and possible animal deaths.

6. Do not "double does" — using the same drug in the feed and by injection can cause illegal residues.

7. Select needle size and injection sites carefully — misuse can lead to tissue damage, reduced effectiveness, and/or illegal residues.

8. Allow proper withdrawal times for feed containing drugs — during the withdrawal time, storage bins and feeders must be completely free of medicated feed and only drug-free feed should be used or illegal residues may result.

9. Keep accurate records of drugs used and animals treated — poor records can be costly if drug residue violations occur.

10. Seek the advice of your veterinarian — your records will allow him/her to provide safer and more effective treatment and save you money by preventing illegal residues.

Livestock Notes

have arisen regarding the use of ivermectin and its potentially detrimental effects on the reproductive performance of ewes.

Basically, ivermectin interrupts nerve signals in parasites which rely on gamma-aminobutyric acid (GABA) for transmitting these signals. However, in ewes and some other mammals, GABA inhibits release of certain hormones in the brain that are responsible for controlling part of the reproductive cycle.

Scientists at the University of Missouri conducted an experiment to evaluate the effects of ivermectin on the reproductive function of ewes. Their results showed that there was no difference when ivermectin was used in the (1) interval to onset of heat; (2) number of eggs released from the ovary; (3) pregnancy rate; and (4) number of fetuses per ewe.

Based on the results obtained in this study, it appears that Ivermectin has no adverse effects on reproduction in the ewe.

4-H Sheep Projects

4-H sheep projects are an excellent way to introduce youngsters to agriculture in general, and the wonderful world of sheep in particular. There are many opportunities for kids between the ages of 8-19.

Animal care and management, leadership skills, public speaking and demonstrations, livestock shows and competitions, and other 4-H club activities provide a multitude of enjoyable, non-threatening learning opportunities to all youth.

Perhaps you know a friend or neighbor whose children could benefit from our programs. How about your own children, grandchildren or other relatives? They would really enjoy a 4-H sheep project. We also have 4-H projects in dairy, beef, swine, goats, rabbits, cavies, poultry, horses and many other areas.

For more information, contact your local Penn State Extension Office and ask for the 4-H agent.

No Wool Incentive Payments After 1995

Recent efforts by sheep industry leaders and allied industry groups to keep the National Wool Act intact has ended in a compromise with the U.S. Congress.

The Senate reversed its earlier decision to eliminate funding for the Wool Act. This follows a prior House vote to reinstate funding for 1993 wool-crop incentive payments.

As follow-up to this action, the Senate Agriculture Committee wrote S.B. 1548, calling for reduction of incentive payments via a phase-out process of the National Wool Act through the 1994 and 1995 marketing years.

The bill will eliminate the Wool Act beginning in marketing year 1996 and will scale down payments by 25 percent and 50 percent, respectively, in the 1994 and 1995 interim years.

Livestock Day Features Flinchbaugh

YORK (York Co.) — Penn State Cooperative Extension will offer a Livestock Day program on Saturday, March 26 at the York County 4-H Center at Bair.

The program begins at 9 a.m. and continues until 3:30 p.m.

Although the program is primarily planned for livestock producers, the segments on agricultural policy, nutrient management, and agricultural preservation alternatives will be of interest to most farmers.

Next year marks the year for another farm bill. We are all aware of the important impact government policies have on agriculture.

What policy considerations are being looked at for the 1995 Farm Bill? What policy issues will be important for agriculture into the next century?

These two questions alone are sure to impact all agricultural producers, but who will actually make the agricultural policy decisions that impact you the most?

Dr. Barry L. Flinchbaugh from Kansas State University will address these topics in his keynote address at livestock day.

What was previously just legislation under consideration is now law. Every agricultural producer should be aware of the potential impact the nutrient management law will have on their operations.

Dr. Doug Beegle, Penn State agronomist, is a member of the state committee developing the implementation guidelines for the law.

The Pennsylvania Lamb Marketing Cooperative Committee has worked to develop a lamb marketing cooperative for the state. They are ready to receive members and to begin purchasing lambs, but they need the support of Pennsylvania Producers to make the effort successful.

Larry Yager will talk about the organization of the cooperative, how to become a member and the markets identified by the lamb feasibility study conducted.

York County's beef, sheep, and swine producer groups will furnisch lunch. Cost is $3 if you call ahead, $4 at the door.

Producers interested in receiving pesticide certification credits to remain current on their pesticide license will have the chance to learn something about pasture weed control; selecting herbicides, grazing restrictions, and specific weed control strategies.

Extension Agent John Rowehl will address these topics (worth 1 category credit) and will talk about new federal and state requirements for pesticide record keeping (worth 1 core credit).

Dan McFarland, extension ag Engineer, will discuss tunnel ventilation, perforated ceiling ventilation, and pit ventilation. You'll also learn about composting dead pigs during this season — a method that is gaining popularity with some livestock producers — and could provide some alternatives for your dead animal disposal problems.

Beef producers, whether small or large, have a lot of genetic potential that can be tapped for the beef herd.

Dr. Michael O'Connor, extension specialist in dairy and animal science will talk about using artificial insemination and estrus synchronization programs in beef herds. Effective use of these management tools enables a producer to tap into the excellent genetics available to cattle producers today.

Many people have an interest in Clean and Green, Ag Security Areas, and Agricultural Preservation Programs. Each of these programs offer opportunities, but have their own restrictions as well. The presentation will help you understand each program and decide if you'd like to be involved.

Advance registration is preferred for the event, but you may still attend the session without advance registration for $4 at the door.

To register, contact Penn State Cooperative Extension at (717) 757-9657 or write to 112 Pleasant Acres Road, York, PA 17402.

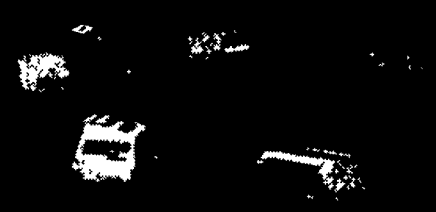
CLAAS® Rollant round balers give you what you want



—one quality round bale after another.

Discover Quality...Discover Value...

The Rollant 66 makes fast work of 4'x5' bales. Its unique two-stage pick-up and close tines produce a clean, efficient harvest in less time. Rollatex netting wraps a bale in 10 seconds or less, and double-twine wraps it up in just 20.

The Rollant 46 introduced CLAAS's innovative fixed bale chamber to the marketplace. This versatile baler handles all farm operations from dry hay to silage. Nobody produces a better 4'x4' bale.

The Rollant 42 was designed for family livestock operations. This economical investment produces weather-tight 4'x4' bales for the highest nutrient content possible.

CLAAS bales mean nutrient-filled edible hay, low spoilage, and high crude protein retention.

Each Rollant offers the innovative chamber, low-profile pick-up, and world class dependability. And they all share CLAAS's international reputation for low maintenance, durability and long-life.

Shred Corn Stalks or Cut Grass And Brush With A Well Built Rhino Cutter from Binkley & Hurst Now!

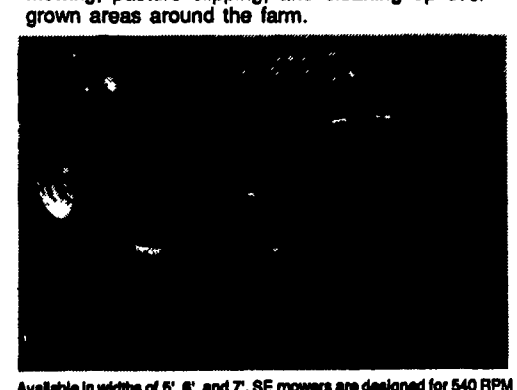
RHINO

The SR15...
15' Medium Duty, Flex Wing Rotary Cutter is the ideal choice for mowing pastures, highway rights-of-way, crop residue, and other general purpose applications.

Available in 540 or 1000 RPM, the SR15 features a proven four-gearbox design that is rated to cut material up to 2" in diameter.

The divider gearbox is rated at *140 HP and the center and wing gearboxes are rated at 100 HP. The 10 gauge deck is reinforced with heavy wall tubing that provides added strength and extended life to the mower's mainframe. Replaceable side skirts are ¼" thick and 10¼" deep, providing extra capacity to handle those demanding cutting jobs.
* 1000 RPM

The SE 5, 6 & 6...
Servis-Rhino's SE family of economical single-spindle rotary mowers are rated for material up to 1" in diameter and are ideal for weed or grass mowing, pasture clipping, and cleaning up overgrown areas around the farm.



Available in widths of 5', 6', and 7', SE mowers are designed for 540 RPM tractors with a standard CAT I three-point or CAT II hitch for the SE7. The flexible three-point hitch design allows the mower to follow the contour of the ground while minimizing the stress placed on the tractor. Standard features include free-swinging updraft blades for a cleaner cut, pan blade carries that help the unit glide over obstructions, and a streamlined deck provides for easier clean up and enhanced eye appeal. The rear tapered deck design provides for safer and more even distribution of cut material. A Cat 3 driveline is standard on the SE5. The SE6 and SE7 feature a dependable Cat 4 driveline to help withstand the horsepower of larger tractors. Ruggedly built and time-tested gearboxes are at the heart of every SE mower from Servis-Rhino to help provide quality at an economical price.

There's nothing more important to a crop than early, even emergence. To get it, you need accurate, even seeding.

The 5300 has earned a reputation for its seeding precision, a function of its exclusive feed cup design and dependable disk openers. And, to improve placement of seed, the opener drawbars are heavier than on previous models. Press wheel and opener bearings are heavier for long life operation.

Along with accuracy, the 5300 gives you fast, high capacity seeding, so you spend less time refilling hoppers. Grass seeding attachment for 16x7.

case IH PRECISION TILLAGE

Comes From Binkley & Hurst.

Case International 4800 and 4900 field cultivators cover up to 52 feet with every pass through the field. But even with this great width, tillage precision remains its level best.

First, there's simple fore-and-aft leveling to match tractor to cultivator. A unique self-leveling hitch keeps the unit level regardless of the working depth. Positive, mechanically-maintained depth control also means uniform working depth from side-to-side...all day long.

Moving the 4800 or 4900 from field to field is easy, too. Hydraulically controlled wings fold past center for extra stability and security during transport.

Put Case IH precision to work in your fields.

4 Wheel Drive Open ROPS Tractor 5230 MAXXUM: 90 PTO hp

Three years ago, the original line of Case International MAXXUM tractors set a standard for the mid size class that is yet to be matched. And now that standard is about to be raised. ■ Introducing the new 5230 MAXXUM. A mid size tractor that refuses to act that way. With the kind of deep reassuring power reserves that fieldwork demands. A standard 16F/12R transmission that ensures total versatility. And a list of features so complete that no job will seem out of reach. ■ For three years, we've compiled your suggestions regarding the original MAXXUM line. And now those suggestions are part of every new 5230. ■ You wanted more visibility, we added exclusive all glass doors. You asked for easier implement attachment, we added ground level hitch control. You wanted more muscle, we added horsepower, durability and efficiency. All in all, more than 50 changes have been made. ■ Stop by and see the new 5230 MAXXUM today. And bring along some high expectations.

While most lenders have barely scratched the surface in agriculture, we've gone a bit further.

Fact is, you can explain your needs to some bankers until you're blue in the face and chances are they still won't understand. Farm Credit loan officers, on the other hand, have been through the most comprehensive ag lending training program in the nation. And many have farm backgrounds themselves.

They can approve loans for just about any farm need from land to equipment. And since a committee isn't necessary for most decisions, loan approval is easy and fast.

Stop by and talk with your Farm Credit loan officer.

It's Time To Make Maple Syrup

ROBERT S. HANSEN
Extension Forester
Bradford County

As spring approaches and the days grow longer and warmer and the nights remain cold, it is time to make maple syrup.

In our area trees are tapped toward late February and early March.

Maple sugar products are truly a North American product. Native Americans were perhaps the first people to make sugar and syrup from the maple tree. Indians living in the Lake States and along the St. Lawrence River would tap maple trees and gather the sap into a hollowed log. Hot stones would be added to the log causing the water in the sap to evaporate and concentrate the sugar or syrup.

This sugar often became a very important food source for many Native Americans. Early white settlers learned how to make maple sugar from the Indians and soon developed methods of their own.

For many woodlot owners today, the making of maple syrup in the early spring is an important part of their activities. For some it has become a major cash crop from their woodlands. It is a unique crop in that it is often both produced and processed entirely on the farm.

The Province of Quebec by far leads North America in maple products production. In 1984, Pennsylvania ranked ninth in production behind Vermont, New York, Ontario, Ohio, New Hampshire, Michigan, and Wisconsin. States and Provinces producing less than Pennsylvania include New Brunswick, Massachusetts, Nova Scotia, Maine, and Minnesota.

The two tree species most often tapped for maple sugar production are the sugar maple (Acer saccharum), and black maple (Acer nigrum). Sugar maple is far more common in Pennsylvania than is black maple. Tapping generally does little harm to the tree if correct guidelines are followed.

Trees that have been defoliated by gypsy moth or have suffered foliage damage from pear thrips, should not be tapped. Trees less than 10 inches in diameter should not be tapped. Trees less than 15 inches should have only one tap. Trees greater than 20 inches can have four taps.

Tap holes are made by boring a 7/16 inch diameter hole at a slight upward angle into the tree to a depth of 2½ to 3 inches deep. A spout or spile is then gently tapped into the hole until it fits snugly. A galvanized bucket or special plastic bag can be attached to collect the sap. Many of the larger producers are using a plastic tubing system that collects sap and takes it straight to the sugar house or to large storage tanks.

Eventually the sap is brought to the sugarhouse where a large evaporator reduces the sap to syrup. The sap is stored in a covered tank and is slowly let into the evaporator. The evaporator is made up of a series of pans for boiling water from the sap.

Sap is added in at one end of the pan until a predetermined level is reached. As the water evaporates from the sap, the sap becomes more concentrated and moves into other pans. Sap is constantly added to the sap pan to maintain a constant level. The sap moves along the different compartments losing more water to evaporation along the way.

Finally, the finished syrup is drained from the syrup pan at the end of the process. The syrup is strained to remove "sugar sand" and other impurities and sealed in containers.

The amount of sap needed to make a gallon of syrup varies with the percent sugar of the sap. Sugar contents of sap varies from tree to tree from less than 1 percent to sometimes 10 percent. The normal is about 2 to 3 percent.

Approximately 40 gallons of sap with a 2 percent sugar content is needed to produce one gallon of syrup. Maple producers are often concerned with maintaining healthy trees as healthy trees have a higher sugar content in their sap. Producers also favor trees with known higher sugar contents in thinning and timber stand improvement.

Maple syrup can be made into other treats. Maple sugar, maple fudge, and maple cream are just a few. A great place to sample maple products and have a good time is at the Endless Mountain Maple Festival at the Troy Fairgrounds in Troy on April 23 and 24.

If you would like additional information on making maple syrup, you can contact a local maple producer or the county extension office.

Plants Tailored To Resist Viruses

WASHINGTON, D.C. — For sale: plants immune to disease-causing virus.

That's what gardeners and farmers can look forward to, say U.S. Department of Agriculture scientists who have built virus immunity into laboratory test plants.

Plant pathologist John Hammond of USDA's Agricultural Research Service says immunity can be bred into future plants—from ornamental flowers like orchids and gladiolus to peas, beans and other farm crops. A virus outbreak can be costly — one virus reduced the $13 million-a-year market value of commercially grown gladiolus in Florida by 15 to 20 percent.

Hamond and colleagues at ARS's Beltsville, Md., research center used a genetic technology — antisense — to create immunity. "We reserved the coding sequence of a piece of genetic material taken from a plant virus to create an antisense gene," he said. "When we inserted this gene in some experimental tobacco plants, we found it 'disarmed' invading plant viruses."

Antisense technology is a form of genetic engineering in which cells are instructed to do the opposite of what one of their genes is telling them to do. Antisense is now new, but this is "the first time it's been used successfully to create virus-resistant plants," Hammond said.

Plants with the antisense gene will churn out antisense RNA — the chemical cousin of DNA — as genetic material that binds to an invading virus's RNA. This binding apparently prevents the virus from reproducing itself in the plant. If the virus can't reproduce and spread, then it can't harm the plant, the scientist explained.

Hammond found that the antisense gene that was taken from bean yellow mosaic virus protected the engineered tobacco plants from the virus. A desert species of the tobacco plant, Nicotiana benthamiana, was used because it's very susceptible to potyviruses — the largest group of viruses attacking crops in this country.

Hammond worked about two years with plant pathologist Kathryn Kamo and plant geneticist Robert Greisbach on perfecting the anti-virus gene technology at their Beltsville labs.

He estimates that the antisense gene might be ready in two to five years for breeders of floral and other crops to use. Similar antisense genes should work in the future to combat related viruses that infect fruit trees.

DIVISION OF ALLIED PRODUCTS CORPORATION

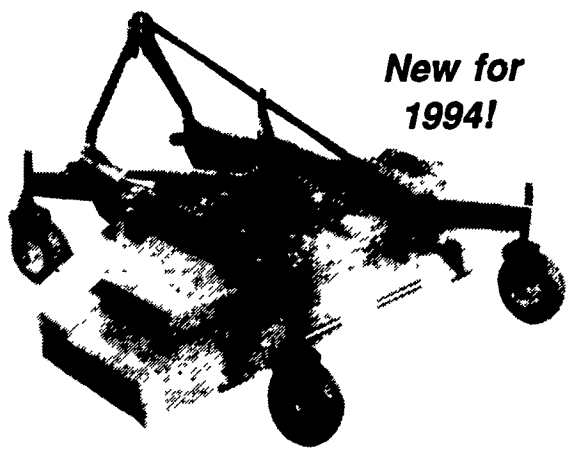
NEW... NEW... NEW FOR 1994!

BUSH HOG®
ATH-900 SERIES
FINISHING MOWERS



Designed for use by commercial operators and owners of homes with large lawns to maintain, Bush Hog's ATH-900 Finishing Mower features a full 90-inch cutting width.

The unique tunnel design of the ATH-900 allows you to mow in heavier, thicker conditions. And the special design of the deck eliminates "dead spots." Floating top and lower linkage work to prevent the scalping problems often encountered when mowing on uneven terrain. And the four pneumatic tires are standard equpiment to help reduce the shock loads of rugged cutting requirements.

Maintenance is easy, with quick access to all grease zerts.

BUSH HOG®
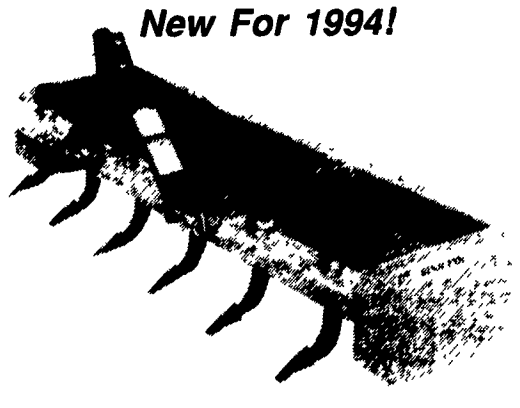
BOX BLADES



Four models designed for a wide variety of jobs around the farm, and applicable for landscaping and construction chores.

• Choice of widths - 48" to 84" • Two cutting edges work in forward or reverse • Mounts to a wide range of tractors, maximum of 40 HP • Scarifier teeth are standard equipment • Heavy reinforced A-frame • Excellent for grading, backfilling, leveling topsoil and gravel

BUSH HOG®
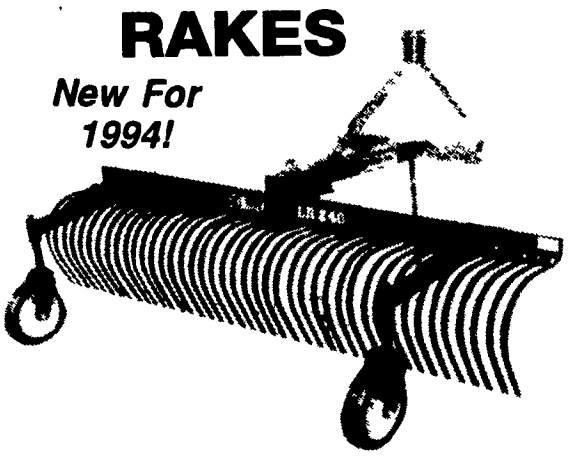
LANDSCAPE RAKES



Here's your best choice in a dependable tool that's ideal for seedbed preparation, landscaping, spreading gravel or topsoil and removing rocks and debris from fields and farmyards. Bush Hog's Landscape Rakes are recommended for tractors with a maximum 35 HP, and are available in 5, 6, or 7-foot widths. High carbon spring steel tines are spaced at 1" intervals, for more thorough leveling or rock removal. These rakes pivot a full 360 degrees, a feature that assures a more versatile operation. And the pivot pin is 1¼" solid steel- for greater durability.

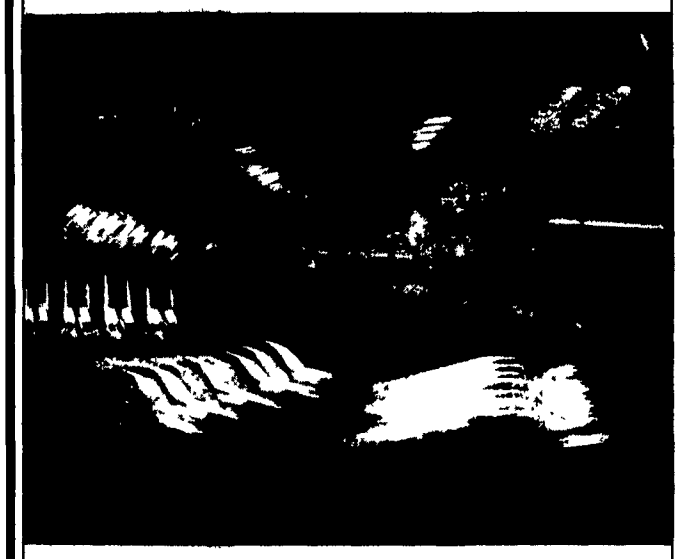
A turn for the better.



Kuhn's Gyrorake turns haymaking upside down with the 3-in-1 rake, windrow inverter and tedder. Windrow inversion is an essential process that not only allows hay to dry faster, but also decreases leaf loss as it increases nutrient levels Get the job done fast with a Kuhn Gyrorake. It lets you match rotor and ground speeds to your crop conditions for gentle, efficient inverting.

But when it comes to Kuhn Gyrorakes, windrow inversion is just part of the story. The GA series offers gentle, high speed raking without roping. Side delivery enables you to double windrow And if needed, the Gyrorake also is an effective tedder for fluffing and drying hay

Kuhn Gyrorake is also available with special features to make the job go easier and faster Wide flotation balloon tires (standard equipment) reduce ground pressure for more gentle treatment of crop stubble. Optional bogie axle tames the roughest ground

The Kuhn GA series of single rotor rakes is available in working widths of 10'6" to 13'. And for really big operations, there's the GA 7301 Twin Gyrorake with adjustable working widths from 21'4" to 24' for raking up to 17 acres per hour.

Kuhn Gyrorakes—taking a turn for the better so you'll turn out better hay.

Cut and dried.

Kuhn's FC series Mower Conditioners—faster cutting, faster drying, better hay. But what else would you expect from the recognized worldwide leader in mower conditioner technology? Kuhn applied over 160 years of research to build a mower conditioner that cuts quicker (7–9 m.p.h , 6–7-1/2 acres/hour) and requires less dry down than many other systems on the market. And Kuhn's FC series is easy on your crop With a choice of finger comb or roller conditioning, you can match your crop type for even and gentle conditioning with less nutrient loss

Easy to operate and easy to maintain, Kuhn is the only manufacturer to design a cutter bar exclusively for mower/conditioners to ensure longer life

Three hitch types available to fit your pocketbook The GT and Gyrodine® Hitches allow tight 90° turns while providing longer driveline life

Kuhn's got just the right conditioner for you Available in the following sizes:
- 6'7" 3-point model
- 8'2", 9'10" and 11'6" pull-types models

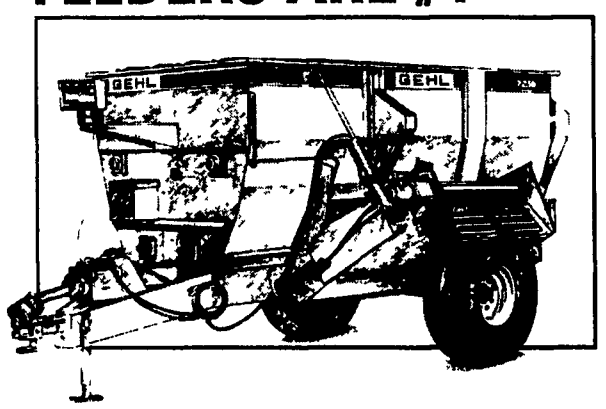
GEHL

GEHL TMR MIXER FEEDERS ARE #1



Nothing makes a Total Mixed Ration (TMR) feeding system work better than a Gehl mixer feeder. Here's why:

- Better Mixing Action – Unique four-auger design creates a double figure-8 mixing pattern for fast and complete mixing of all feed ingredients.
- Energy Efficient – Planetary drive system requires less horsepower
- Built To Last – Patented star couplers absorb shock loads by allowing the bottom augers to flex, providing long service life
- Six Sizes – 150 to 500 cubic feet capacities
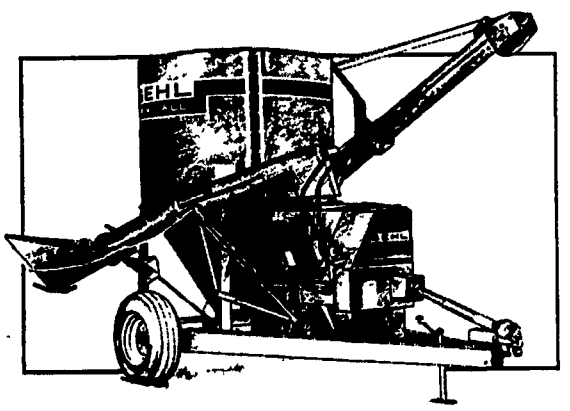
- Three Styles – Trailer type, stationary and truck-mounted units to fit your operation

THE #1 NAME IN FEEDMAKING



Gehl Mix-All® portable grinder-mixers have been leading the industry for over 30 years. Now the new Gehl Roller Mixer combines proven Mix-All features with a commercial-grade roller mill to produce the best possible feed for your livestock.

- Total hydraulic control – Self-contained hydraulic system allows infinite speeds to power the discharge conveyor, unloading auger and in-feed attachments.
- Remote controls – Operate the unloading conveyor from the tractor seat or from the rear of the machine.
- Electronic scales – For precise ration weighing.
- Customize your machine – With a wide variety of options and attachments.

FPPF Polar Power

Keeps Your Diesel Running In The Worst Winter Cold!

Fuel filters, separators do nothing to keep diesel fuel from the waxing or gelling that blocks up and clogs fuel lines and filters.

FPPF Polar Power contains FPPF's Fuel Power and FPPF's Polarized Diesel Fuel Flow Improver, the industry's leaders. It will keep your diesel running in the worst winter cold: lowering the pour-point, totally dispersing water, eliminating gum/varnish...outperforming all other additives and at lower cost.

Prize-Winning Berks Corn Farmers Share Secrets

HUFF CHURCH (Berks Co.) — The secret to Burd and his son David Schantz's continually winning categories of the Pennsylvania corn contest is available to most any farmer.

"We have endless amounts of manure," said Burd with a laugh about his high-yielding corn. Burd won first place in the ear corn three-year average class by the Pennsylvania Five-Acre Corn Club contest.

Prizes were awarded recently at the annual Pennsylvania Corn Conference in Lancaster.

Burd, of Alburtis R.D. 1, had an average yield of 200.8 bushels per acre using Pioneer 3358, 3245 and 3352. Son David, also of Alburtis R.D. 1, won the one-year ear corn class, hand harvest size with a yield of 205.9 bushels per acre using Pioneer 3358.

"You can see the difference (in the yield) when you put on the manure," Burd said.

And there's plenty of it to use on the corn crop since the Schantz's have 175 registered Holsteins. Including heifer's and calves, the herd swells to 375 head. His rolling herd average of milk is 19,000 pounds.

"It's a lot of manure to put on the ground," Burd said, "but we try to get it in the right fields."

They don't do anything extra other than add manure on the two five-acre plots of land on which they grow corn for the contest. This regimen is the same the Schantz's use for all 250 to 300 acres of corn they

Good Field Conditions Pay Off In Award-Winning Corn Harvest

DOYLESTOWN (Bucks Co.) — Using better judgement, corn farmer Matthew Maximuck and his father Walter waited until it was just right — until the fields were dry enough to work their no-till planter in mid-May — before planting corn.

Waiting payed off big when they were able to harvest an average of 203.92 bushels per acre from a 10-acre parcel of rented land near Solebury, garnering a first place award in the state in the National Corn Growers Association (NCGA) yield contest.

Matthew, Walter, and Sally Maximuck — in addition to Matthew's wife Cheryl and children Matt Jr., 11 and Melissa, 13 — farm about 1,100 acres of land on 25 separate farms in the rapidly urbanized area near Doylestown. Their cash-cropping operation devotes about 550 acres to growing corn, about 70 percent of which is in no-till and the rest minimum tillage. The remaining acreage includes about 400-500 acres of soybeans, 100-150 acres of wheat, and the rest hay.

According to Matthew, it was a combination of looking for the right planting conditions and getting the right weather at critical moments that pushed the harvest way up above the Maximuck's previous record last year of 189 bushels per acre.

"We try to stay out of the fields when they're wet," said Matthew. "We might be sitting another day longer than a lot of other people in the area."

Matthew said many farmers see others planting early, and decide that maybe it is time to plant. He said that, years ago, when he was young and farming with his father, he would often suggest going in early to plant. But his father would tell

PRODUCING CORN PROFITABLY IN 1994

Good corn prices mean corn growers may have another opportunity to make money this year. It also means. however, that livestock producers need to grow their corn as efficiently as possible to hold down feed costs.

To increase your chances of success, be sure to consider some of the basics of profitable corn production listed below as you finalize your plans and progress through the season.

1. Field selection. Before you crop a piece of land, be sure to "farm it on paper" before investing your hard earned cash. Generally, returns from production should at least cover variable or "out of pocket" costs, to establish and harvest the crop. For corn, those costs and land rent can often exceed $200, meaning that a 70-80 bushel yield potential or more may be necessary just to pay for those expenses.

2. Crop rotation. This age-old practice can contribute to higher yields, lower N requirements, and lower insecticide needs. It may also help with control of those nasty perennial weeds. While rotated corn on your farm may be limited because of feed requirements or government programs, corn grown on rotated ground can often be produced from 30-50 cents a bushel cheaper. This will help reduce the overall corn production cost on your farm.

3. Fertilizer programs. Take full advantage of soil testing and manure and legume N credits in your fertilizer program. The N soil test can also be very profitable — particularly if you apply lots of manure and are also applying substantial amounts of N. Prioritize your fertilizer usage if you find yourself short of cash. On optimum to high testing soils, the greatest returns come first from N, then P (in the starter), and then K. Yield responses to more than 100-150 pounds of starter fertilizer are rare. Higher rates are necessary only to meet soil test recommendations and maintain fertility.

4. Scout your fields. If you do no other scouting on your corn this year, plan to visit each field at least once — two to three weeks after planting. This will give you an opportunity to assess the stand, weed control effectiveness, and insect activity while you still have time to do something. If you can, make a couple of additional trips one to two weeks apart to monitor weeds and insects early in the season. Failure to diagnose an early season problem can quickly eliminate any profit from that field.

5. Select top yielding hybrids. Top performing hybrids don't cost a whole lot more than others. Pay attention to yield performance data and your own production records to put the best hybrids available to work for you. Consider hybrid traits when you place them in different fields. Monitor hybrid performance this year so you have some information next year.

6. Pay attention to weed control details. Weed control is one area where profits are often limited by applying too much, too little, or the wrong chemical for weed control. Start by learning to identify your problem weeds and then developing an appropriate herbicide program to control those weeds. The Penn State Agronomy Guide is a great reference for this.

7. Timeliness. Do what you can to improve timeliness. Plan, organize, and have equipment and labor ready to go when the planting season arrives. Make your sacrifices early in the season to get the crop in. Too often we wait until the end of the planting season to get into high gear, but then the return from our efforts isn't as great.

8. Manage your equipment effectively. Our small fields and animal production requirements mean that we often need a larger equipment complement compared to our midwest counterparts. To maximize our return from this equipment investment, we need to learn to adjust, maintain, and operate it as effectively as possible. If you don't have time or care to do the adequate maintenance or adjustment, pay some else to do it. This will result in more consistent stands and less harvest losses.

Brazilian Team Buys U.S. Corn

A team of poultry producers from Brazil will purchase $44 million of U.S. corn because of a U.S. Feed Grains Council trade servicing effort that brought Brazilian buyers and U.S. sellers together.

In December, the first 25,000 metric tons (984,000 bushels) of a possible $44 million in no. 2 yellow corn was sold to the Ceara State Poultry Association, with an additional 200,000 metric tons (7.8 million bushels) expected to be purchased by Brazil during 1994.

The idea to bring a team of Brazilian poultry producers to the United States originated during a market assessment trip to Latin America in October, where Council staff saw an opportunity to sell U.S. corn. The Council brought the team to the United States to expose them to all aspects of grain production and feed ration systems. The Brazilian team made the decision to buy U.S. corn at the end of their trip.

Pigchamp Introduced In Japan

Because of the technical assistance efforts of the U.S. Feed Grains Council, PigChamp, the most widely used record-keeping database system in the United States for the swine industry, will be introduced for the first time in Japan.

Japan's interest in PigChamp arose during a Council-sponsored swine industry workshop in 1991. By using the database system, Japan will be able to improve its efficiency and profitability in swine production, thereby increasing the need for feed grains.

A consultant from the University of Minnesota traveled to Japan in January in another Council-sponsored swine industry workshop to introduce the Japanese version of the program.

Korea Buys U.S. Corn

The Korean Corn Processing Industry Association recently purchased 50,000 metric tons (1.97 million bushels) of U.S. no. 2 yellow corn.

The association excluded Chinese corn in order to buy U.S. corn for the production of quality dry milling products. Corn processors in Korea imported approximately 1.56 million metric tons (61.4 million bushels) of corn in 1993, with 418,600 metric tons (16.5 million bushels) from the United States.

Thailand To Import Corn

U.S. Feed Grains Council trade servicing visits to Thailand indicate that Thailand may become a significant importer of corn in 1994.

Several feedmilling and trade sources stated that domestic production of corn is once again insufficient to meet demand. Imports are expected to begin in March and continue through the summer.

"So we'd wait another day or two and it paid off," said Matthew. "You don't think it does, because you're running a little bit late or this or that, but it does pay off."

Maximuck said that some land they farm is "wet" and requires additional management considerations. But since the 1970s, when no-till came on the scene, no-till is what they have been using to maximum effect.

Because of using no-till, which disturbs little of the soil surface, Maximuck said there is a "a real good organic matter buildup" in the top three to four inches of soil. He said the buildup helps fertility and nutrient-holding capacity of the soil.

Fortunately, the Maximucks have not used deep-tilling to break up compaction. There are only two passes for the equipment for planting season — once for anhydrous ammonia application and the other for the planter.

The Maximucks inject the anhydrous ammonia in April, depending on weather conditions. Matthew said they would like to start planting corn by May 1. He said that if it is warm enough, and soil conditions are right, they often go in the latter part of April.

At planting time, they use a 6-24-24 starter fertilizer. They use a no-till corn planter with rippled coulters, depending on ground conditions. Last year, they used 1½ -inch wavy coulters and later changed to rippled coulters to break up the soil.

"Every year is different, and during that year we might have to change the coulters to meet soil conditions," he said.

Matthew, pictured here, and Walter and Sally Maximuck — in addition to Matthew's wife Cheryl and children Matt Jr., 11 and Melissa, 15 — farm about 1,100 acres of land on 25 separate farms in the rapidly urbanized area near Doylestown. Their cash cropping operation devotes about 550 acres to growing corn, about 70 percent of which is in no-till and the rest minimum tillage. The remaining acreage includes soybeans and hay. Doylestown corn growers Matthew, center, and Cheryl Maximuck recently received a trophy for being state winners in the 1993 National Corn Yield Contest sponsored by the National Corn Growers Association (NCGA). Loran Brooks, right, chairman of the contest, presented the award during the recent NCGA Corn Classic in Denver, Colo.

The Maximucks planted the Solebury field on May 11, 1993, in 30-inch rows at a population of 25,300 plants. The seed used was Dekalb DK623. The field was harvested on Nov. 8.

Maximuck said that they use a wide range of maturity dates with Dekalb seed.

They don't do any sidedressing. The only other time they spend in the field is scouting for insects and weed pressure and spraying.

The weed pressure they experienced was morning glory, hemp dogbane, bur cucumber, panicum, and Canada thistle. Because of the corn residue from last year, there is a problem with slugs — one of the reasons why Matthew said they are considering using some form of zone-tillage on this year's crop.

The crop was not irrigated.

He and his father have been using 30-inch row spacing for the past 20 years. They believe it is important to boost the plant population and place the stalks closer together, with anywhere from 6-inch to 8½ -inch seed placing, depending on variety.

One farm that Matthew classifies as "wet" has a small window of opportunity. When the conditions are right, that farm has the priority and is done. "Because if you miss that window, then it will be wet until the middle of July," he said.

One of the problems they experienced this year was a lack of rain after the anhydrous ammonia application.

"If it's another dry year and we put anhydrous down and we don't get any rain on top of it, we definitely want to run some type of tillage piece over it so we get better seed-to-soil contact," he said.

For weed control, they use Bicep and Gramoxone for burn down and Furadan for insects. They will be using liquid Furadan this year. For additional insect control, they use Banvel and Accent.

"Every field is different," he said. "We won't just mix up and just go spray everything.

"We do a lot of scouting. Dad does a lot of that," he said.

What has helped the past year's corn crop has been the timely rains.

"Most of our corn this year had just enough rain to keep it going, which I think really helped," said Maximuck. "We were drying up a few different times. But then we'd get a quarter-inch or something, just enough to keep the corn going."

This is the third year that the

NCGA Asks Secretary Espy To Increase Loan Rates

WASHINGTON, D.C. — National Corn Growers Association (NCGA) has called on Agriculture Secretary Mike Espy to provide corn growers additional program flexibility and increase price support loan rates for the 1994 crop.

NCGA President Pete Wenstrand, an Essex, Iowa, farmer, urged Espy to implement the so-called "Targeted Option Payments" program that would allow individual farmers to increase their corn acreage reduction percentage in return for a higher target price. In a letter to Espy, Wenstrand said that the "TOP" option "in addition to producer flexibility... should provide significant conservation benefits."

Authorized by the 1990 farm act, the TOP program would permit producers to select a setaside of up to ten percent. At the full 10 percent level, USDA could increase the current $2.75-per-bushel target price to within a range of $2.89-$3.03.

Wenstrand also reiterated NCGA's request that USDA set the 1994 corn marketing loan rate at the basic rate of $1.99 per bushel or higher. He argued that since a "properly-implemented" marketing loan will reflect market prices and prevent the accumulation of stocks, there is no justification to reduce the basic loan rate.

Wenstrand thanked Espy for his recent "diligent efforts on behalf of U.S. agriculture," including his work on the North American Free Trade Agreement, the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade's Uruguay Round accord, and the Environmental Protection Agency's proposed rule for renewable oxygenates, including ethanol.

Maximucks have won the contest. The first year they placed first, last year second, and this year garnered another first place. Matthew has attended the NCGA Corn Classic, where the award is presented, three years in a row. This year's event was held recently in Denver, Colo.

Regardless, according to Maximuck, they would still attend the Corn Classic.

"I think it's worth it," he said, because of the learning experience.

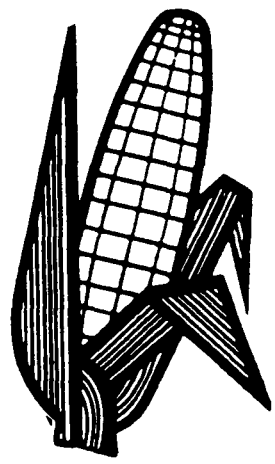
Recently, because of the heavy snow and ice in the area, a roof over a grain drier collapsed. They have spent a lot of time taking care of the farm's older structures because of bad weather.

The Maximucks are also busy loading up feed with their Maximuck's Farm Fresh Wild Bird Seed business.

Before attending the Corn Classic, Matthew and Walter have been busy getting the equipment ready, including calibrating and cleaning up the soybean planter.

This time a year, the Maximucks try to attend various farm meetings in the area to learn about more efficient use of the land.

The biggest highlight of the NCGA events and other farm meetings is "talking to the people," said Matthew. "I do a lot of listening. That's how I learn the most — talking to people and finding out what works for them."



When You Plant CFS Waxy Hybrids, You're Planting More Than Just Corn.

Facts prove that starch content is what makes corn the ideal animal feed. And that's what makes CFS waxy corn different from dent. CFS waxy is 100% amylopectoin starch ... zero percent amylose. (Dent is 25% amylose).

Amylopectin starch is more digestible. That means CFS waxy maintains no less than a 25% advantage over dent ... in the feedlot or milking parlor.

On-farm tests show the average weight gain/feed efficiency in beef, sheep, swine and other animals fed waxy corn increased up to 10% over dent fed animals.

In dairy herds CFS waxy increased butterfat, protein and milk production.

And, CFS waxy yields as well, if not better than dent. And it costs no more. Also, CFS waxy can be produced as a cash crop ... often bringing premium prices when used for export.

Faster weight gain, more milk and flexibility ... that's why CFS waxy hybrids are more than just corn.

Prize-Winning Berks Corn Farmers Share Secrets

plant on their 500-acre farm.

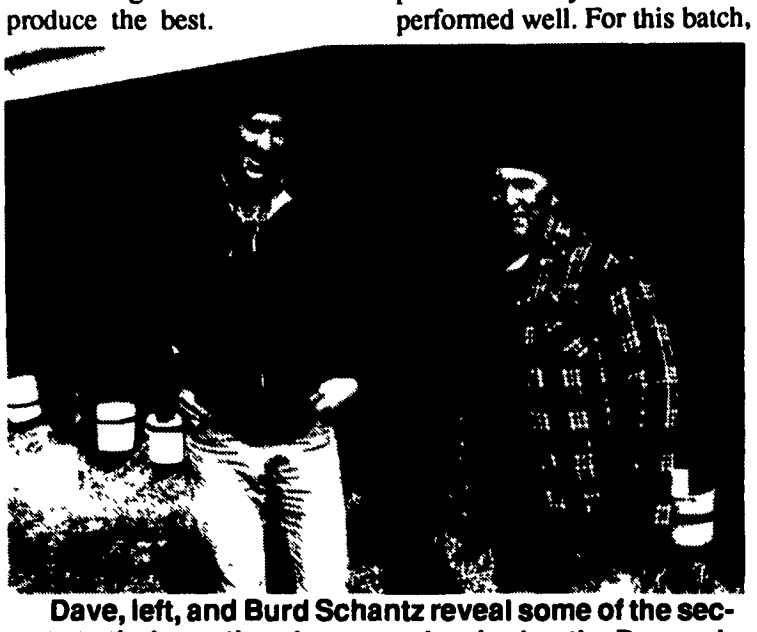
"We're choosy as to which field we use (for the corn contest)," Burd said. "There's a big difference in soil types around here."

But the manure, being rich in phosphorus and potassium, is the key to success, Dave said.

Knowledge of the makeup of their soil is also valuable in determining which fields will produce the best.

The two plots they used in the contest are five miles apart from each other. Though they're on fairly flat land, their soil contains a lot of rocks, Burd said. But this is good, he said, for rocks help hold the moisture. The soil in these plots is good.

In previous years, Burd said, they planted their corn contest corn in ground they considered poor in fertility and the corn performed well. For this batch, they decided to try planting in ground that was high in fertility and it performed even better.



Dave, left, and Burd Schantz reveal some of the secrets to their continual success in winning the Pennsylvania Five-Acre Corn Club contest. Burd won first place in ear corn three-year average class and Dave won first place in ear corn one-year average class.

Dave and Burd Schantz show some of the corn in the high-yield category.

The weather, of course, is the major factor, he said. And the weather in the past year was excellent for growing medium-season corn.

"There was fairly decent moisture all year," Dave said. This past growing season there was enough heat and moisture for the corn to mature correctly, which was vastly different from 1992, which may have been the soggiest year in Berks County history.

At harvest this year, the corn had an average of 20 percent moisture.

Burd notes that one of the best things about the corn contest is how much he's learned over the 12 years in which he has participated (and won several times).

"When they come out to check (the corn) you learn what plant population you have," he said.

Over the years he's learned that plant populations of 26,000 to 28,000 per acre at harvest give the best yields. If there are more than that, the plants crowd each other out.

"We tried planting 33,000 per acre and found that (the yield) goes the other way," Burd said. And the plants get very little of what they need.

Corn-growing expertise isn't limited to Dave and Burd. Dave's wife, Kathy, has a field, and in the fall she won the highest yield award at 205 bushels per acre from the Young Farmer's Association of Kutztown annual corn contest.

Corn Growers Hold Key To Future

DENVER, Colo. — Nearly 2,000 corn growers and industry leaders met recently here for the National Corn Growers Association's (NCGA) 1994 Corn Classic.

At the General Session, NCGA President Pete Wenstrand stressed the need for corn growers to be innovative and proactive leaders of agriculture.

"We need new demand and new growth for our crop," said the Essex, Iowa, corn grower. "We have a primary responsibility to communicate and educate.

"We need to champion our successes, especially when it comes to the environment," said Wenstrand. "We have to aggressively pursue any environmental problem, whether real or perceived."

Wenstrand also emphasized that growers need to debate the issues to make better decisions. "We have two communication challenges," he said. "People have different perspectives because they have different experiences. And we assume that people know the issues and that they think like us."

Wenstrand stressed the fundamental importance of individual producers assuming a proactive role on issues. And he noted that the need for corn growers to form vertical and horizontal coalitions to achieve their goals.

Also at the General Session, Eric Vaughn, president and chief executive officer of the Renewable Fuels Association, complimented corn growers on their commitment to achieving a meaningful role for ethanol in the Clean Air Act's Renewable Fuels Gasoline (RFG) program.

The Clinton Administration is proposing the addition of a Renewable Oxygenate Requirement (ROR) that could give oxygenates like ethanol a 30 percent market share. Vaughn called the ROR initiative "extremely positive" for ethanol and predicted that a final ruling may be issued by June.

The Environmental Protection Agency's (EPA) comment period on the ROR closed Feb. 14. Of the 10,000 comments received by EPA, Vaughn noted that corn growers wrote 9,628. Vaughn stressed that oil companies will continue to fight any market gain for ethanol and that corn growers need to remain vigilant.

Keynote speaker and political analyst Mark Shields, whose appearance was sponsored by DowElanco, observed that the political climate in Washington, DC, has changed. He said that concerns about health care, the deficit, and jobs propelled Governor Bill Clinton into the White House. Shields noted that with a democratic Congress and a democratic Administration, there's a new expectation of accountability.

USDA ASCS Administrator Grant Buntrock told corn growers, "We want to work with you. USDA is committed to fundamental change in our government. We want the agency to be open, accessible and friendly to the people it serves." He said that the Clinton Administration would continue its commitment to ethanol.

Buntrock also noted that USDA's decision to have a zero percent ARP for 1994 was "not made without a great deal of thought." He described it as an "opportunity for planting flexibility."

Buntrock noted that proposed changes in the crop insurance program would provide more protection in a disaster, help manage risk, and make crop insurance more affordable and available to everyone.

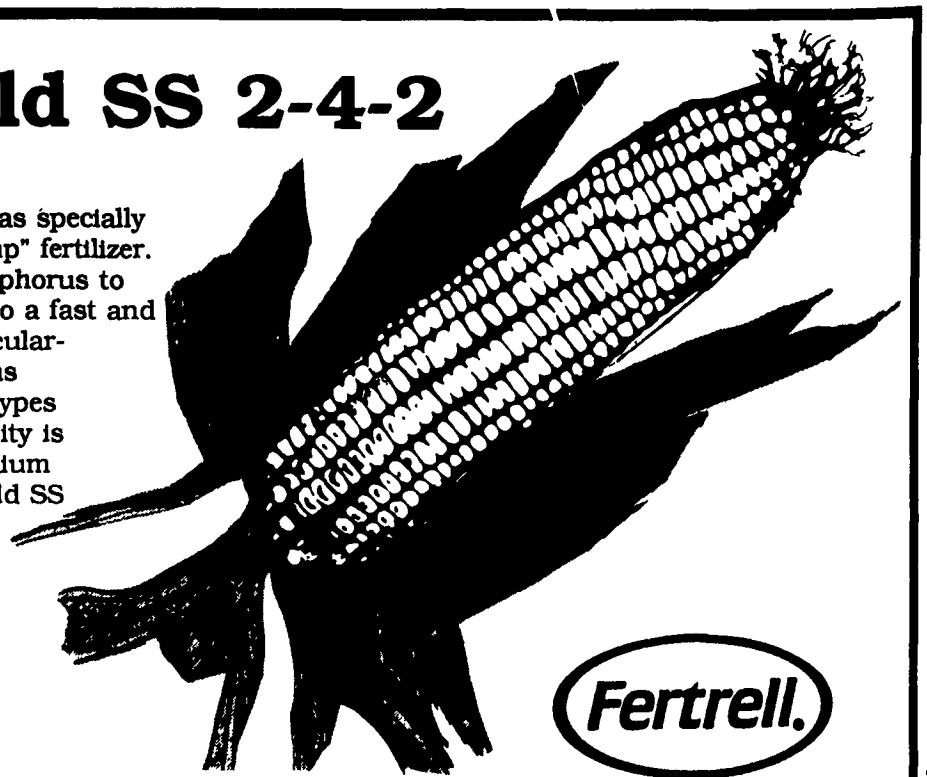
Fertrell. Gold SS 2-4-2



Fertrell Gold Special Starter was specially formulated as a starter or "pop up" fertilizer. It provides readily available phosphorus to get the germinating seedling off to a fast and vigorous start. This can be particularly advantageous in northern areas with cold soil or on heavier soil types in a wet season, even if soil fertility is high. On soils testing low to medium in phosphorus levels, Fertrell Gold SS is the most efficient in a band application.

Use Fertrell Gold SS as a starter over a wide variety of crops, especially corn and small grains.

Just ask for Fertrell representative to develop a personalized fertilizer plan for you. He'll analyze your soil's elements, your crops and growing conditions, and show you how to balance all three so you too can "see the difference right away!"

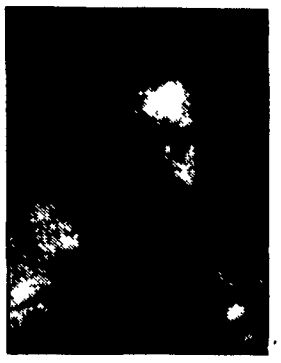
President's Message

H. Grant Troop
President, PMCGA



Well, Mr. Groundhog, your time is up. Spring is now just around the corner. By the way — that was quite a memorable six weeks of winter you left us with as you crawled back into your hole.

It's hard to believe that our 1994 Corn Conference and the National Corn Growers "Corn Classic" (annual meeting) are behind us. By the way, it was just great to see and visit with so many of you at the Pennsylvania Corn Conference on Feb. 4 in Lancaster. We thought the program was top notch and our guest speakers did an outstanding job.

A special "thank you" goes out to our conference committee and our guest speakers. We had good support from our exhibitor/sponsors and we commend them for their participation. Also, we would like to congratulate the winners of our 1993 Five-Acre Corn Club.

A final footnote: My cervical disk operation on Feb. 7 was successful and I have much relief in the affected areas. Many thanks for your prayers and concern.

Have you taken advantage of the membership incentive plan? With a three-year membership (new or renewal), a sponsoring seed corn company will provide you with a bag of seed corn at no charge if you grow five or more acres of corn.

This is an excellent way to introduce fellow corn growers to PMCGA. A three-year membership is $60 and our annual dues are $25 if you would rather go year-to-year.

Please remember to thank the local representatives of the sponsoring seed corn companies for their participation. The MIP theme is "Try Something New" and we hope you do. Please refer to the membership application form printed elsewhere in this issue of Corn Talk.

As a member, you will receive Corn Farmer Magazine — a successful farming publication, The National Corn Grower newsletter, and Corn Talk, our state newsletter which you have in hand. As a member you can participate in national and/or state corn yield contests. Every member is mailed a copy of the results of the national corn yield contest and the Pennsylvania Five-Acre Corn Club yield contest.

Members also receive copies of the Pennsylvania commercial corn hybrid test results for each of the four maturity zones in Pennsylvania. This testing, conducted by Penn State, is a very good tool to use when evaluating the corn hybrids on the market and how they might meet the needs of our corn production operations.

As an organization, we promote fellowship between farmers wherever corn is grown. We are dedicated to the profitable production and utilization of corn. Our purpose is to keep members abreast of the latest developments in all segments of corn production, storage, and utilization.

We are at the threshold of spring, bursting forth in all its splendor. As we behold the majesty of the renewal of the earth's surface by the creator, may we experience daily renewal of the inner man wrought by the touch of the master's hand.

Using Manure In Corn Crop Production

Leon Ressler
Lancaster Extension
Environmental Agent

Crop nutrients are a major part of the cost in corn production. Substituting manure for fertilizer can result in savings for the corn producer in many situations.

Development of highly concentrated animal production facilities has created large quantities of manure which need to be marketed to other operations for use in crop production.

If you are considering using manure as a source of crop nutrients, you should first consider the advantages and disadvantages of using animal manures.

Low cost is a primary advantage that one can realize using manure. In concentrated animal production areas. manure is available for less than the commercial value of the nutrients. In some situations the manure is free.

Manure can also add organic matter, which helps to improve the soil's water-holding capacity. Micronutrients are a bonus that comes with manure as well. Some of the nitrogen that is in the manure is available slowly over time, which can contribute to the nitrogen needs of future crops.

As with everything, using manure comes with disadvantages as well. Weed seeds can be a problem, especially with bedded pack manure. This is less of a concern with poultry or hog manure.

Another problem with manure is that the nitrogen, phosphorus, and potash come in a fixed ratio. For example, your soil tests may indicate your corn crop needs only nitrogen and potash, but to meet that need with manure means that you will be applying phosphorus as well. Most soils in Pennsylvania have the capacity to store phosphorus, but it is important to monitor your fields with soil tests to avoid buildup of extremely high levels.

Odors and flies can be a problem with manure, especially if your field is in a urban area. Prompt incorporation is the best way to minimize problems with your neighbors.

The biggest disadvantage with manure is the handling costs and potential compaction from application equipment. Ultimately, an evaluation of the nutrient value of the manure versus what it will cost you to get it on the field will determine whether it is the right move for you.

In order to make that evaluation, you need to know the fertilizer value of the manure. Ask the supplier of the manure to give you a manure test indicating its fertilizer value. Then it is a fairly simple calculation to determine the what the nutrients are worth.

When calculating the value of the nitrogen, remember that only a portion of the nitrogen will be available to the crop the first year. Refer to Table 21 in "The 1993-1994 Agronomy Guide" to determine nitrogen availability for your management system. Multiply the percentage of the nitrogen available times the pounds of nitrogen per ton times the commercial value of the nitrogen per pound and you will have the value of the nitrogen per ton. Multiply the pounds of phosphorus per ton times the market value for a pound of phosphorus and you will have the value of the phosphorus per ton of manure. Repeat this same process for potash and you will have the value for potash per ton. Then add the values for the nitrogen, phosphorus, and potash to arrive at a total value of the manure.

Remember, this calculation assumes that you need all three nutrients. If your soil tests indicate you only need nitrogen, then the value of the nitrogen is really all that the manure is

How Much Is Manure Worth?

1. Determine the current market price for N, P_2O_5, and K_2O for your area and use those prices in the following example formulas.
2. Use a manure test to determine the N-P_2O_5-K_2O content of your manure. If no manure test is available use book values in the agronomy guide.
3. Use table 21 in the 93-94 Agronomy Guide to determine the N availability factor for the manure nitrogen under your management system.

For Example: A poultry layer manure sample has a nutrient content of 38 lbs. of N, 48 lbs. of O_2O_5, and 25 lbs. of K_2O per ton. The manure will be spring applied and incorporated within one day. The value per ton would be:

38 lbs. N X .50 (Availability Factor) X $0.25 per lb.	=$ 4.75
48 lbs. P_2O_5 X $0.22 per lb.	=$10.56
25 lbs. K_2O X $0.18	=$ 4.50
	$19.81

Note: This calculation assumes that the crop requires all the nutrients in the manure. However your soil test may show for instance that your corn field requires only nitrogen. In that case you could only justify paying for the nitrogen in the manure if you were buying it.

Table 21. Percentage of total manure nitrogen remaining available to crops after storage and handling, as affected by application method and field history.

A. Current year, time of application, and incorporation	N availability factor Poultry manure	Other manure
Manure applied for CORN or SUMMER ANNUALS the following year:
Applied in spring
incorporation the same day	0.75	0.50
incorporation within 1 day	0.50	0.40
incorporation within 2-4 days	0.45	0.35
incorporation within 5-6 days	0.30	0.30
incorporation after 7 days or no incorporation	0.15	0.20
Applied previous fall or winter with no cover crop[1]	0.15	0.20
Applied previous fall or winter with cover crop harvested for silage[2]	0.15	0.20
Applied previous fall or winter with a cover crop as a green manure	0.50	0.40
Manure applied for SMALL GRAINS:
Applied previous fall or winter	0.50	0.40

[1] There is the potential of significant nitrogen loss to the environment when manure is applied in this manner.
[2] These low availability factors do not indicate a net loss of N. A large amount of N is removed in the cover crop silage but is recycled in the manure when the silage is fed.

B. Historical frequency of manure application on the field	N availability factor Poultry manure	Other manure
Rarely received manure in the past	0	0
Frequently received manure (4-8 out of 10 yrs)	0.07	0.15
Continuously received manure (>8 out of 10 yrs)	0.12	0.25

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Proper moisture testing is the key to making good forage, said Dr. Jerry Berger, director of technical services for the silage inoculant product line at Pioneer.

Berger spoke at the recent Pennsylvania Corn Conference about methods producers can use to troubleshoot high-moisture corn and corn silage problems.

Berger insists that the biggest and most consistent problem he encounters from producers involve not matching the hybrid moisture requirements correctly to the type of storage used.

In any case, Berger said, "it pays to pack, even in an upright" type of structure. He said that dry matter (DM) losses can be excessive if silage is too loose, because oxygen is the prime factor in DM degradability.

Proper moisture testing is the key to making good forage, said Dr. Jerry Berger, director of technical services for the silage inoculant product line at Pioneer, at the recent Pennsylvania Corn Conference.

He showed some of the results of tests that proved DM losses can be excessive, even during one day time. Completely loose silage lost up to 2 percent DM in one day, and in four days, 15 percent was lost.

"Pack the silage firmly and get the oxygen out," he told them. He said there are no shortcuts to ensuring DM retainability through packing. Many producers fail to cover bunkers properly, even when using tires. Tires should be used end to end, leaving all spaces covered.

Also, silage moisture should be tested periodically to ensure the levels present do not exceed the recommendations.

Too many times, problems are caused by improper moisture levels (greater than 13 percent); humidity levels (greater than 70 percent); temperature (above 55 degrees F.); a pH more than 5; and, of course, oxygen.

Also, chip size should be ⅜ inch; often, silage particles in problem areas are as long as 1½ inches.

"You can't do enough moisture testing," said Berger. "You should check moisture every week."

For other problems, including molds, it is important that a good test amount should be sent to the laboratory for analysis. When doing so, the producer should check the silage to observe distribution in the tower or bunk, and look for compaction or structural problems. Six locations should be used, with a sample taking from one to two feet deep.

For nutrient analyses, the sample should be refrigerated. But for molds, the test sample should not be refrigerated.

Problems can be resulting from other sources, including improper structure for the silage, slow feedout (especially in a smaller herd size than anticipated); poor distribution; and poor packing.

Using Manure

After you have determined the nutrient value of the manure, it is a matter of estimating the trucking and application costs and comparing this to the value of the manure. Some manure producers are equipped to offer delivery or application service. Since poultry manure is very high in nutrient value, many find it profitable to haul it a substantial distance.

Lancaster County poultry manure is being trucked to farms in New Jersey and further to fertilize crops. If trucking of the manure can be arranged as a back haul with another trip, the potential distance that it can be hauled economically increases.

If you are going to be using manure as your source of corn crop nutrients, remember to calculate the rate of manure needed in accordance with sound nutrient management principles. If you have been using manure for a number of years, don't forget to calculate the residual nitrogen carryover from previous years' applications of manure and deduct that from the current year's nitrogen needs. Refer to Table 21 in "The 1993-1994 Agronomy Guide" to determine the residual nitrogen in your situation.

In order to assist potential manure suppliers and receivers in contacting each other, lists of each group have been compiled. These lists are organized by county and township to enable you to find those on the opposite list who are closest to you.

If you would be interested in having your name added and receiving an updated list annually, contact Leon Ressler, Penn State Extension, 1383 Arcadia Road, Lancaster, PA 17601-3149, (717) 394-6851.

CORN BREEDERS MAKE PROGRESS IN ROOTWORM TOLERANCE

Greg W. Roth
Penn State Agronomy Assistant Professor

Occasionally, I have seen or had reports of subtle hybrid differences in tolerance to corn rootworm.

In one of our insecticide studies, for example, we found that yields of one hybrid were increased by 10 bushels per acre but another apparently overcame the damage and did not show any benefit to the insecticide treatment. This hybrid apparently had an increased level of tolerance to rootworm damage.

Although seed companies don't rate hybrids for rootworm tolerance, we do know that some subtle differences exist.

A recent study published in Crop Science measured some of the progress that corn breeders have made since the 1960s in improving hybrid tolerance to feeding from the western corn rootworm. The study was conducted by Walter Riedell and Paul Evenson and was a joint project between USDA-ARS and South Dakota State University.

In this study, researchers evaluated corn hybrids from the 1960s, the 1970s, and the 1980s under three different corn rootworm infestation levels: none, 2,200 eggs/meter of row, and 6,600 eggs/meter of row. They also evaluated these treatments at 15, 20, or 30 thousand plants per acre. Studies were conducted during a two-year period.

The researchers were able to show no difference among hybrids from the different eras for root damage. This indicates there was no antibiosis, or differences in resistance to corn rootworm feeding among the hybrids.

They also measured the root pull resistance, which is a measure of the rooting strength of the plants, and the lodging of the plants. They found that the root pull resistance under rootworm pressure has been increasing in the newer corn hybrids. The 1980s corn hybrids also had considerably less lodging than the 1970s and 1960s hybrids. This was particularly true at higher plant populations, where the 1960s hybrids had more than twice the lodging of the 1970s and 1980s hybrids.

Based on the results of this study, it appears that most of the rootworm tolerance present in modern corn hybrids is associated with larger root systems and reduced plant lodging. According to the authors, there appears to be little potential that resistance to corn rootworm feeding (antibiosis) occurs in commercial corn hybrids. Apparently, this resistance exists in exotic corn germplasm, but recent surveys have indicated that little exotic germplasm has been incorporated into commercial hybrids.

Ill. Producer Observes NAFTA Impact

WASHINGTON, D.C. — "We saw first-hand how the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA) will impact corn exports to Mexico," said Leland Behnken, upon returning from the U.S. Feed Grains Council's Market Assessment Mission.

Behnken represented the Illinois Corn Growers Association on the mission that traveled to Canada and Mexico to study opportunities to increase exports.

According to Behnken, "We also learned that Mexico's new domestic agricultural policies will create opportunities for increased corn exports to this growing market.

"Under the terms of NAFTA, U.S. corn producers will export 2.5 million metric tons (mmt) (98.5 million bushels) of corn to Mexico next year," Behnken said. "We learned that our corn will be used primarily in the wet milling and tortilla industries to provide food to the Mexican people."

Mexico's corn wet million industry uses approximately 1 to 1.5 mmt (39.4 to 59.1 mbu) of imported corn and the tortilla industry about 1 mmt (39.4 mbu) annually.

"The feed industry will also use imported corn, but corn occupies almost a sacred place in Mexico's culture as a food grain, so this will take a little longer.

"Another major development is the revision of Mexico's domestic agricultural policy," Behnken said. "Mexico actually has a surplus of corn this year, due to policies that encouraged over production of corn at the expense of other crops, but PROCAMPO will take care of that."

PROCAMPO is Mexico's new agricultural policy that will pay producers based on the amount of owned acreage, not the amount or type of crop produced. Mexico's old agricultural policy paid producers double the world price for corn, encouraging its production at the expense of other crops.

"Now producers can plant the crops most suited to their land and climate, not those that receive the most government benefits," Behnken said. "PROCAMPO will also put some money in the small farmers pockets, and this is expected to spark rural development in Mexico."

Export Markets Emerge For Corn Products

DENVER, Colo. — New and existing value-added markets are emerging for the U.S. corn grower overseas, according to panelists at the National Corn Growers Association's (NCGA) Corn Classic breakout session, "The Road To Asia: How Open Are These Markets To Meat," sponsored by the U.S. Meat Export Federation (USMEF).

"The U.S. is the largest exporter of beef in the world. One out of every 10 head of cattle produced in the U.S. is exported," said Philip Seng, president and chief executive officer of the USMEF.

Seng projects that by achieving a higher standard of living in the Pacific Rim countries plus successful negotiations on the General Agreements On Tariffs and Trade (GATT), corn producers should expect a doubling of value-added exports into Japan and Korea. He also noted that with passage of the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA), corn producers should see a 15 percent increase in demand of meat products going to Mexico by the year 2000.

Rex Moore, vice president of Maverick Ranch Lite Beef, is gearing up his production and marketing program to fill that demand and fit the needs of the foreign customer. Maverick Ranch's "Lite Beer" is a corn-fed specialty brand of beef. For more than four years, the Denver-based company has exported its brandname beef to Asian markets. According to Moore, specialty beef brands and beef export markets have the most growth potential for the U.S. corn grower. Moore estimates beef could potentially capture over a $280 billion share in the export market alone.

The Corn Classic panelists' comments reiterated findings of Corn Vision 2020 study, co-sponsored by NCGA and Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc., concluding that an increase in red-meat exports will prove to be a major component of corn growers future profitability.

Now Might Be Good Time To Consider Hedging Grains

Thomas A. Brewer
Associate Professor
Agricultural Economics
Penn State

If a seller or buyer of grain can't afford the adverse effects of a price change, hedging using either the futures or options markets should be considered.

After the many price-jarring events that occurred during the 1993 crop year, cash market growers of corn, wheat, or soybeans may not be very interested in or worry much about price levels for their 1994 crops.

Perhaps they should take a second look. It might just be a good time for a seller to "lock in" a minimum price for this year's crop.

On the other hand, those who expect to buy grains during 1994-1995 may want to "lock in" a maximum price they'll need to pay if prices should go up even further. One can't predict 1994-1995 prices with much certainty at this preplanting phase of the production cycle.

Price expectations for the next year to 18 months are uncertain and each grower or buyer will have to make his or her own judgements as to what they will be.

There are several factors one should keep in mind when forming judgements about the levels and volatility of market prices during the next year and a half.

By recent historical standards, current prices for corn, soybeans, and wheat are quite high on the Chicago Board of Trade. Most nearby contracts (January to July 1994 contract months) are at or near life of contract highs and substantially above their lows as of this writing (January 13, 1994). The wide spread between life of contract highs and their lows indicates that substantial changes in prices have occurred, mostly in an upward direction, over the past few months. Prices can change substantially during fairly short periods of time.

Prices for distant contract month's (those expiring between Nov. 1994 and May 1995 — when most of the 1994 crop will be sold) are at much higher levels than those of "distant contracts" last winter and spring. Most "lows" of nearby contracts were established during this time of year (late winter and early spring) in 1993. At that time they would have been considered "distant contracts."

If the "lows" of those contracts at this time last year represented expected prices, one could ask why today's prices for more distant contracts should be much different (higher) than they were during the same period last year. The explanation, of course, is that either the supply of or demand for these grains has changed since early 1993 or are expected to change by delivery time this fall or during the winter and spring of 1995.

This year's corn and soybean crops were severely reduced by droughts and floods. As a result, carryover stocks just prior to the 1994 harvest are going to be the lowest since the mid-1970s. This will make livestock feeds relatively expensive, by historic standards, for the remainder of the feeding year. It will force some farmers to feed at somewhat lower levels or substitute other commodities for some of the corn and soybeans.

Small carryover stocks tend to make commodity prices more volatile than they are when we're assured that minimal supplies will be available. We can expect a higher degree of price volatility for these commodities in 1994-1995 than we experienced when we didn't have to depend on the upcoming harvest to meet all our immediate needs.

How fast will our depleted stocks be replenished? It depends on the acreage farmers will plant this spring (or did last fall in the case of winter wheat), on the quality of this year's growing and harvesting seasons, and on the purchases of domestic and foreign users of 1994's crops. Prices for the 1994 crop may be much lower or much higher than those currently expected by futures market traders.

Farmers generally respond to higher prices by attempting to increase output if seed and other inputs are available. They have no control over the weather. But it doesn't seem likely that the same set of adverse conditions, which plagued farmers last year, will occur with the same severity again this year, but they might. One can't be certain about the size of this year's crop, but in all likelihood it will be larger than 1993's.

Hedging Grains

The demand side of the equation is much more mystical. Now, we are forced to factor in the effects of NAFTA, the pending GATT Agreement, and this Administration's plans for continuing or discontinuing use of the Export Enhancement Program as well as the more usual analysis of growing conditions and crop production in other parts of the world.

A relatively small change in the level of exports, resulting from any of them, can have major impacts on next year's carryover and on prices for this year's crop.

All of those factors will contribute to the volatility of corn, soybean, and wheat prices during the next 18 months. The grower or buyer who can afford to take the risk associated with an adverse price change isn't under as much pressure to hedge as one who can't.

If a grower can afford an adverse price change and is willing to take the good prices of some years along with the poor prices of others, money can be saved because it does cost to place and remove a hedge. However, grower-sellers who can't afford to take the risk of receiving prices much lower than the current market's, or who don't wish to accept the risk for whatever the reason, can "lock in" a price at a fairly high level now.

Those who are optimistic and think prices may go up from current levels but aren't willing to take all the risk of a price fall should consider hedging using the options market. For example, a seller of July 1994 corn can be protected from the adverse effects of a price falling below $2.90/bushel by purchasing a "put option" for about 3¾ cents per bushel (prices and premiums on January 13, 1994). That $2.90 price is some 20 cents per bushel lower than the same day's futures market but it would offer protection from a fairly large price slide and it wouldn't cost very much. Other commodities provide similar possibilities.

For this group of commodities, we probably are now entering a period of greater price volatility than we have experienced in the last 20 years. Hedging is one possibility growers or buyers should consider using to transfer the risk associated with price volatility to those who are more able or more willing to accept it.

If you would like to explore the possibilities or gain a better understanding of how futures and options markets work, please contact me or your county extension director.

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Corn growers in Pennsylvania can now enjoy the best of both worlds — they can join both PMCGA and NCGA and can try some new seed on their farm.

The response from seed corn suppliers to the "Try Something New" Membership Incentive Program (MIP) announced recently was overwhelming and the Pennsylvania Master Corn Growers Association looks forward to working closely with them to serve corn growers in Pennsylvania.

The MIP with seed corn company sponsorship will entitle any corn grower who plants at least five acres of corn to a free bag of seed corn (standard size) with a three-year membership in PMCGA/NCGA. This program applies to all three-year memberships, new or renewal.

Each participating seed corn company is listed at the bottom of our membership application published in Corn Talk. The grower will receive a certificate for a free bag of seed from the company chosen from PMCGA. The grower will make the ultimate decision about which hybrid he will receive in consultation with his local dealer.

PMCGA will send the names and addresses and telephone numbers to the appropriate seed corn company's state representative and they will follow up.

Interested corn growers should complete the membership form immediately and return it to PMCGA headquarters promtly along with a check to cover membership dues.

ROR Moves Ethanol Into Home Stretch

DENVER, Colo. — "Corn growers received the best Valentine possible" when the Clinton Administration issued the Renewable Oxygenate Requirement (ROR) on Feb. 14, said Eric Vaughn, president and chief executive officer of the Renewable Fuels Association, to attendees of the general session of the National Corn Growers Association's Corn Classic.

"This time the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) got it right. If President Clinton signs the ROR on June 1, 1994, we will finally have ethanol in the mainstream," said Vaughn. He credited corn producers, who generated 9,628 of the 10,000 comments received during public hearings, and Secretary of Agriculture Mike Espy's "new sense of commitment and spirit" for the victory.

However, Vaughn cautioned, "It's not done, it's not finished. The oil companies are confident that we'll quit. They'll try to wear you down, question yourselves," he said. "There's no end to the fantasy and falsehoods when they talk about ethanol."

Vaughn noted that since Denver pioneered the concept of cleaning the air by cleaning motor fuel eight years ago, 1 trillion miles have been driven with 7.2 billion gallons of ethanol. That translates into a market for 3.1 billion bushels of corn.

If the ROR is signed in June, what Vaughn called the "Midwestern ROR (Roar)" will increase corn prices by 20 cents per bushel, improve farm revenue by $1.5 billion, reduce farm program costs, lower consumer costs by $450 million per year and cut the trade deficit by $600 million.

CORN WEED MANAGEMENT PROGRAMS

William S. Curran
Assistant Professor
Weed Science
Penn State

No single herbicide program or control strategy is best in all situations. Some strategies require additional trips, specific application timings, or even specialized equipment.

The following herbicide programs may require additional strategies for the control of other weeds that are also present. With all these weeds and herbicide programs, a follow-up cultivation may provide additional control.

Triazine-Resistant Lambsquarters

Option 1: Use Prowl herbicide delayed preemergence or early postemergence in conventional, reduced, or no-till corn. Apply 2.4 to 3.6 pint Prowl 3.3 E per acre a few days after planting up until the corn reaches the 4-leaf stage. Prowl will also help on pigweed, velvetleaf, and most annual grasses. Prowl by itself will not control emerged weeds. The cost of Prowl is approximately $8 to $12 per acre. To avoid injury problems with Prowl, do not apply at planting. Delay application until corn reaches the spike stage. Also, be sure the seed furrow is completely closed before applying.

Pluses	Minuses
Cost	Injury risk
Residual control	Application timing
Grass & some broadleaf	May need additional grass/ nutsedge/broadleaf

Option 2: Apply Banvel early postemergence in corn. Apply 1 pint/acre from spike to the 5-leaf stage of corn. Banvel is also active on most annual broadleaves, plus it will suppress broadleaf perennials. Including a nonionic surfactant at 0.125 percent will increase activity, but may also increase the potential for injury. Do not apply 1 pint to corn greater than 8 inches tall. Do not use preemergence on soils with less than 2 percent organic matter or on coarse-textured soils. The one pint rate of Banvel costs about $9 per acre. Dicamba, the active ingredient in Banvel, is also available in the premix Marksman (dicamba + atrazine) and in Clarity.

Pluses	Minuses
Cost	Slight injury risk
Other broadleaves	Additional trip?
	Vapor drift
	No grass/nutsedge

Option 3: Apply Buctril at 1 to 1.5 pint per acre to lambsquarters less than 6 inches tall. Buctril is fair on velvetleaf, but poor on pigweed. Buctril costs between $7 and $10 per acre. Buctril is also available in a premix called Buctril + atrazine.

Pluses
Cost

Minuses
Slight injury risk
Additional trip?
Weak on pigweed/no grass/ nutsedge

Velvetleaf

Option 1: Apply 1 to 1.6 qt atrazine plus 1.5 to 3 qt Bladex per acre preemergence. This combination is effective on most annual grasses and broadleaves with the exception of triazine-resistant weeds. The cost of this program is $8 to 25 per acre. Use the higher rates of atrazine if heavy broadleaf weed pressure or quackgrass is a problem. Cool wet growing conditions early in the season favor Bladex injury. Atrazine plus Bladex is available in the premix Extrazine II.

Pluses
Grass & broadleaf
Single trip

Minuses
Slight injury risk
Favors triazine resistance
atrazine restrictions

Option 2: Apply 2.4 to 3.6 pint Prowl 3.3 E plus 1.25 to 1.6 qt atrazine before corn reaches the 4-leaf stage. This combination will control a number of annual broadleaves and may be sufficient for control of lighter grass populations. The cost of this treatment will range from $10 to 18 per acre. See the precautions under Prowl for lambsquarters above.

Pluses
Cost
Residual control
Grass & broadleaf

Minuses
Injury risk
Application timing
May need additional grass/ nutsedge
atrazine restrictions

Option 3: Apply one of the following products postemergence to corn. Apply 2 to 3 pint per acre Buctril + atrazine or 2.5 to 3.5 pint Laddok up until corn is 12 inches tall. Include crop oil concentrate at 1 qt per acre or nitrogen fertilizer solution at 1 gal per acre with Laddok. As an alternative, apply 2 to 3.5 pint Marksman up to the 5-leaf stage of corn. All three products are good on velvetleaf and will control most other annual broadleaves. The cost of each product will range from $6 to $12 per acre.

Pluses
Broadleaves
Laddok controls nutsedge

Minuses
Slight injury risk

No grass

Triazine-Resistant Pigweed

Prowl will also help on pigweed, velvetleaf, and most annual grasses. Prowl by itself will not control emerged weeds. The cost of Prowl is approximately $8 to $12 per acre. Option 3: Apply 0.38 ounces Beacon plus 0.125 to 0.25 pint Banvel or 2,4-D postemergence in corn. Apply to corn less than 10 inches tall for greatest crop safety and weed activity. Include a nonionic surfactant at 1 quart per 100 gal. The cost of this program will be $11 to $15 per acre.

PMCGA Supporters Make Conference Possible

The 1994 Pennsylvania Corn Conference is now history. Plenty of good fellowship, learning and recognition of top producers took place. Our conference is made possible in part by all of the industry supporters who were exhibitors and also those who made special contributions. We'd like to thank all of those who exhibited at the conference this year for their support. We'd also like to thank those groups who made contributions to the program in other ways.

First, we appreciate the coffee and donuts that were supplied by Hoffman Seeds- they were a welcome addition to the morning program. We'd also like to thank the Ohio Corn Growers Association for sharing some of the expenses for their executive director to meet with us and Pioneer Hi-bred and Hoffman Seeds for sponsoring two excellent speakers.

Without this industry support, it would be more difficult to bring in the quality speakers that our Corn Conference is known for.

Kids' Lives Depend On Safety Awareness

DENVER, Colo. — Quality time has a special meaning for farm families.

"The most important time you can spend with your children is when you train them to do a farm task and then supervise them the first time they do it alone," said Lynne Yontz, program coordinator for Farm Safety 4 Just Kids.

Yontz told a break-out session at the National Corn Growers Association's Corn Classic that 5,000 farm children are seriously injured each year and 300 are killed in preventable on-farm accidents. The session, sponsored by ICI Seeds, was offered to the nearly 2,000 Corn Classic attendees.

"Two-thirds of the fatalities occur to children under thirteen, but even more shocking," said Yontz, "is the fact that half of the deaths are children under five."

The most critical ages are four, when curious and fearless children are first allowed outside alone, and 14, when teenagers, especially boys, are first given solo farm tasks.

She listed, in order of danger, the most common farm hazards. They are tractors with extra riders, keys left in the ignition, no ROPs (roll-over protection) and no seat belts; augers and power takeoffs when unshielded and unattended; livestock; removal of protective shields on engines; lack of supervision; children too young for assigned tasks; and exposure to hazardous materials, especially insecticides.

In general, Yontz urged attendees to undertake family or community education programs which would cover the following rules:

- No Seat, No Rider
- No play on idle machinery
- Leave implements in the down position
- Put the brakes on and take the keys out
- Leave the PTO in neutral
- Replace protective shields after repairs

JOHN DEERE

DENVER, Colo. — "Do your homework!"

That's the cautionary message to corn growers from a panel addressing "How to Profitably Participate in the Parallel Corn Industry" at the National Corn Growers Association's (NCGA) Corn Classic.

Terry Wolf, a corn producer who grows specialty food corns for Frito-Lay in Champaign County in Illinois, told attendees that the promise of premiums must be balanced against inevitable risks.

The risks include lower yields, decreased vigor and hardiness, and the many problems caused by a delayed harvest. While the crop dries down to 20 percent, ear loss, test weight loss, weather damage, disease, and sprouting can occur, canceling any premium for quality. In addition, he's incurred additional expenses in larger and specialized machinery.

Premiums of up to 55 cents above the market are possible when all goes well, Wolf notes, and that's why he's been a specialty contract grower for 10 years.

Tom Medd, director of specialty marketing for Harvest States Cooperative, cautioned growers to thoroughly research every angle of a specialty crop from hybrids and agronomic requirements to contracts and consumer expectations.

"Make sure that you and your customer are large enough scale to warrant the investment in extra time, machinery and management," he said.

Lynn Hiser, general manager for cash grain at A.E. Staley Manufacturing Company in Decatur, Ill., urged growers interested in specialty production to "make sure you're involved in a reputable program and know what will happen to the end product."

Hiser predicted that industrial uses of corn, rather than specialty food markets, hold the greatest promise of future profits.

Option 1: Apply 1.6 to 2 quart per acre atrazine two to three weeks ahead of planting. Till if possible before planting. Apply 1 quart simazine preemergence or an additional amount of atrazine early postemergence not to exceed a total of 2.5 pounds per acre for the season. This program can leave herbicide residues that prevent the seeding of forages, small grains, and vegetable for at least one year. The cost of this program is $7 to $10 per acre.

Apply in 5 to 10 gallons of water per acre and include a nonionic surfactant plus 17 pounds per 100 gallons of dry ammonium sulfate. CORN SILAGE RESEARCH SURVEYS HYBRID EFFECTS

Greg W. Roth
Penn State Agronomy
Assistant Professor

Since 1991, the University of Wisconsin has been surveying adapted corn hybrids for silage productivity and nutritive value.

This project has been coordinated by Dr. Jim Coors, a corn breeder in the Department of Agronomy at Wisconsin.

Recently, Dr. Coors reported on some of his findings to date at the 1994 Wisconsin Forage Council's Forage Production and Use Symposium. The project evaluated 30-40 early and late maturing hybrids at two locations during both 1991 and 1992.

During both years of the study, there only was a weak relationship between grain yield and silage yield of corn hybrids. This indicates that grain yield performance is not a good indicator of silage yield potential. In the early hybrid trial, for example, none of the top five grain yielding hybrids were in the top five for silage yield. This confirms the results of several other studies and justifies the need for separate hybrid evaluations for silage.

Forage quality differences among hybrids varied from about 5 to 8 units for NDF and 2 to 4 units for in vitro digestibility. Differences among hybrids in the digestibility of cell walls ranged from 4 to 7 units. The project also evaluated quality characteristics in the stover part of the plants and found hybrid differences generally to be greater there.

In general, the researchers found few relationships between yield and quality, which indicates that it should be possible to breed high yielding hybrids that also have high quality.

Many breeders have been concerned about the repeatability of hybrid silage quality data. In this project, Coors measured repeatability of the yield and silage quality traits. He found that the repeatabilities for NDF and cell wall digestibility were similar to those for grain or silage yield. This indicates that testing strategies, such as the number of field plots and reps required for these traits should be similar to those used for grain yield evaluation.

This study indicates that breeding hybrids for improved silage quality appears to be possible, since variation exists in current germplasm and there do not appear to be yield losses associated with improved quality traits.

Bioproducts Fuel Corn Revolution

DENVER, Colo. — A revolution is taking place, and it is coming out of the corn field in the form of a new generation of natural and environmentally friendly products.

That was the message received by about 2,000 corn growers and industry leaders attending the National Corn Growers Association's 1994 Corn Classic.

Ethanol represented the corn industry's first major shot in the battle to replace petroleum-based products, but the competition is escalating as corn moves into the emerging field of bioplastics and biochemicals.

Although these new products are just beginning to emerge, it is already obvious the result will be explosive growth in corn utilization, said Mark Whitacre, president of Archer Daniels Midland's (ADM) bioproduct division, at the Corn Classic breakout session "Improving Profits By Increasing Corn Use."

"The chemical business is a $60 billion industry. Petroleum and natural gas are the current feedstock for these products, but biochemicals made from corn are expanding rapidly. ADM has already invested $1 billion in its bioproduct division and it is expected to represent one-third of the company's business by 1996-97," said Whitacre.

ADM is focusing on corn-based food and feed additives such as vitamins, flavoring agents, and natural insecticides. The bioproduct arena offers dramatic expansion and corn utilization opportunities, said Whitacre. "While many of the existing markets for corn, like fructose and dextrose, are growing at 3 to 4 percent each year, bioproducts like lysine and citric acid are growing at 30 to 40 percent annually," he said.

Whitacre observed that livestock feed additives will be a big market. So will such items as vitamins. There are about 13 vitamins which are widely used and ADM has plans to make them all from corn in the near future. The company hopes to expand to 50 new bioproducts by the year 2000.

Also at the breakout session, Cargill, Inc., Manager of Business Development Bob Buehler, noted that his company is positioning itself to meet society's needs for products that are natural and reduce environmental impact. Cargill is introducing a new generation of biodegradable plastic products.

"EcoPLA can be converted into bags, food service ware such as knives and forks, diapers, filters and even medical garments. EcoPLA performs like conventional plastic, but it degrades at the same rate as paper," Buehler said.

Early generation degradable plastics made from cornstarch had some functional problems, but the Cargill technology allows the plastic to be strong, versatile and completely degradable in 45 to 60 dsays, he said.

Cargill is currently taking the technology from the pilot plant stage to the market development stage. Plans call for construction of a large plant in Blair, Neb., in 1996 or early 1997, which will produce 250 million pounds of EcoPLA annually and use 35,000 to 40,000 bushels of corn each day. EcoPLA has lots of potential because it is cost competitive, meets manufacturer and consumer demands, and lends itself well to composting, recycling and other methods of waste handling, Buehler said.

THE ONLY ENCAPSULATED PREMIX THAT GETS THROUGH RESIDUE

In no-till corn, you only get one shot at season-long weed control. That's why it pays to load up with Bullet® herbicide. Bullet is encapsulated to shoot through heavy crop residue. So while others volatilize off the surface or get tied up in residue, Bullet gets into the soil to stop germinating weeds.

ENCAPSULATED FOR SUPERIOR CROP SAFETY

Instead of releasing its power in a single shot, Bullet meters out its active ingredient throughout the entire growing season. In doing so, it delivers unsurpassed crop safety — especially when your young corn plants are most vulnerable to herbicide stress.

ENCAPSULATED FOR SEASON-LONG GRASS AND BROADLEAF CONTROL

Unlike other atrazine premixes, Bullet is micro-encapsulated for timed-release, season-long control. The kind of control you need to stop tough grasses and broadleaves like foxtails, fall panicum, cocklebur, lambsquarters, pigweed and velvetleaf.

This year, ask your dealer for the no-till premix that combines stopping power with staying power. Bullet® herbicide from Monsanto.

CONTROL MORE GRASSES AND WEEDS IN CORN...FOR 25% LESS PER ACRE.

A tank of PROWL® herbicide knocks grasses and weeds on their ear... all season... for up to 25% less than competitive treatments.

Apply PROWL as directed, any time from planting up to the four-leaf stage. You'll get proven, cost-effective control of many grasses and weeds, including foxtails, lambsquarter, velvetleaf* and pigweed.

PROWL is compatible with most other herbicides and fits any tillage program. However, do NOT incorporate PROWL in corn.

Let us help you knock grasses and weeds on their ear... for up to 25% less per acre. Come in for your PROWL® herbicide today.

THE 5300--A DRILL FOR ALL REASONS.

The Case International 5300 grain drill is the latest version of our most popular models. They each bring substantial improvements and cutting-edge technology to this class of drills. Not to mention the unsurpassed accuracy of the exclusive Case International fluted-roll feed cup.

And now, more than ever, the 5300 means outstanding reliability, having heavier bearings in the disk openers and press wheels Heavier pivot arms and drawbar assemblies maintain row spacing and alignment better than ever Double-disk zig-zag openers are standard. And a new nylon protective boot eliminates interference with the openers, a problem common to many competitive drills that occurs when their steel boots become bent.

The versatility of the model 5300 lets you tailor this drill to fit practically any seeding situation. You can choose from a variety of widths and row spacings-- even a Soybean Special, built specifically for soybeans and peas. Select a plain hopper or combination seed/fertilizer hopper, add a host of special attachments, or double your capacities by linking two 5300s with the hydraulic multiple-drill hitch

You can equip a model 5300 drill with the exact openers that you need-- single or double disk, with straight or zig-zag ranks. Combination drills also can be equipped with separate fertilizer openers or tubes for combined or separate delivery of fertilizer

Large-capacity hoppers-- plain or combination-- give you the capacity to cover extra acres between refills. With the combination drill, an adjustable dual capacity seed/fertilizer hopper lets you change ratios of respective capacities by merely reversing the partition. And you can easily convert to a plain hopper by removing the fertilizer partition and installing a panel over the bottom of the fertilizer compartment.

An available hydraulic two-drill hitch attachment lets you double your seeding capacity by hitching two model 5300 drills behind your tractor. And you'll like the ease with which you switch from transport to field position without leaving your tractor seat. Hydraulics do all the work, and it's automatic.
